Santa Is Whirling Through Alaska Enroute To New Castle For Visit On December 10

Making Progress Over Snow Fields; Eskimo With Him

Says Nothing Will Prevent Him Reaching New Castle On Schedule

ASKS ABOUT BOYS AND GIRLS OF CITY

Spirited Reindeer Teams Dash Along To Jingling Sleighbells

(By THOMAS DARE)
(By Radiogram To The New Castle News)

SOMEWHERE IN ALASKA, (Via Nome), Dec. 3.—I was finally successful today in getting in touch with Santa Claus and his party, enroute through the frozen north towards Nome, to begin their trip to New Castle, Pennsylvania.

Good progress is being made by Santa Claus and all of his party, and the jovial old chap declared that nothing would be allowed to prevent his arrival in New Castle on Friday morning, December 10, when he expects to see thousands of Lawrence County children in the downtown section of the city.

Asks About Boys and Girls

"Tell them to be on the lookout, for I'm surely going to be there," he declared as his greetings had been extended and he inquired about many of the boys and girls that he had visited a year ago, and also of some of the new arrivals that he expects to visit for the first time.

"Do you think that the big tree that the people of New Castle are planning will be up in time for my visit on December 10?" Santa inquired.

I told him that I hoped that such would be the case, and that Washington and other downtown streets would be teeming with holiday decorations. Santa was well pleased when I informed him of the large number of live wire merchants of the city who are planning to take part in the big reception on his arrival.

My but it's cold up here. I hope that there is some snow when I get back to New Castle with this Santa Claus party, for these reindeers and this Eskimo family certainly do thrive on frigid weather. I'll bet that the thermometer in front of The News building back home would drop out of sight if an attempt were made to get the temperature up here just now.

With Santa Claus Party

As I look around, we can see a broad expanse of snow plains, but we are making good time. With the Santa Claus party I see the Brownies, North Wind, Jack Frost, Old Mother Hubbard, the Lady who Lived in a Shoe, several of the Good Fairies, Mr. and Mrs. Tautuk and Nuctooh, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tautuk, the Eskimos.

Little Eskimo Nuctooh Tautuk was with Santa Claus behind Dasher, Dancer, Prancer, Vixen, Donner and Blitzen, all spirited reindeer which you will see when Santa arrives in New Castle. Nuctooh, is just a little fellow, quite willing to be entertaining; and Santa had no sooner cracked his whip and gotten under way, than the Eskimo boy started to talk.

"Once my father had a very good dog," said he. "One day it fell into a big—very big—crack in the ice. Then my father says to me that I must go down after the dog. My father tied a rope around my shoulders, and then let me down into the big crack in the ice. I tied the rope around the dog and the men pulled us both up.

"But weren't you afraid to be let down into the crack, Nuctooh?"

Hall-Mills Case Given To Jury About 2 O'clock

Prosecutor Simpson Sums Up Case And Judge Delivers Charge

Simpson Scores Assertions Of Defense Counsel On Pig Woman's Story

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

COURTHOUSE, SOMERVILLE, N. J., Dec. 3.—The case went to the jury in the Hall-Mills murder trial at 1:45 this afternoon after Judge Charles W. Parker had delivered his charge to the jury.

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Dec. 3.—Prosecutor Simpson finished his summation of the case at 12:06 this afternoon, having spoken for an hour and 46 minutes.

The case was expected to go the jury shortly before three o'clock. At the resumption of the afternoon session Judge Charles W. Parker was to charge the jury.

Judge Charles W. Parker began his charge to the jury in the Hall-Mills case at 1:07 this afternoon.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Dec. 3.—The curtain was slowly descending today on the final act in the Hall-Mills drama.

By sundown the case is expected to be in the hands of the jury. This morning Prosecutor Alexander Simpson will deliver his summation of the state's case, the court will then instruct the jury as to the law, the jury will then retire and thereafter will come the jury's verdict on a question that has aroused and divided the people of the country.

Did the wealthy Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her two brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, kill the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills on the night of September 14, 1922?

Guilty or Not?

Guilty or not guilty? The jury's answer to that question will climax the most sensational murder mystery in the history of American journalism. Exactly one month ago today the trial was started, and since that day more than 10,000,000 words have been telegraphed to the outside world over the network of wires cut into the courthouse. Several hundred of the larger and lesser lights of journalism, scores of photographers, and a battalion of telegraphers have done their part in picturing to the world the intricate and mysterious angles to the great murder mystery.

Sensation after sensation developed with dizzy speed during this past month; 193 witnesses have trooped to the stand; charges of bribery have been made by witnesses under oath; a stricken woman witness was conveyed 30 miles in an ambulance to testify lying flat on her back in the courtroom; lawyers have fought like the famous

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—With President Coolidge taking the lead in smoothing out Republican differences in congress, administration leaders today plotted a defensive war to protect their single-vote control over the senate in the seventieth congress.

Anticipating a Democratic drive to wrest control by the exclusion of Senators-elect Frank L. Smith, of Illinois, and William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, the Republican chieftains drafted plans for initiating retaliatory contests against at least

Council Denies Berger Woods Offered City

Berger woods was never offered for sale to the city of New Castle, according to city councilmen.

They stated today they are being criticized for not accepting an offer made by the Berger heirs. They agreed they would have liked to have had the plot but under the circumstances are being criticized unjustly.

It is said that a letter written to New Castle carries the information the woods was offered for sale.

Council denied that any offer had ever been made to the city, so far as they knew.

Aimee McPhersons' Mother Scoffs At Keyes Discovery

District Attorney Said To Have Located Shop Where Ormiston Trunk Was Purchased

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 3.—"I don't care if Mr. Keyes has found out that Ormiston bought his little blue trunk in Pasadena, or if he found out that he bought a red, white and blue trunk anywhere else."

In these words Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, mother of Aimee Semple McPherson, today scoffed at the admitted discovery by District Attorney Asa Keyes of Los Angeles that Kenneth G. Ormiston, will o' the wisp radio operator of Mrs. McPherson's Angelus Temple, under the name of H. C. Cornell had purchased the trunk from a luggage shop in Pasadena a few blocks from his rooms at the Maryland hotel, May 1 last.

Anthracite Coal Situation Normal

Production Is Nearly Normal In Pennsylvania—Record For Fewer Fatalities

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 3.—Anthracite coal production is near-normal in Pennsylvania and bituminous production is above the average of the past few years, according to a statement issued today by the State Department of Mines.

The department estimated that the hard coal production in 1926 will be about five million tons and the bituminous production about 145,000,000 tons.

For the first 11 months of the year accidents established a record in the anthracite fields, where the production per fatal accident was 198,000 tons, compared with the next best record of 1920, when it was 182,931 tons, according to the statement.

In the bituminous region the estimated production per fatality for 11 months of the current year was 359,534 tons.

To date fatalities in the anthracite region have numbered 397 and in the bituminous fields, 357.

Carl Morse Is Buried At Sea

Message Tells Of Accident In Which Young Man Lost His Life

COAL PILE TOPPLES OVER UPON HIM

Full details of the accidental death of Carl William Morse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Morse of New Wilmington, Pa., which occurred Tuesday, November 30, on board a merchant marine United States freighter enroute to Glasgow, Scotland, were received by a wireless message last evening by his parents.

According to the word sent the young man who was a stoker on the boat met his death while shoveling coal in the boiler room. The rocking of the boat caused the coal, which was piled to a great height, to fall upon him and he was instantly killed.

The body was buried at sea on Thursday afternoon at 2:30. In the message, the captain of the boat stated that they had no facilities on board for taking care of the body and it would be impossible to return it to his home in New Wilmington.

The freighter after leaving Glasgow was going to Germany and expected to return to the United States in about three months.

A brief memorial service will be conducted Sunday morning in the United Presbyterian church at New Wilmington, of which Mr. Morse was a member.

Mills Answers Murder Charge With Statement

"I Would Have Been A Fool To Commit Crime", Says Husband Of Slain Choir Singer

HAS ALIBI AS TO HIS WHEREABOUTS

(International News Service)

SQMERVILLE, N. J., Dec. 3.—"I would have been a fool to commit a crime like that."

This was the reply today of James Mills, husband of the slain Eleanor Mills, to the intimation of Robert H. McCarter, senior counsel for the defense, that Mills might have killed his wife and the Rev. Edward W. Hall. McCarter made the inferential charge in his summation to the jury.

"I'm not worried about the charge at all," said Mills. "I know in my heart there is no truth in it. My conscience is clear.

"I never suspected the relations that existed between my wife and Rev. Hall. If I had suspected, I would have done nothing more than to go to Mr. Hall and remonstrate with him.

"If that wouldn't have done any good, I would have taken it up with the church vestry, or the bishop, but kill him—No!"

Mills said that on the night of the murder he was making boxes on the back porch of his home in New Brunswick. Then he went to the front porch where he chatted with Mrs. Frank Dank and Mr. and Mrs. John Kelly. Kelly left, he said, to take the 10:05 p. m. trolley for South Amboy.

The time of the murder has been fixed at 10:20 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Blanchard and nephew, Edward Lloyd of Allen street, are spending the weekend at the home of Mrs. H. W. Clearwater of Cleveland, O.

FATHER DISCREDITS SON AS MURDERER

Girl's Body Found Buried, Covered With Thin Coating Of Dried Clay

(International News Service)

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, Wis. Dec. 3.—While authorities were preparing today to conduct a post mortem examination on the body of Clara Dorothy Olson, 22, a nationwide search was begun for Erdman Sanford, Olson, 18, her alleged slayer, for whom a murder warrant has been issued. Olson is a wealthy Gale College student.

Meanwhile Sheriff Harry Sherwood, of Crawford county, was speeding toward Chicago, enroute to Dwight, Ill., to view a youth held there who is said to answer the description of Olson.

The body of Clara, covered with a thin, sarcophagus-like coating of dried clay, lies in a local undertaking room. It is fully clothed—in the same new blue silk dress, the new red sweater, and the grey coat she had purchased for her tryst with Erdman that fatal evening of September 9. They were to have been her wedding garments.

Grim-faced farmers filed into the city today, all eager and waiting to hear the report of the autopsy. Awe and a certain vague fear was written upon their faces. They are unused to tragedy. Death in Crawford county usually is a natural act of God. Here they had the awful spectacle of a swift and merciless murder.

Youth Returns To School

Erdman, Gale College student and son of a wealthy tobacco planter, had been Clara's sweetheart for two years. It was generally believed here they were engaged to be married. So when the young couple disappeared September 9, they were thought to have PITTSBURGH, Dec. 3.—Another curious crowd, comprised mostly of men, jammed Federal Judge W. H. S. No matter the hour or how they feel, there's one thing reporters know, it's this, though the times are exciting and tense, the paper must always go. They may not know when a story will break, or when their labors are through, but they know on an afternoon sheet, the dead line is usually two. And after that there is never a chance of getting a story on, for the forms are locked and the lead is set, and the paper is always "gone". No matter the weather inside or out, it may rain, it may hail, it may snow, he knows that as sure as night will come, the papers will always go. And up until two he's a busy bee, and a bear and a hustling pup, for at two o'clock, all the copy he has, must always and surely be "up". Though he loafs a bit in the afternoon, or to a movie may go, or the weather is forty, just like today, the paper must always go.

Good Addresses Feature Meeting In Nazarene Church

Interest And Enthusiasm Feature Every Session—Officers To be Elected

Rev. J. B. Chapman of Kansas City, Mo., delivered the sermon at the annual meeting of the Preachers convention of the Pittsburgh district, Thursday evening in the Church of the Nazarene of this city.

The church was crowded to the doors and much interest and enthusiasm were manifested.

Preceding the sermon the song service was led by Rev. Ralph Schuman formerly of Boston, Mass., now of California, Pa. A special duet number was given by Rev. Schuman and Mrs. Benedum of East Liverpool, O.

Today is being observed as Young People's day. Dr. Chapman gave a stirring address on "The Preacher and his Message." Other interesting talks were given. Rev. D. D. Palmer of Warren, O., spoke on "The Young People's Society in Action." Rev. H. F. Heinlein of West Virginia, discussed "The District Society in Action." Rev. G. Howard Rowe, pastor of the local church, spoke on "A Foregleam of the N. Y. P. S."

At the afternoon session Dr. F. M. Messenger of Chicago, Ill., delivered an instructive address on "Revelation." Election of new officers was a feature of the services late this afternoon.

Dr. Chapman will sepak again this evening.

Pardon Board To Hear Appeal Of Oldest Prisoner

(International News Service)

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 4.—When the State Pardon Board meets on December 15, it will hear the application of Allen Braithwaite, 79, of East Huntingdon township, believed to be the oldest prisoner in the Western Penitentiary.

Braithwaite was incarcerated in 1922 after being convicted on a second degree murder charge in connection with the mysterious death of his wife, Mary Anne Braithwaite. He steadfastly professed innocence, claiming that robbers killed his wife, but the state obtained his conviction on circumstantial evidence.

Friends of the prisoner are endeavoring to obtain his release because of his advanced age. He has served four years of a sentence of from eight to sixteen years.

MAKING PROGRESS OVER SNOW FIELDS; ESKIMO WITH HIM

tle, and his eyes twinkled as if it were a very good joke—that he might be afraid.

"Did you have any dogs of your own," I asked him.

Eskimo Drives Dogs

"No; but my father lets me drive his dogs. I drive"—here he considered for some moments, as if to be sure of his facts—"I drive ten dogs. One day I drove the dogs, and they saw a fox, and they ran away, very fast—I could not hold them. Then the sled hit against a big piece of ice—big as a house—and tipped over, and I was thrown out.

"Did the dogs get away then?"

"No; the ice held the sled, so the dogs could not run anymore and my father came and caught them."

"Tell me about the games you play away up there in Alaska," I asked.

"The boys play with harpoons," answered Nuctooh.

"What do you mean? Did you spear anything?"

"No; they are too heavy; they are for the men. We just play spear."

"What else?"

"We play hide-and-seek over the snow in the winter. We hide behind the big pieces of ice. But we always have to watch or the bears might come and get us. We always have four boys together, so some can call if the bears come; one boy is never alone. The bears are white like the ice, and we do not see them and they come softly."

"But isn't it too dark in the winter for you to play out in the snow?"

"Oh, no; it was not so dark. We have the moon and the stars; and the snow makes it light, too."

"Weren't you cold?"

"Only my cheeks—they were cold."

"Did your father and the other men hunt those bears that you were always looking out for?"

His eyes brightened and his face lighted up as he answered, "Oh, yes! They spear the bears in the back with harpoons.

"Once the men were spearing a walrus, with a long rope tied to the harpoon. One man got caught in the rope, and the walrus jerked him into the water, and we never could find him."

"Did you see that?"

"Yes, I was in the kayak" (the little Eskimo boat.)

"Tell me what kind of a house you live in, Nuctooh?"

"Stone houses. In the summer they make the stone houses to live in in the winter. And when we move away in the winter we live in snow houses."

"And in the summer?"

He hesitated for a word, then he said, "Skins."

"Tents?" I suggested.

"Oh, yes," smiling; "tents."

"Well, what did you wear that kept you so warm, all except your cheeks?"

"This"—pointing to the trousers—"bearskin." "This—the coat—foxskin, sometimes sealskin."

"What did you wear in summer?"

"Bird skins."

I thought I must have misunderstood him.

"Bird-skins," I repeated. "Are you sure, Nuctooh?"

"Yes," he said positively, and nodding his head. "Skins of birds, so big." He held his hands about a foot apart.

"But it must take a great many birds to furnish skins for all the people."

"Hundreds," he answered with that winning smile. "The birds fly overhead, very thick. You throw up a stone, and one, two birds sure to fall. Throw a big stick, and four come down."

"Then the skins must be sewed together to make the clothes; who does that?"

"The ladies," he answered at once.

At this point little Nuctooh started to nod and pulling a reindeer blanket about him, I snuggled him in the warm bottom of the sleigh and giving the reindeer more rein we struck a stride that kept us ahead of the cold wind.

Just then we passed out of Alaska and entered Canada. It will not be long now, boys and girls until we roll into New Castle with whips cracking, sleigh-bells ringing and cheeks glowing from our wonderful ride.

You can't tell. They promised us the passing era of straight tickets would be followed by one of straight candidates.

Town Talk

Mrs. Della V. Gurgiolo, who conducts the Orange Shop at 124 West Washington street, has a unique decoration in her place of business that is attracting considerable attention.

It is a grapevine, part of which is more than fifty years old, which she fashioned and put up for display purposes.

Taking some natural bare grapevine, she fashioned green leaves of material at hand. Then here and there are bunches of lucious looking blue grapes.

These grapes were fashioned into bunches and colored more than fifty years ago by her grand mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Ace, of the Wilmington road, who will be remembered by many of the older residents of the city. The "grapes" in this case were acorns of what is kinown as Black Oak trees, which Mrs. Ace gathered in the vicinity of her home, which was near the present entrance of the New Castle Field Club.

Charles Smalley, sensational mouth organ player, reported to The News this morning that Nicholas C. Haritos who conducts a place of business on the public square, has a large U. S. penny which was coined in 1814. He found the penny some years ago. The souvenir was recalled today as the result of a report of finding a penny of this nature near Punxsutawney, buried two feet in the ground.

Tuberculosis seals which were mailed out to several hundred New Castle citizens a week or more ago are being purchased in large numbers and are making their appearance on hundreds of letters being mailed in New Castle. Indications are excellent for the sale of the quota of stamps alotted to New Castle and Lawrence county.

Kilkenny cats; the defendants have been dramatically pointed out in court as members of the murder squad that invaded De Russey's lane on the fatal night, and even the jury itself has been charged with irregularities sufficiently distressing to the prosecution to warrant a motion for a mistrial.

Indicate Not Guilty

Nearly everybody who has followed the case is anticipating a verdict of not guilty. Simpson himself virtually tossed in the towel the other day in making his motion for a mistrial when he declared the case might as well have been tried before 12 trees as the present jury.

Simpson declares, however, that if the jury acquits he will appear before the supreme court in Trenton and ask for a foreign jury to try the same defendants on the charge of murdering Rev. Hall. They are now on trial on the indictment charging the murder of Mrs. Mills.

Simpson Sums Up

COURTHOUSE, SOMERVILLE, N. J., Dec. 3.—Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson began his summation to the jury in the Hall-Mills trial at 10:20 this morning by praising the fathers of the community of Somerset county and the jury.

"The whole state of New Jersey owes you a debt of gratitude for listening over such a long period to the evidence in this case", he declared.

"This murder", said Simpson, "happened four years ago, and for four years there was no indictment. Did you ever hear of such a thing—no indictments for four years?"

Simpson then referred to the investigation of the murder four years ago and pointed out what he termed a "laxity" of the authorities.

"Willie and Henry Stevens made statements at that time, but the statements were never signed", he declared. "It became necessary to obtain statements from these men. The case was not properly chloroformed and something had to be done.

Justice Lynched

"In 1922 Mrs. Gibson was talked to by the authorities. She told them her story. But what did they do? They laid it over. Justice was lynched."

Simpson's voice rose and he pounded on the table as he made this declaration.

Simpson called Senator Clarence E. Case's contention that Mrs. Gibson might have committed the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills as "foolish".

"It was a damnably silly statement", cried Simpson.

"You might just as well have said that Mrs. Gibson's mule, Jennie, committed the murder."

A note of irony crept into Simpson's voice as he said:

"They said that Mrs. Gibson was once in a circus. I suppose she taught Jennie, the mule, to shoot off a .32-caliber revolver."

Accuses Mrs. Hall

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Dec. 3.—Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall was referred to as "a cold-blooded murderess" by Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson in his impassioned summation to the jury in the Hall-Mills case today. He declared she and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, killed the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills during a row in De Russey's lane on that night of September 14, 1922.

"That fatal night Mrs. Hall may have had no idea of murder," said Simpson. "She simply was going to the lane to confront them with the love they had exchanged and say, 'My dear, this has to stop'.

"But there was a row. I don't know what happened, exactly. Perhaps it was done with Hall's revolver. And her brothers were there with her.

"I don't say this woman on trial committed the murder herself, but she was there."

Mrs. Hall, attired in black and very pale, sat between her two brothers and regarded the prosecutor coldly. Not once did she change expression.

G. O. P. LEADERS FIGHT TO RETAIN SENATE MAJORITY

four incoming Democratic senators. If the right of Smith and Vare to take their seats is challenged, the Republican leaders decided, similar challenges will be levelled at enough incoming Democrats to insure Republican control of the senate.

Unless an agreement is reached shortly permitting both Vare and Smith to be seated—at least long enough to help the Republicans organize the senate—the next six weeks will witness the launching of a series of election contests against Democrats. Among those most likely to face these contests are Senators Edwin S. Broussard, of Louisiana, Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, and Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina. An old contest may be revived at the same time against Senator Lawrence D. Tyson, of Tennessee, who was elected in 1924.

Probe Of South.

The Republicans similarly will give attention to the demand of M. C. Birmingham, a Burkett, Neb., citizen, who memorialized the senate to initiate investigations into every senatorial election in the south this year, charging the 'free use of shotguns" had destroyed the Republican form of government in these states. It has been no secret in congressional circles that the leaders of negro movements are demanding more action by the Republican party toward protecting their race in southern states and the filing of contests against these southern senators might easily "kill two birds with one stone".

This program of action was agreed upon following a series of conferences between Republican leaders. One of the conferences was attended by Vare himself with his campaign manager, Harry Mackey of Philadelphia. Vare told the Republican leaders then that he would not only fight any effort to bar him from the senate but would be ready to defend himself against any contest to unseat him. The Republican spokesmen, in turn, pledged him support in getting into the senate but reserved decision on whether they would support him when his election is contested.

The seating of both Vare and Smith, even for a day, will insure Republican control of the new senate and for this reason, the administration leaders are rallying to their support. All this, of course, has nothing to do with the contests to unseat them later. An International News Service poll already has demonstrated both will be ousted, probably by a two to one vote of the senate.

The Democrats have not yet decided on a definite program. A series of minority conferences will be held after congress convenes to determine a course of action and there are indications the ultimate decision will be to permit the seating of both men and then to concentrate on ousting them.

HOLD DETECTIVES FOR COURT TRIAL ON LIQUOR CHARGE

the principal witness for the commonwealth, in the course of his testimony, alleged that Courtney, whom he knew as Ben, had offered him as much as $1,000 if he would place a case of whiskey in the possession of Attorney M. J. Kraus. He also asserted that he had been offered from $200 to $500, if he would occomplish the same thing with regard to Ben G. Swick, former burgess of Ellwood City, and the Elks Club of that city.

The hearing was held at three o'clock and the interested spectators, mostly from Ellwood City, crowded the court room of Alderman Marshall to capacity, overflowing into the hallways adjoining the place.

Witnesses Heard

The witnesses heard were W. B. Gray, former chief of police of Ellwood City, Frank S. Blackburn, Ben G. Swick, former burgess of Ellwood City, and W. C. Bower.

W. B. Gray, former chief of the Ellwood City police, was the first witness called. After explaining that he had not been in that position for six or seven months, he stated that he knew W. J. Courtney and Ernest Ester, the defendants, identifying them as the defendants in the court room. He stated that he had known Courtney by the name of Ben. He told of the arrest of Ester and another man named Coates as suspicious characters and Courtney as the man who got them out.

According to former chief Gray, he was seated at the police station in Ellwood City about eleven o'clock at night on the evening of July 6, when Courtney and Frank Blackburn came along. The latter motioned for him to come out and informed him, when he came out, that the other gentleman had a present for him. Blackburn went on up to mail some letters at Lawrence avenue and Sixth street. Gray told Courtney to place the present in the ladies cell of the station. He stayed outside across the street, while this was being done.

Finds Liquor

Later he went in and found two pint bottles of liquor in the cell, which he determined by smelling to be wiskey. He put it in No. 7 locker at the station for a day or two, dating and labeling it, then took them home. He told no one about it, until the day ofter he was discharged as chief of police, when County Detective George Kennedy came to his home on another matter. He told him and was advised to keep the liquor until Kennedy called for it, which he did, turning it over to the latter a few days ago. He then went into detail on how Ester and Coates were arrested and held in the city jail for about two days, when unable to produce ownership papers for the machine in which they were arrested.

On cross-examination, Gray went into detail on the alleged gift of liquor from Courtney and explained that he had told no one about it, because he knew how things were going and thought it best not to have too many in his confidence. Questioned as to whether this whiskey had anything to do with his discharge, he said he thought not.

He said that Burgess D. A. Evans at a hearing before the police committee, had stated that his discharge was for the reason that he was too close to the whiskey runners and had his men (members of the force) placed so that the whiskey runners could operate safely. He said he learned later that Ester and Coates were employed by Burgess Evans but was unable to remember who told him.

Blackburn Testifies

Frank S. Blackburn testified that he knew both Courtney and Ester and that the first he knew of them was when he was called to pull in their car some time in June.

He alleged that they left four cases of liquor on the floor of the second story of his garage on July 7, when they came in to have their brakes adjusted. There excuse was that they were being watched. They said they would be back. Blackburn stated that he realized he was in bad at the time if it was found there and went out and looked for an officer, but finding none, determined to place it in some safer place.

They returned later the same day and he purchased the liquor for $185, although Courtney, he alleged, wanted $200. That evening, they returned again and offered him his money back and more also if he would place a case each with Attorney M. J. Kraus, Ben G. Swick and at the Elks club. They said, he alleged, that they would give him a thousand dollars if he placed one with Attorney Kraus, and from $200 to $500 if he could place one each with Swick and the Elk's club.

Hides Liquor

He took the liquor and placed it in the coal cellar of his home. It was not found when his place was raided on July 23, he said on cross-examination. He told no one about it until after his place was raided. Then he told his attorney former Judge S. P. Emery and on his advice, he poured out the liquor and destroyed the bottles.

He also told of the visit to Chief Gray with Courtney, also a visit to the office of Ben G. Swick. He denied that he had had any conference in Ellwood City or the district attorney's office, previous to the hearing concerning the matter. He stated that the whiskey was not of a very good grade.

Ben G. Swick testified to meeting Courtney at his office on July 7, the latter being brought there by Blackburn. Courtney, he said, had spoken to him about his bootlegging activities and asked his assistance in getting some into the Eagles club. They had sampled a pint bottle and the balance was left with him and that was what was found in his safe when the place was raided July 23. On cross-examination, when questioned as to why he had not informed the police about Courtney, he said, he was in the realestate business and not the police business. W. C. Bower was the final witness called. He conducts a business on North street, Ellwood City, he said. He told of being given a drink by a certain party, which he thought was not bad at all. He made inquiry and some time after the fourth of July Courtney and Ester visited his place from whom he ordered a case of twenty-four pints for $55. It was delivered and he paid Ester $55. He went to Mt. Gretna camp July 21 and took what was left with him.

They gave him some Tom Moore labels, so that he could resell it, he alleges they told him, if he wanted to. Courtney returned in three or four days and wanted to sell him a carload, guaranteeing shipment from Mexico or Canada and delivery at $30 a case. He didn't buy liquor to sell, he explained to the court, merely desiring it to drink and treat his friends, who might be thirsty.

At the conclusion of his testimony, the district attorney asked that the defendants be held. Alderman Marshall then announced that Courtney and Ester were held for the December term of court on charges of violating the Snyder Act and under $1,500 bail each, which was furnished by John Evans, councilman of Ellwood City.

HUNTERS NAB SEVEN HEFTY CATFISH WITH BAREHANDS ON FARM

GALLIPOLIS, Ohio, Dec. 3.—While hunting in the back water from the Ohio river on the Starkey Foulk farm, near here, seven stranded catfish, weighing from 15 to 20 pounds each, were captured bare handed by Samuel Medley and Bert Brumfield. The fish were stranded during the recent high water.

SEARCH STARTS FOR YOUTH IN GIRL'S MURDER

eloped. But Erdman returned to his classes at Gale College two weeks later. The girl did not return. When her father asked Erdman what had become of her, he said she would "show up soon."

Erdman then disappeared again and has not been seen since. Last Monday the girl's father had a warrant sworn out for Erdman's arrest, charging murder. The girl's father, Christ Olson, said he dreamed his daughter was dead. Without any proof that murder had been committed, the warrant was issued, and the search begun.

Yesterday the girl's body was found, buried on Battle Ridge, not far from the spot where her father said the dream vision foretold.

Albert Olson, Erdman's father, said he had received a letter from his son, postmarked this city, in which Erdman stated he "would return home only in a coffin."

Olson when informed of the finding of the girl's body, said:

"It looks bad, I'll admit. But I'm confident that my son did not do this. How could he? He came home from a dance in Seneca the night of September 9, made himself a lunch, played with the radio and then went to bed. He was asleep in a few minutes. Erdman had nothing to do with the murder."

CURIOUS CROWD HEARS TESTIMONY OF ANNE CALDWELL

she said she lived at a hotel for about two weeks and then took an apartment where she received many love letters from "Jack".

"Mr. Hubbard paid $1800 for this apartment?" Marshall asked.

"No, he paid $1700 for it," Miss Caldwell replied.

"You say you became engaged to Mr. Hubbard in January, 1922?" he asked. Miss Caldwell replied in the affirmative.

The crowd broke into laughter when Miss Caldwell at Marshall's request named two plays in which she appeared on the stage. She said they were "Experience" and the "Gold Digger."

This brought a vigorous protest from Miss Caldwell's attorney. Judge Thompson sustained the objection, ruling that "if the plays were disreputable the testimony might be allowed."

Make New Effort To Secure Freedom For H. S. New, Jr.

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 3.—A new movement was launched here today to gain freedom for Harry S. New, Jr., son of the Postmaster General Harry S. New, now in San Quentin prison for the alleged murder of his former sweetheart, Freda J. Lesser.

Pretty Edna Clancy, Los Angeles business woman, and half sister of young New, admitted she was making another effort to have Governor Friend W. Richardson pardon her half-brother.

"I have never given up hope that someday I would free Harry of the crime of which I believe him innocent," Miss Clancy declared.

Negro Prisoners Gain Freedom In Fayette County

(International News Service)

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 3.—Three negroes escaped from guards at the Fayette county prison camp at Haydentown, near here, today, and fled into the mountains.

The negroes, all of whom were assigned to work in the store quarries, slipped out of the camp unobserved, and were believed to have had ample time to hide in the mountains before search was instituted.

The men, Henry Rice, Edward Spain and Albert Foultz, all southerners, were serving time on charges of transporting liquor and carrying concealed weapons.

With today's trio, ten prisoners in all have escaped from the camp since its institution last spring.

Michigan Woods Are Snow Blocked

(International News Service)

ISHPEMING, Mich., Dec. 3.—Many hunters who drove their automobiles into the woods have been forced to abandon the snowed-in cars until spring. A few have hired tractors to pull the machines out. All roads leading into the woods in this vicinity are blocked with snow.

HE CAN PAY CASH

DECLINE and fall of the United States has been predicted a multitude of times, by as many false prophets and for as many unfounded reasons. To the list must be added Senator Couzens, of Michigan, and his own cause of ruination—the installment plan.

The Gentleman from Michigan believes the partial payment of merchandising is "stultifying initiative, ambition and energy to an extent yet unrealized" (presumably to all but himself) and expresses the fervid hope that business men, bankers and manufacturers will see the handwriting on the wall before it is too late.

What Senator Couzens has in mind in his general indictment is not, as a matter of fact, installment selling, but the abuses attending that practice, abuses which business men and bankers already recognize and are overcoming.

It is difficult to follow his argument that "paying out of income" stultifies initiative, ambition and energy. Have not the most conservative of men and women always preached that debt is the best teacher of thrift?

The report of the economic policy commission of the American Bankers' Association constitutes a dignified and thorough rebuke to those who, like Senator Couzens, talk so profoundly and so prophetically of the evil of installment buying when what they really mean is minor sores on the otherwise healthy body of the system, such as installment swindling through excessive charges for credit, overexpansion of credit and over-encumbering of income.

NEARLY HALF MILLION ALIENS IN YEAR

THOSE persons who imagine that our new immigration laws have practically halted the tide of newcomers to the United States will be interested in knowing that during the fiscal year of 1926 no less than 496,106 aliens were admitted within our gates. It should be pointed out, however, that nearly 200,000 of these come under the head of non-immigrants, which includes students, temporary visitors who come here for business or pleasure, and natives of countries like Canada and Mexico. A decade or so ago immigrants were arriving in excess of a million a year, and if the bars had not been raised we would surely be now receiving more than we could assimilate.

But the most important feature of the annual report of Secretary Davis is the statement that only six-tenths of one per cent of those arriving were barred on their arrival in this country. When we remember that 25,390 immigrants were debarred in 1925, and that 9,495 were deported, the contrast with this year is very gratifying. The new quota system did not work smoothly at first, and there were admittedly many cases which did injustice to some who reached our ports after long journeys only to have the door closed in their faces. But education and intelligent administration have now helped to bring about a much desired reform in this respect.

Mr. Davis says that the indiscriminate flow of immigration has been stemmed by a careful selection of aliens at the ports of embarkation. During the year the extension of the service to Continental Europe has performed wonders. Technical advisers on immigration questions have been assigned to Great Britain, Belgium, the Netherlands, Poland, Germany, Norway, Denmark and Sweden. Supervision and inspection at these ports have also helped to make a more even flow during the year instead of the spasmodic rushes which formerly caused so much trouble. We have no quota for countries of this hemisphere, and this accounts for the large numbers which come here from Mexico and Canada. In considering the subject generally we must also take into account the fact that 65,507 aliens returned to Europe during the last fiscal year.

Our immigration policy is improving, and while there may be flaws in it, the principle which it embodies is making it pretty generally accepted by the mass of the people.

LAUGHING AT DANGER

THAT man is a venturesome, daring and courageous being witness him as he runs the gamut of daily life. It is a trait that comes to him naturally instinctively. He needs no provocation to urge him to deeds of daring nor can he be deterred by the cautious fears of the timid members of the species.

It is known that all animals experence the sensation of fear and that all fear is based on a premonition of bodily harm or death, but, although this sensation is strongest in man, man is most prone to court it.

In spite of thousands of fatalities annually men, women and children daily climb perilous crags, tempt the deeps in flimsy craft, take to the air, participate in dangerous sports, speed in automobiles and otherwise deport themselves as though they would laugh at death.

We know that man loves life and fears death. We also know that he momentarily tosses the dice with the grim reaper and thinks nothing of the experience. The only explanation for this seeming paradox is the fact that the spark of eternal hope is stronger in the human mind than either his fear of death or his love of the risk that thrills. Sometimes our hope leads us into disastrous over-confidence. A little caution is good for all men.

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 4:34. Sun rises tomorrow 7:08.

The Centennial at Philadelphia is practically closed now. It carries a debt of over five million dollars and the taxpayers of the City of Brotherly Love will have something concrete to remember the Centennial by. It was a show worth seeing.

The football stars in an Ohio college who were disqualified from intercollegiate sports because of their low scholastic standing got mad and left the college and went home. Colleges will have to be careful how they treat those athletic boys.

One of the 30 reasons offered by a lady at Duquesne, Pa., was that her husband warned her that he had broken mules and that he would also break her into strengthening her love for him. It looks as if he will have to associate with the mules after this.

Light wine and beer will return cheerfully, reassures a New York editor. Seems like a voice from the world of spirits.

It is sad to watch the taximeter, but it's fun to watch the fenders crumple and feel neutral.

It is charged that some of the jurors in the Hall-Mills murder trial in New Jersey slept peacefully during the giving of some of the testimony. We have had cases in court when we know if the entire jury had ben asleep during the whole trial they could have rendered a more intelligent verdict at least as far as we were concerned.

Radi "um" costs $10,000 an ounce, but rad "io" you can get for next to nothing.

Burglars broke into a dog store in Chicago and stole several watch dogs that were guaranteed to keep burglars away. Maybe they were only pups yet.

When airplanes fly regularly from New York to San Francisco in one day we won't be in this part of the country cognizant of anything but the "zip."

Police have been stationed in various places on Lake Erie to keep home brewers from throwing their mash into the lake. Seems to us arresting those birds might stop some of them from poluting the pure waters of the lake for a time at least.

We hear reports that women are now smoking pipes. Well personally we are glad they are cutting out the cigs. Nothing can be worse.

There is no way of thwarting ambition when it is backed by grim determination. We have just heard of one chap who "worked his way through college" playing poker.

Most everybody in Lawrence county and from the adjoining counties will be in New Castle on Friday, December 10 when the reindeer and eskimos and Santy Claus will be in the city. It will be the greatest day ever known in New Castle. They will be here all day long and will have a big parade and everything.

Science tries to find out where we came from and religion whither we are going.

The deer shooting season is on in Pennsylvania and thousands of hunters are roaming around in some counties trying to plink a poor innocent little deer. Quite a few humans always get plinked also by some gun lugging lunkheads who cannot tell a human from some wild animal.

Overwork may not kill a man but it will make his output less valuable.

It looks as if the king of Roumania put on a very sick stunt just to scare his wife into rushing home. Kings are just like other humans when their wives are away having a big time.

We have noticed that those people who hardly, if ever, contribute anything to the public welfare are always the first to try to make a profit out of any project after the money has been furnished for them to wrangle over in order to make sales of their products. Fine patriots!

An independent Democrat—whatever that may be—was defeated for congress in Illinois. This baby not only shaves himself but also cuts his own hair. Just think of the figure he would cut in Washington when it comes to spending public money!

Newspaper Not Public Utility.

A newspaper is not duty bound to print anything that it doesn't want to print. There is no rule, says the Burlington, N. J., Enterprise that requires it to print something of absolutely no news value just because somebody wants it printed. It is not obliged to effusively laud some person where laudation is not earned, nor to lambast some individual where adverse criticism is not deserved.

It is not printed for the purpose of satisfying selfish motives. There is not the remotest reason why it should give away its space to somebody who is running something for monetary benefit.

The mission of a newspaper is to print news of general interest. Advertising is not news. Something concerning a single individual is not news. An article skining some private enemy or opponent is not news.

True it is that a newspaper gives away much, especially where charity is concerned but it does not follow that the publisher should adopt charity as an established custom and open the door freely to all comers.

Space is the only thing that a newspaper has to sell and the publisher who gives it away is no wiser than the merchant who gives away a hat or a suit of clothes to the man who comes into his store and asks for them.

A Wisconsin murderer has served 54 years in prison because he was too stubborn to ask for a pardon. Parole boards should take notice of this case mentally resolve that it will never happen again.

The psychology class at the University of Chicago has succeeded in teaching a bunch of white mice to turn to the right. It is the hope that in time the same lesson can be taught sidewalk shoppers.

At last Canada has appointed an envoy to the United States and his presence will prevent annexation without the Canadians knowing about it, as some British has feared.

Yale has just found out how to make metal foils less than a millionth of an inch thick. It is presumed that a ham slicer in a sandwich shop showed them the way.

Do your Christmas shopping early and we might complete the golden motto to do it in New Castle. Money spent at home stays at home and will come back to you but once it gets away there's no telling where it will go before you get a smell of it again.

December 1 the largest dividend in the history of the Pennsylvania railroad was paid. It took 38 large mail sacks to hold the dividend checks. That is the kind of news that is fit to read and indicates that the prosperity of the country is really and truly sound at present.

Apparently convinced that there is not enough holidays in the year a man in New York has proposed a National holiday for Fathers and Sons and Mothers and Daughters. In a few years time the working days of the week will be marked in red on calendars instead of the loafing days.

That New York woman who swam from Albany to New York City all bound round with tallow says she will enter that Catalina marathon in January if she is allowed to swim without a bathing suit. She claims that a bathing suit is a hindrance to speed. That might hold true in the water but on the beach the bathing suits are the cause of some very fast work.

Grover Cleveland Bergdoll reports that he is ready to come home and face the music for slacking during the war. Here is one case where judges and juries, prison officials and pardon boards ought to be as hard as nails.

You can always tell a man born in town. He thinks he could make money raising chickens.

Some of the owners of autos which are recovered by the police after they have been stolen beef like the Old Nick because they are asked to pay for the gasoline it took to bring their cars home. Some of these owners go further than that—they think they ought to be reimbursed for the time the car has been used by the auto thieves.

After hunting through the deer season and coming home safely without a back full of shot a man ought to feel reasonably safe on a trip to Chicago.

If France can just contrive to get a great big bunch of Legionnaires to Paris next summer and then collect all the coin they can from them the payment of the French war debt ought to be a relatively easy matter.

The reason most people can't reduce is because they haven't the will power enough to let the vituals alone when they are on the table before them. It takes coal to feed the furnace to get heat and it takes grub to feed the fat and keep it coming.

If the refusal of the demand for mistrial means that the Hall-Mills case will not be tried again everyone will shout "Amen" to the judge's decision.

He—"Ah I wish I had some of the cakes my mother used to bake for me!"

She—"And I wish I had some of the dresses my father used to buy for me!"

"Why didn't you put this watermelon in the ice box as I told you, Mary?"

"I did, mum."

"But it isn't cold."

"No mum. How could it be? I had to take the ice out to get it in."

A well-known diamond called "The Golden Dawn" for its brilliant yellowish tint sold at auction for only $24,750, half its appraised value. It was bought by the Aga Khan, wealthy Indian prince, who races horses and had a mortgage on the diamond.

That Indian is said also to have a mortgage on the credulity of many coreligionists. That mortgage pays well, better than racing or diamonds.

The low price of the diamond is attributed to dealers' worry about recent diamond discoveries in South Africa. But don't throw away your diamonds.

Congress thinks the money would be better in the pork barrel than in the pockets of payers.

There is demand for more public buildings.

And there is the farm bloc. It says that if the government has money to burn, it should spend some on solving farm problems, and cotton men want to help to hold up cotton.

Dr. Crandon, well known spiritualist, says spirit messages from Houdini, the magician, and Valentino, the actor, are fakes.

"A person must be dead four or five years before he can communicate with us. We learn this from spirits with whom we have been in touch."

Physicists wonder where those spirits are when they talk. If they are on one of the distant stars, light which travels 186,000 miles a second would take a million years to get here; and sound, as we know travels more slowly than light, 331 meters a second against 186,000 miles a second. If Houdini and Valentino, on some distant star, began talking loud enough for their voices to reach us, their words wouldn't reach the earth in time to be heard by our descendants 500,000,000 years from now.

Captain Mabbutt, manager of Dempsey's training, says the champion fighter was drugged with poison in his coffee. That is possible. Prize fighting is not 100 per cent ethical.

But there is a drug that successful prize fighters absorb after they get the championship that is potent, apart from chemistry. Its ingredients include: too much money, self-indulgence, flattery. They all take these drugs and are all beaten by them in the end. And then there is father time; he drugs and knocks out all of us.

While this richest country, which solemnly believes that it won the war, tries to fly and can't the defeated German nation goes as far ahead of us in engineering as it was in chemistry before the war started.

A German engineer is at work on a superplane to carry 10,000-horsepower engines, ten propellers, 130 passengers, a crew of twenty-five and cross the Atlantic in thirty-six hours.

Merely hearing about that makes us dizzy in this country.

Henry Ford, instead of relying on Liberty motors, as in his first flying machines, is making experimental engines, which include a 200-h. p. motor cooled by water. He is said to have found air cooling a failure.

Cooling processes ought to be helped by great altitude. Someone will find the right air cooler, and Ford undoubtedly will keep on until he builds the right engine. That's the important thing.

Investigation of watchmen on Long Island grade crossings found eighteen of them asleep. Fourteen "watchers" are found peaceably slumbering on Staten Island. The human is uncertain—more reason for persuading railroads to use devices that do not go to sleep.

The best is the raised or sunken grade crossing. A good one would be a sharp right angle turn in the road before every grade crossing, compelling drivers to stop and think. Swinging red lights and ringing bells help.

The public should have, but hasn't, intelligence enough not to get run over—and not to depend on automatic signals or sleepy watchmen.

Wise men quarrel over this question foolishly. Is it correct to say "a tremendous area in which IS produced two-thirds of the oats, half the corn of the country?" Somebody in the University of Chicago says that "is" is the right word to use. To that professor grammar must be like music—a matter of taste.

Your twelve-year-old boy will tell you "two-thirds of the oats, half the corn ARE produced—not IS produced.

NIGHT SCHOOLS

Did you ever think of the vast pains to which the community goes not only in providing an education for all children in the public schools, but in giving training to those who cannot attend the public schools through the means of night schools?

There they teach various trades, home making for women, and English for the foreign born.

A very large force of teachers has been organized for these schools for this season in New York City. All the night schools operate under the Regents' regulations and the night courses duplicate the daytime high school courses.

One who wants to train for the job of clerk or secretary can find opportunity here.

It has been pretty well demonstrated that the man or woman who is decidedly most out of luck in the United States is the one who has no training.

Such a one in New York has only himself to blame, for high schools are everywhere.

The youth who is compelled to leave school before graduation can finish his course at night and get his diploma just the same.

The courses in the evening high schools offer a complete curriculum that leads to academic diplomas and entrance into college.

The requirements and standards are about the same as in the day school.

Every facility for studying languages, American history, mathematics and the sciences are offered.

By application to the school a special prospectus may be obtained.

Many a youth is impatient to get to work and make money, but there is nothing better than one may do with his years between eighteen and twenty-five than to devote them to proper training.

When he finally goes to work his efforts will be more effective.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE OLD HAT

Today as I was starting out
The lady that I write about
Stood at the door as if to chat,
Then handed me an old-time hat,
A bonnet I had worn, I know,
The first time several years ago;
"Now get this cleaned," she said to me,
"And just as good as new 'twill be."

I chuckled as I carried down
That old fedora, rusty brown.
I chuckled, living that scene o'er,
The good wife standing at the door,
As earnest as a wife can be,
Handing that worn-out lid to me,
And saying: "Have this cleaned, my dear,
'Twill serve you for another year."

Let's twist the scene around and see
What would occur if I should be Prompted to try a trick like that
And hand to her an ancient hat,
A bonnet of vintage rare,
Saying: "It's good enough to wear.
Just have this blocked and cleaned, my dear,
'Twill serve you for another year."

I fancy there the fur would fly
If such a trick I dared to try.
She'd wither me with looks of scorn
And spoil another autumn morn.
But let it drop. A man and wife
Have different views of hats and life,
And meekly to the Greek I went
And had it cleaned—and she's content.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

THINK THIS OVER.

Some sort of Farm Legislation will probably be eventually enacted by the Congress of the United States. There will be many remedies suggested, all of them probably not economical. The Members of Congress are usually legislating for political reasons, to build their home fences stronger, without thought of what the real result of the Legislation will be. Some times it is to placate fanatics, more often it is to do something they think will help their constituents, event though they know it will hurt the Nation at large.

Ex-Senator Meredith has suggested a plan which I believe is original. I think no Government ever attempted a proposition like it before. It might be called an Insurance Plan. If enacted into Legislation, it would do less harm than any law yet suggested. It might do some good. He says that the price at which a commodity is sold at harvest time generally dictates the size of the farmer's crop the following year, and this is the sure way to over-production. The real shrewd farmer would choose a crop of farm products universally used, which was sold at the biggest price of the preceding year.

One season produces a fair crop of potatoes, with a good price because of scarcity elsewhere. A much larger number of farmers then plant potatoes in the following spring, but are surprised that the good prices of the previous season are not maintained. What Mr. Meredith proposes is that a price should be guaranteed to the farmer for wheat, corn, cotton, butter and one or two other things, so that he could judge for himself on March 1st whether that crop was worth while. With the farmer contributing only a small amount of the insurance fund the protection against overproduction would be effective.

If the season's results prove that the price was too high, involving the marketing of a hundred million bushels of wheat abroad over produced, at a loss of 15 cents a bushel, the price could be reduced for the next season. Obviously the question of weather is waived here as being a risk beyond anybody's control. If the price realized proved higher than had been anticipated, a reduction in next year's price would practically force the farmer to plant less and diversify. If the supply of corn proved inadequate the price of corn would be raised five cents a bushel for the next season.

Over a series of years a fairly close approximation might be reached, and the cost of taking up the slack could be frankly written off to insurance. Any other method proposed involves a subsidy which would automatically stimulate overproduction with each successive year, recording a heavier loss. Not only would over production by the American farmer be stimulated; we should be holding the umbrella for Argentina and Australia, to say nothing of the countries of Europe. Price fixing would not please everybody, and doubtless, under the Meredith plan, the grain growers of Montana would complain because the railroads would not carry their crop for nothing. They will grumble anyway. They get cheaper farms because of their distance from market, and common sense would tell them to cultivate nearer markets.

The Meredith plan is a workable one, because of its elasticity, and the cost to the Government would consist mainly in the cost of the Government Bureau necessary to be established. This of course would be considerable,—the Bureau would have to be housed, its travelling expenses would have to be paid, the experts it employed would command large salaries, and the Lord only knows how many clerks it would want. Nevertheless, any Farm Legislation will require a like Bureau, and Mr. Meredith's scheme would hurt the consumer less than any other, and it might cause the Western farmer to quit his railroad baiting.

POEMS HOME — BY CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

"Prayer for a Little Child," by W. M. Letts.

This quaint little English song has long appealed to me. Half jest, half serious, it is wholly beautiful. Miss Letts wrote "The Spires of Oxford," one of the finest of all the war poems; and she always sings with skill and unforced simplicity. There is no artificiality in her work, it is as spontaneous as sunlight.

God keep my jewel this day from danger;
From tinker ond pooka and black-hearted stranger,
From harm of the water, from hurt of the fir
From the horns of the cows going home to the byre,
From the sight of the fairies that maybe might change her,
From teasing the ass when she's tied to the manger.
From stones that would bruise her, from the thorns of the brier,
From the red evil berries that wake her desire.
From hunting the gander and vexing the goat,
From the depths o' sea water by Danny's old boat,
From cut and from tumble, from sickness and weeping,

Rubber Combine Is Announced

Automobile And Rubber Manufacturers Combine In Rubber-Buying Pool

ARRANGE HUGE PURCHASING FUND

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—A score of the largest and most powerful automobile manufacturers and rubber manufacturers of the United States were banded together in a gigantic rubber-buying pool aimed to break the monopolistic grip of England on the world's supply price of raw rubber.

Arrangements for a joint purchasing fund credit of $40,000,000 were negotiated with the National Bank of Commerce of New York and the International Acceptance bank.

The plan, known to have been under consideration for several months, was attributed to Charles S. Seger, president of the United States Rubber company. While unwilling to discuss the plan in detail, Seger intimated that the pool funds would be utilized at times when the market is favorable.

Other large manufacturers associated with the United States Rubber company in the pool were the General Rubber companies, General Motors, Studebaker, Willys-Overland, Dodge, Packard and other automobile manufacturers.

It has been estimated that the syndicate would have a purchasing power of 50,000 tons of crude rubber annually.

Other officers elected are as follows: Vice president, Mrs. Minnie Kaufman; secretary, Mrs. Laura B. Woods; treasurer, Mrs. Florence Gillespie; chaplain, Mrs. Margaret Linn; custodian, Watson Hammil; marshal, Mrs. Gladys Rush; editor, Mrs. Gladys Rush; warder, Emmitt Gillespie; regent, Mrs. Ella McCune; trustee for three years, Watson Hammil.

The offices of captain and Angus are still to be filled. Mrs. Wesley of Warren, Pa., was present at the meeting. A social hour was enjoyed at the close of lodge.

Installation of new officers will take place the first meeting in January.

CAT AND DOG SHARE KENNEL

Recline Side By Side In Dog House At Home Of Bobby Ailey

Usually one is inclined to figure that cats and dogs are enemies of the bitterest sort.

But, it's not true.

We have the word of "Bobby" Ailey of the Youngstown road and the actual evidence of our own sight to prove it.

Bobby has a large dog and also a large white cat.

Instead of being enemies they are so friendly that they share the same kennel.

Imagine one's surprise to make a visit to the Ailey premises on the Youngstown road and walking around to the rear door, to be greeted first by a friendly big dog and a little later by an equally friendly big white cat, and see both of them emerge from the same door in the little dog house.

But that is what happens very frequently.

The cat and dog are as good friends as though they were two collie dogs.

Oklahoma Panhandle Once Organized State

Territory Of Cimarron Even Sent Representative To Sit In Congress

Beacer City, Oklahoma, once was the proud capital of a commonwealth, the name of which appears on no map, yet its sturdy citizenship set up a form of government, elected a full list of State officials, created a legislature, consisting of a Senate and House of representatives, and elected, says the Detroit News, two representatives to Congress.

It was in 1888 that the territory known as the Oklahoma panhandle, or "No Man's Land," endeavored to gain Federal recognition as the Cimarron Territory, arguing that with its 5773 square miles, it possessed more than enough territory to justify admission to the Union. The government, however, refused the plea, first placing the strip under the jurisdiction of Kansas and later annexing it to the Oklahoma Territory.

The existence of the Oklahoma panhandle was the result of the strip being omitted from inclusion in the territory of Kansas when that commonwealth was carved from the Indian country; the refusal of Texas to claim the strip when the panhandle's southern boundary line was suggested as the line above which slaves could not be bought and sold, and a decision by the Supreme Court that the strip was not a part of the "Cherokee outlet." New Mexico also refused to annex it.

As a result, the panhandle became, in fact, "No Man's Land," without law and without court jurisdiction. No man in the area could sue or be sued, and the six-shooter became the only law.

Finally the better element organized, divided the strip into three counties, drafted a code of laws and called an election, in which a territorial representative was elected to Congress. In 1887, O. G. Chase went to Washington and presented his credentials as territorial representative, but was refused a seat.

How short is pride! A few years to turn up your nose and then you turn up your toes.

Life Ever Paradoxical, Asserts Lord Dewar

Ninety Per Cent Of Ills Are Imaginary, Titled Optimist Tells London

The epigrammatic speeches of Lord Dewar that have been appearing in the press the last few weeks induced a representative of the London Sunday Times to ask him at the conclusion of a recent dinner how he first began to speak in public on the humorous outlook on life. Lord Dewar said:

"Life is a paradox from the cradle to the crematorium. Through humor you can see comic things happening around you all the time, and discover that 90 per cent of the troubles of life are imaginary.

"For example, you can see the honest-to-goodness people who adopt a halo, and with one finger outstretched say, 'I am holier than thou.' You can hear the rabid reformers in Hyde Park proclaim, 'You must do as you like, otherwise you will be made to, and that all men are equal. Providence never meant men to be equal, except when they are asleep!

"Others pay the amusements tax but are not amused. You can find humor in those who are sociaily ambitious struggling to brush elbows with the socially elect.

"There is humor in those who look down with an air of superiority and condescension on those who intellectually are their superiors. Some women still step off an omnibus backwards, although they have the vote today.

"Some say a man has his heart in the right place, and others think that if that is all to be said for him something must be wrong with his head.

"Then there is the man who comes up to you and says, 'You don't remember me?' Immediately say 'Yes I do. How is your complaint?' He will then give a long account of the suffering he has had at sime period of his life. You may be pretty certain all me have complaints and a great many grievances."

LOCAL MAN'S FATHER DIES SUDDENLY IN PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Charles A. Snyder, father of William A. Snyder of Court street, died very suddenly as the result of a stroke while returning from church last Sunday evening to his home in East Philadelphia, according to word received here.

Mr. Snyder is survived by his widow and one son of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Snyder left soon after receiving the message from Philadelphia.

Fines Are To Be Given Boost Soon

Present indications are according to Frank M. Jones, day sergeant of police, that the fine that has been assessed for some time past on motorists, who insist in parking their machines too near the street intersections, will be raised. The rate was placed at $3 and it was thought that this would be sufficient to make the motorists pay attention to the regulation that requires that they keep back a considerable distance from any street intersection. The results have not been what is desired and the effect of a $5 fine will likely be tried in the near future.

Medical Society Meets Thursday

An unusually interesting and well attended meeting of the Lawrence County Medical Society was held last evening in the society room at the Y. M. C. A. The affair was of more than ordinary interest by reason of the fact that three of Lawrence county's well known physicians were on the program and discussed subjects of importance in an effective manner. The speakers of the evening were Dr. P. A. Shoaf, Dr. G. P. Prioletti and Dr. W. A. Womer.

The approach of Christmas reminds us that Prohibition is a system under which the country gets drunk only on holidays.

Convention Closes With Interesting Session On Thursday Afternoon

ROAD BUILDING CONFERENCE TOPIC

Concluding the annual convention of the Lawrence County Supervisor's Association held in the Court House on Thursday, December 2, the election of officers for the coming year was held.

The following is the result.

President, Fred C. Schmidt, West Pittsburg; First Vice President, Charles N. Emery, Scott township; Second Vice President, W. R. Gormley, Hickory township; Secretary, N. A. Craig, North Beaver township; Treasurer, J. W. Hamilton, New Wilmington. Executive Committee, C. W. Houlette, Mahoning township, Jessie E. Carr, Washington township; I. G. Taylor, Slippery Rock township. Delegates to state convention, C. N. Emery, Scott township, J. P. Buchanan, Pulaski township. Alternates, W. A. McMahon, West Pittsburg, S. E. McCreary, Union township.

The afternoon program was given over to the discussion of road building and maintenance, with Supervisors N. A. Craig, C. W. Hamilton, and W. A. McMahon speaking on dirt, ash and slag construction respectively. State Senator George T. Weingartner spoke on the development of the road program in Pennsylvania.

H. J. Robinson, engineer in charge of the local state highway office spoke, as did A. R. Felton of Harrisburg, Pa., a representative of the State Highway Department.

Exonerate Home Of Assessment On Lot

Council today voted to exonerate the Margaret Henry Home of one assessment of $416, for Friendship street grading but refused exoneration of $52 assessment on another lot.

They decided the former lot is used for charitable purposes but that the latter lot was purchased to make Friendship grading possible.

Make Plans For Aiding City Poor

Announcement by the mayor that the police department would sponsor the visit of Santa Claus, the day before Christmas, to the homes of needy children of the city for the purpose of giving them a treat and also some needed wearing apparel, has created widespread interest in the coming event.

Already numbers of persons have sent letters to the mayor telling him of poor children whom he and his co-workers can make happy.

This morning as Mrs. Minnie McKibben, city policewoman, who is checking up on the cases reported, stated that it would be appreciated, if those informing the police of deserving children, would state the age and sex of the children, so it would be possible to determine what should be delivered in each case.

Those having names to report should address their communications to Mrs. McKibben.

New Amusement Device Will Be Manufactured Here

Local Men Invent New Ride For Amusement Parks—To Put It On Market

J. J. McCoy, of Elizabeth street, E. O. Fankhouser of Crawford Terrace and Charles Britton, have returned home from Chicago, where they attended the convention of the amusement operators, which was held in the Sherman Hotel.

Mr. Britton who operates amusements at Memphis, Tenn., made arrangements while there to secure some more apparatus for his growing business.

Mr. Fankhouser and McCoy have a ride of their own invention, and will put it on the market in the near future, as they received wonderful encouragement while in Chicago.

The apparatus which they have will probably be constructed by the Pennsylvania Engineering Works of this city, and the sales end will be handled by John A. Miller of Chicago, who is probably the best authority on amusement apparatus in the United States.

Complains His Assessment High

Council, sitting as a board of revision, today heard Attorney J. Clyde Gilfillan appeal, in behalf of A. L. Patterson, an assessment of $17,000, on a bakery, Moody and Wilmington avenue. An assessment of $16,000, was made on the building and $1,000, on machinery, according to Assessor Sands.

WOMAN STRANGLED WITH HANDKERCHIEF

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 3.—Mrs. Blanche Myers, 48, was found strangled to death in her home here. A handkerchief was about her neck and the room bore evidence of a terrific struggle.

This is the third recent case in which women have been strangled to death in the last few weeks and the eighth case of its kind on the Pacific coast in about seven months. Police from here to central California are searching for a "dark strangler" whom they believe is responsible for the killings.

In each case the women attacked were elderly or past middle age who had advertised rooms for rent in their homes. The strangler in each case had gained entrance to their homes under the pretext of wishing to rent a room.

MANY NUISANCE COMPLAINTS FILED

HARRISBURG, Dec. 3.—The state health department reported today that 1,000 formal nuisance complaints had been received and investigated during a five months period, 75 per cent of which have been satisfactorily adjusted.

Forty thousand property inspections were made during this period.

HEART ILLS ARE ROUSED BY SPEED

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—The speed of living and its result was told in the report of the Chicago Heart association which marks all deaths from heart disease. The deaths have doubled per 1,000 in 15 years.

"In the year 1910" said the report "there were 2,110 deaths attributed to heart troubles. Last year 6,309 people in Chicago succumbed to cardiac ailments. Twenty years ago the death rate by heart disease to each 100,000 population was 108.3. In 1923 it had risen to 210—an appalling advancement.

About 65 persons out of 1154 are color-blind.

Fire Bug Again Visits Toledo, O.

Report Number Of Attempts To Fire Structures This Morning

(International News Service)

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 3—Toledo's visitation of incendiarism attributed to the firebug who terrorized the city for weeks was continued here eardy today when attempts were made to burn two more structures.

The Oneida apartments, a 20-family apartment was fired with a box rubbish and the restaurant of John Lee set ablaze in a similar manner.

Fire Chief Lawler whose men brought the flames under control with comparatively slight damage declared that the evidence indicated both fires were started by the pyromaniac held responsible for a series of recent fires here.

LONELINESS DRIVES AGED CONVICT ON PAROLE BACK TO CELL

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 3.—Overwhelmed by loneliness, Michael J. Harris, 70 years old, paroled 10 years ago from Waupun, where he was serving a life sentence for murder, voluntarily returned to the prison today. He asked that he be confined there for the rest of his life.

He was admitted by Warden Oscar Lee after an ineffectual attempt had been made by the prison authorities to dissuade the old man from relinquishing the place in society he has held since his parole in 1916.

"I was almost raised in Waupun penitentiary," Harris declared. "I feel at home here. I haven't any friends to speak of—I know a lot of the old-timers in prison. And I am getting old. I want to go back."

Mine Will Become Tomb For 41 Dead

(International News Service)

ISHPEMING, Mich., Dec. 3.—Indications today were that the bodies of the 41 mine cave-in victims still entombed in the Barnes-Hecker mine here would never be recovered and that the mine will be abandoned with its dead.

Engineers estimate it will be necessary to remove 3,000,000 tons of dirt to enter the mine by way of the caved area, but all refused to bid for the job because of the danger of further loss of life in rescue work. Fifty-two men were killed in the disaster November 3.

FIVE WIVES WILL LOSE SAME HUSBAND

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 3. — At least five wives will be minus the same husband two and a half years while Wilbur D. Harris, 50 year old cabinet maker, spends that term in the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth.

Harris, according to Federal authorities, had five wives living in Los Angeles, "and probably more in other cities."

He pleaded guilty to violation of the Mann Act by transporting Alice Sears Otis, 22, from Marlow, Oklahoma to Bakersfield and was sentenced to two and a half years in Leavenworth.

Testimony revealed that Harris deserted a wife and a baby 12 years ago and that last year he deserted Miss Otis and her baby to marry another girl.

STAYS IN JAIL, WON'T KEEP GIRL

WILLOWS, Cal., Dec. 3.—Sam Reid, Glenn county's "alimony martyr", must remain in jail.

This was the statement today of Superior Judge C. F. Purkitt after he had been instructed by the grand jury to try Reid on an insanity charge.

"Reid cannot be tried for insanity until a formal complaint is made against him by someone not a member of the grand jury", Purkitt said, when notified by the foreman of the grand jury of its action.

"Reid must stay in jail until he agrees to abide by the decision of the court that he pay for the support of his 3-year-old daughter.

WORK OF PLANTING TREES ALONG ROADS BEGUN AT CLARION

CLARION, Pa., Dec. 3. — The Pennsylvania department of highways has taken its first step toward the beautification of the improved highways. The Lakes-to-Sea highway, between Clarion and Strattenville has been selected for the experiment and planting of trees is under way. It is planned to line the mile and a half with black walnut trees 60 feet apart and 15 feet from the edge of the concrete.

The planting is being done under the supervision of District Forester Charles E. Zerby.

PARISIAN DUELISTS ARE BOTH WOUNDED

PARIS, Dec. 3.—A duel, which ended with the wounding of one of the contestants, was fought by Serge Andre, newspaper proprietor, and Bernard Denisane, political writer on La Liberte.

The men fought for 24 minutes in 12 rounds before Andre half fainted when his opponent's sword penetrated his elbow. Blood flowed from many light cuts on both men, who wore thin cotton shirts.

The contestants, who were seconded by several prominent Parisians, met at dawn in Parc des Princes on the edge of the city.

Andre, who also is chairman of the board of the Spidoleine Oil company, challenged Denisane because of an article written by the latter which was considered insulting.

SUES HIMSELF TO COLLECT $4,000

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Dec. 3. — Grant E. Reynolds, president and sole stockholder in Grant E. Reynolds, Inc., has sued himself for $4,000.

Reynolds said he owed himself $4,000 back salary and in order to collect he filed a petition for a receiver for his incorporated self.

He asserted he had been drawing $4,000 as a yearly salary, but for the last two years has paid himself only about half that amount.

Nothing upsets a man more than to have someone try to cheer him up when he is feeling nice and sorry for himself.

Lonely Days In Cascade Park

Pines Murmur As Solitary News Man Makes Lonely Tour

PLEASURE DEVICES ARE IN WINTER TOGS

Cascade Park, a few months ago a vast acreage of merriment and frivolity is now a different picture, its loneliness being disturbed only by large trees which sway and groan as chilly winds whistle on their way.

Rainbow Terrace, famed for hundreds of miles as a dance pavilion with a gorgeous vari-colored illumination system, is dark and forbidding and stands, bleak and deserted. Thousands of persons, young and old whose feet moved in rhythemic motion to the clarion notes of the cornet and clarionet no longer glide about the wax floor.

The Tumble Bug with its jolting ride has been dismantled. The Caterpillar which operated in an upward and downward movement as blasts of cool air swept from the ground likewise has been tucked away until summer and the train near Cascade Run has ceased to toot its warning and has been stored in the "roundhouse" until next year.

The lake, a large expanse of clear water, on east and west sides, banked by large trees and edged by grass that has died, is deserted. Seldom does a human being visit it. Its only occupants are birds which swoop from the skies to drink and occasionally a larged sized bird picks a fish from the water while winging its way.

The only life, excepting occasional employes who roam the plot, is seen in the greenhouses where the beautiful flowers which grace the park during warm weather, have been housed for the winter. Within the confines of glass houses, heated by steam, they are as resplendent as ever and it is the flowers only that demand attention.

Cascade pool, which was ushered into existence as the largest and cleanest bathing pool in this section of the country late last summer, is now "dry bottom." It may be used as an ice skating rink when freezing weather arrives. But like the rest of the points interesting in warm weather or the days of merriment and frivolity, it is now a scene of loneliness.

Call For Canaries Bring Big Imports

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 3.—The little yellow bird that hangs in a gilded cage in the sunny corner is regaining its place in the American home after the period following the war when the importation of canaries almost ceased.

The demand for canaries has increased to such an extent in the last few years that a local bird firm has imported 1,000 of the feathered pets from Germany and has ordered 1,000 more for immediate delivery.

Greatest care must be taken in sending the birds overseas as this specie is susceptible to seasickness which frequently results in death,

The RIM of The LIMELIGHT

PRESIDENT A STRAPHANGER.

GENEVA, Dec. 3.—Dr. Jean Marie Musy who was president of Switzerland during 1925 was a strap-hanger in a tram car while serving as president of his country, according to a story being told here by Johannes W. De Groot, Salvation Army commissioner in Switzerland. Commissioner De Groot offered this item to show how the Swiss republic react to their president. They jostle him on the tram car just like anyone else. Rank makes no difference to them.

ANTS OUTWIT A SCIENTIST.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—When an endless procession of ants attacked a bowl of grain he had set out for the birds, a prominent scientist here thought he could outwit them. So after placing the bowl at the top of a pole he coated the stick with bird lime, a sticky substance over which he believed it would be impossible for the insects to pass. The next day when he inspected his invention the ants were still carrying off the grain. With grains of sand and small particles of earth they had built a firm roadway over the bird-lime. The scientist admits that he's "stumped."

ONTARIO PUPILS TO HAVE CLASSES ON TRAINS.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 3.—Unable to comply with the compulsory school law of the province in any other manner the sparsely settled sections along the railway lines of Northern Ontario have arranged with the roads to equip two cars as school rooms. The cars are to be attached to regular trains the children being taken on at different stops and brought back on the return trip. Instruction will be adapted to the train schedules. What the teachers will have to rely upon in the event of being snowed in, for in Northern Ontario the climate is very cold, is a matter of conjecture.

The popular song, "Sing Me to Sleep," which brought its composer a fortune, was the result of but ten minutes' work.

Christmas Seal Idea Is Now 22 Years Old

When the Christmas mail passed through the hands of the postal clerks of Denmark twenty-two years ago, hundreds of letters were sealed with a small square stamp bearing the royal insignia, a brief Christmas message and the date.

The men had not seen this little seal before. They did not know what it meant. Nor did they know that Einar Hoelbell, another postal clerk had originated this seal which was carrying friendly greetings throughout Denmark and bringing a needed Christmas gift to the sick.

But even Hoelbell, who had enlisted the help of the Danish royal family in his hope of assisting tuberculosis patients in the hospitals, did not realize that his thoughtful plan would travel around the world and that in 1925 it would earn nearly $5,000,000 to fight the war on tuberculosis in America.

Such was the origin of the Christmas seal, which each year decorates Christmas cards and bundles in this country, and which has done much to establish hospitals, clinics, open air schools and other institutions for tuberculosis patients under the National Tuberculosis Association.

Seal Sale Starts in U. S.

It was not until 1907 that the seal became known here. A Dane sent a letter to a friend in America and on the back was the sticker. It happened that friend was a social service worker and he was impressed with the idea that he wrote an article, printed in a magazine, about Denmark's venture.

Probably many persons read that article, but it was Miss Emily Bissell, of Delaware, who saw the value of the seals and who inaugurated a small sale that spread through Delaware and into Philadelphia.

And Philadelphia responded. Letters to other parts of the country from this city were decorated with a square stamp marked with a cluster of holly. From this sale came $3,000, which Miss Bissell contributed to a small tuberculosis sanatorium in Delaware.

It was a small start. Only two cities were interested. Miss Bissell continued with her seals. She persuaded the American Red Cross to adopt the idea. And in 1908 the country was flooded with another holly-trimmed stamp—this time centering around a red cross. The proceeds amounted to about $135,000.

By 1910 the Red Cross decided that it was not entirely interested in tuberculosis work and joined with the National Tuberculosis Association in issuing the seals. The latter was a new organization and could not undertake it alone. For the next eight years the stamps sold under the name of the Red Cross, with most of the funds going to the association.

Reaches Millions of Homes

In that time the seal had found a very definite place in the Christmas season. People believed in the work it was doing. They bought the seals and used them. They discovered that they carried a two-fold message.

Each year the design was different. Holly featured for the first few years and then came two consecutive seasons of snow scenes. Four years Santa Claus was muffled in holly, and at last came a Christmas tree. Some times the seals were colored red, white and blue, and sometimes red and green.

The 1918 seal was characteristic of the war year. It was inscribed with the head of the Goddess of Liberty. In 1920 there was another change; the red cross gave way to the crimson double-barred cross of the Tuberculosis Association, and the Red Cross relinquished its association with the yearly sale.

This year the seal has already reached millions of homes. The figures of the three carolers in their red caps are familiar. And by Christmas these three little singers will be bringing in another fund of several million dollars to help those who are less fortunate.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Your Sick Child is Constipated! Look at Tongue

Hurry, Mother! Remove poisons from little stomach, liver, bowels

Give "California Fig Syrup" if cross, bilious or feverish

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup", and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless, "fruity laxative" because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup"; then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company".

North Carolina And Virginia Lay Plans To Fight Swamp Fire

(International News Service)

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 3.—Fire hazard in the vast swampland of North Carolina and Virginia, the Great Dismal, will be stamped out under a gigantic fire prevention program now being mapped out by forestry officials of the two states it was learned here today.

Plans announced by forestry officials call for erection of two giant steel observation towers in the swamp, one in North Carolina soil and the other in Virginia which will give a wide range of vision for detection of flames.

In addition to the lookout towers regular patrols of the vast area will be made and a system of signals and alarms will be inaugurated to facilitate the checking of forest blazes. Expenses for carrying out the program will be borne by Great Dismal landowners through self-imposed assessments on a pro rata basis of four cents an acre it was announced.

Discover Entire Eagle Family Near Akron, O., Works

(International News Service)

AKRON, Ohio, Dec. 3.—The American bald eagle, whose likeness is the official emblem of the United States, may not become extinct, it is believed following the discovery of a family of the birds in an aerie near here.

For several years, inhabitants in the vicinity of Kent, where the waterworks for Akron is located, have noticed a flock of enormous birds, soaring in the skies. These were thought to have been species of buzzard.

But recently one of the young birds tumbled with a broken wing and an examination revealed that it was an American bald eagle. Further investigation developed that the entire family is of that species.

The Kent district is a natural sanctuary for wild birds hence little curiosity was aroused when the "buzzard's" were seen. Queer waterfowl, such as loons, herons and cranes, often have been seen there. Hunting is prohibited.

But now that the "buzzards" have been identified as the almost extinct bald eagles, efforts will be made here to encourage development of the aerie.

Accident Survey Shows Women As Careful Drivers

(International News Service)

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 3.—Contrary to popular belief, women are more careful drivers of automobiles than men, according to an accident analysis prepared for the current month by the department of safety here.

The analysis shows that only 21 women figured in the 260 traffic mishaps occurring in this city within the month.

Christmas Liquor Deluges Detroit

Power Boats And Dusk Defy Waiting Patrol In Dash For Dry Shore

DETROIT Dec. 3.—The deluge of Canadian liquor for the Christmas trade is now in full swing and threatens to engulf Detroit before it is moved to consumers in other cities.

The flood gates are wide open and the roar of the motor and a flash of spray from the bow mark the trip of the $10,000 rum boat from the Canadian short.

With an utter disregard for the prohibition navy lurking on the river, equalled only by his contempt for the prohibition laws of the United States, the runner brazenly pilots his craft across the narrow strip of water separating dry Detriot from the well stocked liquor warehouses on the opposite banks.

And he knows he will win nine times out of ten, with an ordinary run of luck, for his fifty-mile-an-hour boat will easily outdistance the slower craft of the government patrol.

The dusk, too, is a dependable ally of the man at the wheel, who waves farewell to the dock workers as he shoves off and confidently heads for Lake St. Clair or the Detroit river.

Just how much, case on case and tier on tier, is piled at the docks from the $1,000,000 warehouse stocks is not easy to estimate. The liquor men who know shrug their shoulders, smile and refuse to answer questions.

LOVE NOTES TRAP SENTIMENTAL THIEF

MAPLEWOOD, N. J., Dec. 3.—Charaterized a sentimental burglar by police who traced him through love letters, Henry Marcus, 19, of Newark, was brought here from Rochester N. Y., and jailed pending investigation of numerous burglaries committed in suburban localities during the last few months.

A bundle of letters found in an automobile which he abandoned here when chased by police led to Marcus' arrest in Rochester.

THE SOCIAL PEST

To the Juniors by One of Them

Do you want to be popular—or don't you care whether people like you and want your company or not? Most people, men, women, boys and girls have a very keen desire to be popular. Why then—are there so many people who fail in this desire? Let us go further and say,—why are there so many men and women who are looked upon as social pests?

I know a young man who is remarkably bright, can carry on a brilliant conversation on almost any given subject, is good looking and very pleasant to meet. Surely, you say, it could not be possible that such a young man would be an unwelcome guest in one's home. Yet such is the case and it is entirely his own fault.

This young man, whom we will call Mr. A, has a habit of dropping in on people about supper time and staying so late that the situation becomes embarrassing and the hostess feels compelled to invite him to remain for supper. After this has happened several times, the host and hostess are sure to find some way of avoiding him. No one can respect a 'sponger', and unfortunately that is the class in which Mr. A belongs, although I believe he would not think of himself as belonging to that class.

Another of his tricks is staying too late at night. One evening he was invited for six-thirty dinner and arrived at seven. The hostess was accustomed to having her dinner guests arrive on time and was somewhat put out. That might have been overlooked however, but Mr. A, not satisfied with one breach of etiquette, stayed until a most unseemly hour. A guest who is invited for dinner and stays seven and a half hours is very apt to wear out his welcome and because of such indiscretions, Mr. A is dropped from the social list of one family after another.

There are so many people who have no regard for the feelings or desires of the other person. As long as their own wishes, their momentary impulses are satisfied,—they are content.

And so while Mr. A goes about apparently getting pretty much what he wants and doing a good deal as he pleases in spite of everyone else,—he cant keep friends. I often wonder if he knows deep in his heart what a pest he is. I don't believe he does. I truly believe he is at a loss to know why people do not want him around. He is so wrapped up in himself and his small ways, that in spite of the fact that he is a highly intellectual person in many respects, he is blind to the fact that popularity is gained only through thoughtful consideration for others.

What you hear never seems as important as what you overhear.

Urge Necessity Of Immediate Action To Get Auto Tags

In a report from the Department of Highways at Harrisburg, sent to B. N. Hanlon of the New Castle Motor Club, it is found that approximately 1,500,000 sets of motor vehicle tags will be issued for the year 1926.

This is approximately 150,000 more tags than were issued for the year 1925. Up to the present time 260,000 tags have been issued for the year 1927, which is only 25,000 more than the department issued for the year 1926 for the same period of time.

Renewal applications for the year 1927 have been slow in getting to Harrisburg, and to avoid inconvenience to the motoring public and to aid the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, people should try and be more prompt in sending for their tags.

Another of the facts that were brought out was that the Post Office Department is unable to cope with the excess amount of mail that they receive from December 15, and if the Highway Department mails from 30,000 to 40,000 sets of license tags daily, it would delay the delivery to the motor vehicle owners.

Responding To Dream, Wife Becomes Heroine

Answers Silent Call And Goes To Aid Of Stricken Revolutionary Soldiers

Mary Slocumb, wife of Captain Ezekiel Slocumb of North Carolina, wrote her name on the roll of Revolutionary patriots when she responded to a dream one night in which she fancied she could see a body, wrapped in her husband's coat, and others dead and wounded about him. So vivid was the dream that she dashed to the barn, saddled a horse and rode 30 miles to the wounded, and her efforts saved hours after daybreak.

Under a clump of trees she saw again the scene that had appeared in her dream, she said afterward, and she hastened to what she believed was the body of her husband, but it proved to be another soldier's and he was not dead. She immediately set to work ministering to the wounded and her efforts saved a number of lives.

While she was nursing wounds her husband, who had been pursuing the enemy, returned and found her, relates the Raleigh News and Observer. She declined to tell him of the dream that brought her and afterward said she knew he was surprised but not displeased at her action. In the middle of the night she mounted her horse and rode home again, happy to have been of service to the injured fighters.

Little New Road Building Likely In Mercer County

Not Believed That Program Of Construction Will Be Arranged—Mercer News

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Pa., Dec. 3.—There will be no road building in Mercer county next year either of primary or secondary type. This due to the change in officials at Harrisburg the first of the year which makes the planning of any road program in time for its construction impossible. There will be no secondary road construction because the legislature of the state will have to make appropriation of out of the state funds for the assistance given townships by the highway department. A new road commissioner will have to be named before any primary road program can be launched. Mercer county has built all of the program proposed and a new program must be agreed upon before any further road building takes place. Because of the difficulties that confront, nothing will be accomplished this year, is the opinion.

The examination of 1,500 school children in Grove City is taking place now under the direction of Dr. S. J. Dickey, who is the county medical director. The examination given the children is that ordered by the state health department for all public school pupils.

If any mechanic who reads this may have a fancy for outside work on a swinging ladder operating a compressed air hose as a member of a sand blasting crew he may secure employment at the court house here from Contractor William McIntyre of Sharon. McIntyre states that he hopes to have the outside work on the building completed in two weeks but has doubts as it is hard to get men who will work from a swinging ladder at the height they must to do it.

E. E. Clepper of Sharon, architect, was in town Thursday looking over the progress of work made on the First National bank building here that has been under repair for the last two months. The new banking room was expected to be completed in time for accupancy at Thanksgiving time. A very short time should see it ready for use.

Delay of 15 tax collectors in Mercer county in making proper return of the information needed by the clerks of the county commissioners' office in drawing up their reports of the 1926 assessment of the county is holding up the completion of this work, is reported at the office of that group of officials today.

Five reports must now be returned to the state instead of the two that previously sufficed. The reports are in detail and deal with the school, borough and county taxes on individual sheets setting forth in detail the collections, exhonerations and millage. Until this number of collectors report on the individual items needed no total of county valuation will be summed.

Admittance of prisoners at the county jail here is on a par with the lack of business in the county offices. For two days nothing has happened at the bastile and the number of legal instruments being filed indicates the usual December hush has arrived.

The Bar Association of Mercer county banqueted last evening at the Penn Grove hotel, Grove City. Covers for 35 of the 50 members were laid. Addresses by Q. A. Gordon of Mercer and C. C. Brockway of Sharon were made. The committee in charge was V. L. Johnson of Mercer, Harry L. Keck, Guy Thorne of Greenville, F. A. Service of Sharon, M. L. McBride of Grove City. The attorneys held their last banquet in Greenville at the country club in September.

New Calendars Seem To Be Scarce

News Cub Reporter Tours City To Locate Couple Of 1927 Without Buying Them

(By THE CUB REPORTER.)

Gentle reader do you remember years ago when mother or dad used to send you out to get a calendar free at one of the stores?

If so you know that you never had such a hard time in geting one, or several, but now, it is a very different thing.

That was my task today to get one without buying it.

Let me tell you before I go any further that if you really want one of these for nothing the best, if not the safest way is to help yourself.

The result of these hunts is disastrous, in that it ruins the nervous system. At least that is the way I found it.

I was told to go out and get a calendar, and of course it sounded easy, but was it?

That is where the sad part of the story comes in.

Visiting every conceivable place where these might be had I began lose heart after the sixth well directed "no." If you really need a calendar and do not want to pay for it, the easier way of getting it is to go into the stores, ask for a nickle or dime and go out and buy one. You stand about as much chance of getting the money as you do of getting the calendar itself.

But I am happy now, readers, as on the 16th try I obtained the calendar after receiving every possible kind of "no," cross look and sarcastic shake of the head.

Stone Marks The Spot Where Wheat Fell

LURAY, Va., Dec. 3.—A stone marker, made by Phillip Kauffman, of near Luray, and fashioned from native mountain rock, will mark the spot where Charles Wheat, first Confederate soldier to fall in Page county, was killed on a rail April 19, 1862.

The spot where Wheat fell is in the Massanutten mountains on a lonely crest, where he with Dr. W. H. Miller and Samuel Forer came upon a Federal squad. Wheat was instantly killed.

Steps have been taken by a special committee to mark other historic spots in the county.

The telephone company in San Francisco issues the only Chinese telephone directory published in the United States.

Grandmother's Age

Looks like a girl of 19

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Mine is a grandmother's age. My life has been spent in the limelight. Yet I am still a stage star, still a beauty, still a girl. Thousands who see me daily marvel at my youthful bloom. Countless young girls envy my hair and complexion.

I sailed on Steamer Homeric, June 12, 1926, for my 35th trip to France. I go there every year to keep in intimate touch with the latest beauty discoveries.

I have searched the world for beauty aids. The best I found were produced by French experts. I became by their help a famous beauty, gained a glorious career. They have preserved my beauty, kept my youth, as all who see me know.

Now I am placing these helps at every woman's call. Toilet counters everywhere supply them in my name. Every girl and woman who desires may use exactly what I use, and at a modest cost.

My Beauty Aids

White Youth Clay—Purges the skin of impurities. Combats lines and wrinkles. Brings a new complexion.
Facial Youth—A liquid skin cleanser. Cleans to the depths taking grime, dirt, dead skin and clogging matter with it.
Youth Cream—To soften, whiten, feed and beautify the skin. Cold cream and Vanishing types. Both are unsurpassed.
Hair Youth—Combats dandruff. Stimulates hair roots. Exquisitely perfumed. Apply with eye dropper.
Youth Cream Powder—Heavy clinging cold cream type. Favorite of Stage stars.
Light Face Powder—Fluffy and exquisite. Highest type possible to produce.
Quindent Tooth Paste—Utmost in a dentifrice. Whitens teeth—purifies breath.
Beauty Talc—Fine as vapor.
Fruity Shampoo—To cleanse, restore lustre, beautify hair and make it glisten.
Youth Hand Lotion—For hands, face, arms, chapped skin, sun or windburn and all roughness. Heals chapped lips.
Wave and Sheen (Greaseless Hair Dressing)—A many-purpose hair beautifier. Gives instant results. Brush down for smooth, sleek appearance. Comb upward for fluff and wave. Use curlers for fixed enduring curl.
Cream Deodorant—Refined under-arm cream. Best I have ever found.
Liquid Nail Polish—For youthful tint and lustre. Imparts a brilliant gloss.
Hair Remover—For superfluous hair on any part of body.
Eye Bath—For tired, aching, inflamed eyes, to preserve lustre and brilliancy.
No-Shine—Astringent Cream. Ends all shine on the nose or forehead.
Freckle Cream—Banishes freckles quickly.
Eyebrow-Eyelash Beautifier—Indispensible toilet requisite.
Lipstick—True to nature. Exquisite case.
Vanity Rouge Compact—Incomparable for beauty and daintiness.

Japan Threatens Hemp Industry

(International News Service)

MANILA, Dec. 3.—The Manila hemp industry, for decades a monopoly, is threatened. Until recently all the high-grade rope in the world was made from Manila hemp fiber, but Singapore and Java are now beginning to export rope fiber in commercial quantities of high quality. Some 80,000 bales of grade A hemp was shipped to Japan from Japanese plantations in Borneo this year, and the plantations are being greatly enlarged.

The original cuttings were taken from the Philippines. Last year a law was passed by the Philippine legislature prohibiting export of Manila hemp, or abaca, suckers, but it was already too late.

Would Have First M. E. Choir Vested

Interesting Meeting Of Young Married People's Classes Held Thursday

At the regular monthly meeting of the Young Married People's Class of the First M. E. Sunday School held last night at the church a committee was appointed to meet with the official board of the church and recommend the vesting of the choir of the church.

The meeting was very largely attended by the members. Rev. and Mrs. H. C. Weaver were special guests of the occasion. A splendid dinner was enjoyed at 6:30 o'clock and was followed by the social and business sessions of the evening.

Christmas Nuts Being Inspected

HARRISBURG, Dec. 3.—State food supervision authorities are looking over the Christmas nuts.

Immediately before Thanksgiving day a drive is started to see that these necessary parts of the end of the year feasts are new and that no holdovers are worked in.

The first time this crusade against year-old nuts was launched was back in the Stuart administration when James Foust was dairy and food commissioner. Complaint about nuts containing only memories reached Foust who went out and did some buying on his own hook. Next day agents were turned loose and samples of nuts were bought in a dozen counties. Prosecutions following ended the running of old stock into the Christmas mixtures.

What would please more than a Buick for Christmas?

Black Cat Is Potent Power

Caucasion Communists Hang Heads In Shame Because Of Black Cat Omen

ANCIENT CUSTOMS ARE ADHERED TO

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

MOSCOW, Dec. 3.—Caucasian communists are hanging their heads in shame and the city of Aul has had to change its government, all because of a black cat.

Communists declare that God is a superstition, but some of them still believe that a black cat has potent power. For the mayor of Aul one small ebon-hued feline had the power to lose him his job and send him to jail to await trial.

In the Caucasian mountains the belief has persisted from time immemorial that the only way to cure domestic animals of any disease is to chase them over a tunnel occupied by a live black cat. Citizens of the city of Aul, distressed at the sight of their flocks and herds perishing from a plague, appealed to the city Soviet for help.

The chairman of the Soviet, Djerokai Katmesov, ordered the citizens to gather their cattle, sheep and goats in one big herd on the following morning. That night Mayor Katmesov himself went to a friend whom he knew possessed the largest black cat in town, and borrowed the animal, as he said "for therapeutic purposes".

Next morning Mayor Katmesov had a couple of city engineers dig a tunnel under the pen where the cattle were herded. Tying the cat in a basket, he slipped it into the tunnel and then ordered the citizens to drive their cattle across.

Everybody went home satisfied, but within a week all the previously healthy cattle in town had caught the disease from contact with their infected comrades. Government veterinarians were called, heard the story, passed it on to their superior officers, and Mayor Katmesov was called upon to explain his actions.

Deposed from office, Mayor Katmesov now awaits trial on the charge of "prompting ignorance and superstition".

Superstition seldom needs much active promotion in Russia. Saturated with it from the earliest days Russia may still be described as the least rational country in the world, even under the avowedly materialistic regime of the Bolsheviks.

Though Christians by profession, the inhabitants of the Pechora district in the far northern part of European Russia are addicted to a system of infant sacrifice which has aroused the Soviet government to take active measures for its suppression.

A special governmental commission, sent to Pechora for the purpose of investigating the religious habits of the community, discovered that a suspiciously large number of babies were dying of starvation. Probing deeper, they found that the Pechorans believe that if a child dies before it is a year old it goes straight to heaven, and there appeals before the heavenly tribunal for its parents, who lose at least one-half of the responsibility for their sins.

Believing thus, Pechoran parents take care that at least one of their children shall die before the age of one year.

Another feature of Pechoran life that puzzled the investigators was the discrepancy in the reports of births and deaths. They found that not a single citizen of Pechora had died with the name with which he was christened.

Inquiring for the reason, they found that the Pechorans always had themselves rechristened when facing death, believing that under the new name St. Peter would let them into heaven without checking back on the sins committed during their lifetime under the old name. Thus at every death bed the priest re-christens Peter into Paul, Ivan into Pavel, and Martha into Mary.

The Soviet commission decreed that the inhabitants might continue to try to slip into Heaven under an alias if they wished, but warned all parents that infant deaths from starvation hereafter would be rigorously prosecuted.

Plan Monument To Thompson As Fitting Memorial

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 3.—A monument to a mail man was recently dedicated in Carthay Center, Los Angeles.

The mail man honored was "Snowshoe" Thompson who trudged for 20 years the mountain passes of the High Sierras before construction of the Central Pacific railroad.

U.S. Of Europe British-German Industry's Aim

Important Secret Meeting Was For The Purpose Of Arranging Union

Tariffs, Prices, Production Methods Were Discussed By Statesmen

By F. A. WRAY,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The idea of a "United States of Europe" was the primary reason for the recent important, but secret meeting between the heads of British and German industries.

On one side the meeting was headed by Sir Robert Horne, ex-Chancellor of the Exchequer, now one of the leading figures in "big business" of today; on the other side the German delegation was led by Dr. Cuno, former Chancellor of Germany.

The meeting took place at the country home, Broadlands, of Colonel Wilfred Ashley, a member of the British Government and Minister of transport. The discussions were carried on with the full knowledge and approval of the British Government.

Tariffs formed the keynote of the discussions and a remarkable map, graphically illustrating the comparative heights of tariff walls erected by various European countries, was one of the centers of attention by the States of Europe."

Both sides agreed on the view that the continual building of tariff walls is harmful to trade and the delegates visualized a future in which there would be no tariff barriers within Europe but on the other hand an actual "United States of Europe."

It was realized that it would take years to educate the different nationalities up to this standard but both sides undertook to do their best.

Agreement was also reached between the nations as to price, production and quality of various articles and a plan was evolved mutually to avoid "dumping" on the ground of its being inimical to stable economic conditions. The next meeting of the two sets of industrialists will take place in Berlin.

"Locarno" Needed.

"The only salvation for Europe lies in a "Locarno for industry" says Sir Robert Horne. "Industry in Britain is in a bad way. The stoppage of the coal industry threatens wide circles of trade and industry with collapse. Steel and iron industries are unable to reduce the costs of production and compete with low-wage countries.

"Not only are British exports down but the countdy is actually importing iron and steel. Even confirmed optimists are becoming skeptical as to the future of the country. Depression is rampant in the shipbuilding, shipping, woollen and cotton trades.

"It is urgently necessary to stabilize British industry by co-operation with European competition instead of fighting like cut-thoat competitors."

Atlanta Prison Warden Has Plan For New Way To Cure Drug Addicts

(International News Service)

ATLANTA, Dec. 3.—Dissatisfied with the present methods of handling drug addicts in federal prisons, Warden John Snook of Atlanta penitentiary has recommended the establishment of an institution solely for the cure of violators of the Harrison narcotic law.

Snook's plan would be to keep the addict in the special institution until a competent board could pass upon his condition and pronounce him cured. The addict would be released on probation and kept under surveillance.

"If they should again become users of drugs," Snook said in his recommendation to Attorney General John G. Sargent, they could be arrested and returned to the institution the same as parole violators are returned under the present parole law. This would save the time of the court and needless expense to the government in their reindictment and trial.

"Several of our judges continue to sentence addicts to a year and a day in the penitentiary. It is my judgment that to sentence an addict for a year and a day in the penitentiary in order to reestablish him in society entirely fails of its purpose.

"The violators of the Harrison narcotic law comprise one third of the entire population of Atlanta penitentiary. Of the 713 violators of the drug act received during the past fiscal year, 292 were under sentence of a year and a day. Ninety one (or 31 per cent) were "repeaters," while only 17 per cent of those received with a longer sentence were "repeaters."

"The use of narcotics undermines the whole moral fibre of the white race and they soon have no sense of responsibility. It requires at least two years of a drug addict's system to undergo a change so that he will have sufficient will power to resist temptation. It is a well known fact that at least 95 per cent of the drug addicts who are sentenced to a year and a day fail to refrain from its use after their release from the penitentiary.

"The money that is now being expended by the government in trials of this class of convicts could, it seems, be much better applied in the building of such an institution as I have described, and at the same time relieve the over-crowded conditions existing today in the federal penitentiaries."

New Castle Folks Part Of Million Who Visit Hall

New Castle and Lawrence county residents who were in Philadelphia during the past summer and attended the sesqui-centennial celebration, of course, made a visit to Independence hall in Philadelphia. It may be of interest to these to know that they were a part of a throng of about a million persons who inspected the historic building during the summer.

All records for visitors were broken during the present year. A report from Philadelphia says:

Although Independence hall has been a mecca for thousands of visitors annually for more than a century, it is believed by city officials that 1926 will break all records for attendance at the national shrine of liberty, as more than 1,000,000 persons are estimated to have passed through its hallowed portals so far this year.

This is due, it is believed, principally to the sesqui-centennial year, as the holding of the exposition here has called distinct attention to the presence of the historical building where the Declaration of Independence was signed and where the liberty bell now rests. Another historic edifice that has attracted more than its usual quota of visitors this year is Congress hall, adjoining the old State House, and guides in both buildings proudly speak of the vast crowds of visitors they have escorted daily about the two buildings.

Only Quarter of People Register.

"We can estimate the number of visitors by the length of the registration lists daily," declared one of the guards. "More than 1,000 persons usually sign their names each day and less than one-fourth of the total attendance register as a rule. Many more would no doubt like to leave their signatures on the record of the historic building, but during the last few months, while the sesqui-centennial has been open, the throngs have been so great that hundreds cannot get near the book. We expected great crowds but the visitors here since last June have been more than we had hoped."

Everyone Likes This Cold Cure

"Pape's Cold Compound" ends a cold or grippe in a few hours

Your cold will break and all grippe misery end after taking a dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until three doses are taken.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuff-up! Quit blowing and snuffling! Ease your throbbing head—nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound", which costs only thirty-five cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, and causes no inconvenience. Accept no substitutes.

King George Is Planning Program For Race Track

(International News Service)

LONDON, Dec. 3.—As a result of one of the leanest years in his experience as a racehorse owner, King George is understood to be contemplating changes in the royal stud and stables at Egerton House, Newmarket.

Prominent racehorse owners estimate that the king has lost upwards of $100,000 on the stud since he took it over from his father. King Edward's success as an owner has not been repeated by his son and King George's victories on the turf have been few and very far between of late.

Next season therefore he is likely to have fewer horses in training although one or two of the two-year-olds that are showing promise are to be retained. It is understood that a few yearlings will also be added.

HUNTERS CLAIM RECORD KILLS

(International News Service)

WARREN, Pa., Dec. 3.—While the surrounding countryside swarmed with hunters, all roads leading into Warren brought reports of record kills Thursday.

Merle Barr of Clarendon laid claim to the largest buck killed in the vicinity in recent years. He exhibited a 12-point animal to substantiate his claim.

Mrs. John Hopkins of Clarendon shot a mammoth black bear, which, mortally wounded, led her husband a chase of five hours before he was finally brought in, it was reported here.

Carl Russo, proprietor of a meat market here, exhibited a doe in his shop. The animal cost him a $50 fine when his bullet glanced off the back of a buck and struck the doe, which stood immediateiy behind it, he said.

Non-resident hunting licenses were granted to three times the normal number of hunters this season, officials reported.

Los Angeles To Decorate With Hawaiian Flower

(International News Service)

HONOLULU, Dec. 3.—Hawaii's territorial flower, the hibiscus, is to be transplanted in large numbers to Exposition Park, Los Angeles as a result of the recent visit of business men from that city to the islands. Prof. William Alanson Bryan first professor of botany at the college of Hawaii and for the last several years curator of the Exposition park museum, has been designated to make a selection from the hundreds of varieties of Hawaiian hibiscus for transplanting in the park grounds.

Six Women Elected Members Of Illinois Legislative Body

(International News Service)

SPRINGFIELD Ill., Dec. 3.—Women will play an increasingly important part in the proceedings of the Illinois legislature at the coming session.

Five of the gentler sex, three Republicans and two Democrats, will have their say in the lower house while only one will take a place on the floor of the senate.

The house boasted of three women members at the last election.

Holdover members of the house are: Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, Downers Grove; and Mrs. Lena Elrod and Mrs. Katherine Hancock Goode, both of Chicago.

New women members of the house elected November 2 are Mrs. John H. Hanley, Monmouth, and Mrs. Mary C. McAdams, Quincy.

Mrs. Florence Fiffer Bohrer, Republican of Bloomington is the only woman member of the senate.

The house group and Mrs. Bohrer are expected to introduce various bills for the benefit of their sex, while they will support proposed legislation offered by women in the state.

Want To Avoid Divorce? Here Are 18 Good Tips

For persons who are contemplating matrimony and for those already in the married state, Judge Frank L. Baldwin of the court of domestic relations, of Youngstown, gives 18 rules on "How to avoid landing in the divorce court". He says the rules are the result of his experience in untying nuptial knots.

The rules are:

1—Marry for love and take the step advisedly.

2—Know something about the man or woman you marry, as to family and as to self.

3—Don't marry before a year of courtship, because you are then familiar with the character of your mate-to-be.

4—Learn to give and take, which means the willingness to share things and make sacrifices for each other.

5—Don't envy your neighbor who may have more money, better clothes or an automobile, because sometimes they aren't paid for.

6—Don't lose your temper and when your husband or wife is angry just remain silent.

7—Don't be extravagant. Live within your means and on your income.

8—Always dress attractively and be neat and clean, so that no other man or woman will have any lure.

9—Be sympathetic and understanding.

10—Don't ever say, "I told you so".

11—If your wife looks well in a particular dress don't fail to comment on it.

12—Don't be too suspicious and never deceive your mate.

13—Listen to no criticisms from outsiders or relations.

14—Live in your own home if it contains but one room and a kitchenette.

15—Avoid being jealous, because it is not a compliment to have anyone jealous. It is usually distrust.

16—Kiss your wife mornings when you leave and evenings when you return.

Signed By Thousands Petition Frees Dog

He Had Been Sentenced By British Magistrates—Case Is Not Unique

LONDON, Dec. 3. — A dog, condemned to death recently by a Midlands bench of Magistrates on the ground that he was a dangerous beast was reprieved as a result of a petition signed by thousands of local residents.

The action was not unusual for legal records contain many accounts of trials in which animals have been the central figures. In 1920 a terrier was condemned to death by a Magistrate in Kingston. Before that records show that bulls, pigs, roosters, horses and even rats have been tried in courts of law.

A bull at Moissy in France was prosecuted for having gored a man to death. He was sentenced to be strangled. Another case showed that a sow was charged with having injured a child. The animal was executed. The strange spectacle of a rooster being brought before a bar of justice occurred in Basle, Switzerland about 200 years ago. The bird was charged with being a nuisance and disturbing the public peace. It was actually represented by counsel who put up a strenuous appeal for the rooster. However it was decided that the bird must die and it ended its career in the stew pot of the Magistrate.

Balloon Drifts 1,600 Miles To Moscow, Russia

(International News Service)

MOSCOW, Dec. 3. — Drifting more than 1,600 miles in the air from the vicinity of Paris to a Moscow suburb a small balloon released by a French aerial enthusiast has just been captured here by Citizen Bilagushinski of the village Bogorodsk.

The balloon had a capacity of about two cubic meters. To it was attached a note in French asking the finder to report where it landed. The society "Aviakim" has forwarded the desired information to the French balloonist.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, cresote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to cresote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Advertisement.

Rev. McClure Will Occupy Pulpit At Services Sunday

First Presbyterian Pastor Recovers From Burns—Announces Services

Rev. Walter E. McClure of the First Presbyterian church, has fully recovered from his accident with the radiator cap and will be in his regular place Sabbath morning and evening.

At the evening service his thome will be: "The Modern Faith of a Presbyterian.

This message will be a review from the report of the special commission to the last General Assembly. Those who followed the proceedings of the last few Assemblies will remember that two years ago in the Columbus Assembly a special commission of 15 men was appointed to study the conditions within the church and report to the Assembly the following year. This was done, and a most remarkable report was received and adopted.

This special commission was appointed by Dr. Charles R. Erdman, the moderator. The following men served on the commission: Henry C. Swearingen, D. D., LL. D., St. Paul, Minn., chairman; Alfred H. Barr, D. D., Chicago; Hugh T. Kerr, D. D., LL. D., Pittsburgh; Mark A. Matthews, D. D., LL. D., Seattle; Lapsley A. McAfee, D. D., Berkley, Cal.; Harry C. Rodgers, D. D., Kansas City; William O. Thompson, D. D., LL.D., Columbus; Edgar W. Work, D. D., New York; ruling elders, John M. T. Finney, M. D., Baltimore; vice chairman; Judge John H. DeWitt, LL. D., Nashville; Edward D. Duffield, LL. B., Newark; Cheesman A. Herrick, Ph. D., LL. D., Philadelphia; Nelson H. Loomis, LL. D., Omaha; Nathan H. Moore, LL.D., Oak Park, Ill., and Robert E. Speer, D. D., New York City.

The report from this committee was adopted by the Assembly meeting in Baltimore last May and handed down to the pastors and congregations for study. Every member of the First church should hear this review of the report. Those who are doubtful as to the present beliefs of the Presbyterian church will be interested to learn what a modern Presbyterian believes.

At the morning service the message will be another from John's gospel, "God's Testimony Concerning His Son".

Australia Gives Prize For Best "Death" Poster

(International News Service)

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Dec. 3.—A novel suggestion is being adopted by the Government of New South Wales in order to discourage dangerous driving.

The idea is to erect a "death" sign at every place where a fatal accident has occurred. Unfortunately these signs will appear at frequent intervals but it is hoped that they will have a restraining effect on drivers.

An open competition for the best design for the "Death" sign will be arranged.

Constantinople Is Losing East Trade Morgenthau Says

By FRED J. WALKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Constantinople, historic portal between the east and west, has lost its position to Athens, according to Henry Morgenthau, philanthropist and former ambassador to Turkey.

"The center of near eastern trade and commerce," said Morgenthau, "has been moved from Constantinople to Athens. Exclusion of the Christians and Jews from Turkey is the cause."

Morgenthau painted a gloomy picture of the modern Turkey of Kemal Pasha. He said Turkish commerce and industry had been so greatly reduced that the new eastern republic had become again a nation of nomads.

Constantinople's famous Golden Horn harbor has seen since the later days of the Roman empire the ships of the west and east tied to its wharves.

Virtually from the time of the Emperor Constantine made of it a rival of Rome by establishing it as the eastern capital of the empire, Constantinople has been one of the great trading cities of the world.

Athens was the center of civilization more than a thousand years before Constantinople was founded.

With the rise in power of the Roman empire, Athens declined to a minor position among the leading cities of the then civilized world.

More than 1,500,000 Greeks, expelled by the Turks from the near east, have begun to be an economic asset to the land of their fathers, Morgenthau said.

The former ambassador is now writing a history of his work as head of the League of Nations' commission which supervised their rehabilitation and repatriation.

Fortune For Picture Alarms British Folk

"Pinkie," a Portrait, bought by Americans for $377,000.

By Central Press.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Englishmen are distraught over the loss of another valuable painting to the United States—a painting that has been sold at such a huge sum nobody in England was able or cared to bid higher.

"Pinkie," by Sir Thomas Lawrence, auctioned off from the Michelham collection, has brought 74,000 guineas—approximately $377,000. Duveen Brothers, international art brokers, who bid in this painting, are of course sending it to New York. The price is a record breaker for a public auction of pictures. Last year Romney's "Mrs. Davenport" sold for $300,000.

"Pinkie" was only one of the pictures auctioned off at this sale. Prices, to the alarm of British art lovers, were sensational. Two panels by Boucher brought in the neighborhood of $225,000. "A Portrait of Miss Tatton" by Gainesborough sold for $230,000, the sum being 500 times more than the sum the artist received for his canvas.

Painted in 1795, "Pinkie" is a full-length oil portrait of Miss Mary Moulton Barrett, a daughter of an old Isle of Wight family, and aunt of Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

Beautiful Legs On Actresses Have "Made" Many Stars

(International News Service)

HOOLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 3.—Beautiful legs have frequently won their owners recognition in the films.

Three stars, Mae Murray, Marie Prevost and Gloria Swanson, first attracted attention as motion picture actresses through their figures; many featured players "broke in" by virtue of their shapely limbs.

Joan Crawford's trim, demure figure was her gilded key to opportunity. Phyllis Haver and Mabel Normand, other well-known players, started as bathing beauties.

Others who have "graduated" into real parts from sheer hose and bathing suit exposures include the following:

Charlot Bird and Jocelyn Lee, with Lasky's.

Mabel Coleman and Sally Rand, DeMille.

Lillian Gish, starring in a picture which called for an actress with beautiful legs, engaged Pauline Garon in the movies when she saw Miss Garon's lovely limbs in a New York revue. Natalie Kingston was playing in the chorus at a Los Angeles show when Mack Sennett, the Flo Zeigfeld of the movies, happened in.

Curiously enough, Edna Tinchenor, Zalla Zamara and Betty Boyd, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer players who won admission into pictures by their ability to wear hosiery to advantage, are now playing in "The Day of Souls," where their legs do not show at all. They are freaks in a Dulapest illusion palace—a "living half-lady," a "human spider," and a mermaid.

Girls with comely limbs are highly ornamental in a picture. In addition, they can double for stars less favored.

Report Queen Marie And Carol Visit Secretly

Forbidden By Government To See Son — Mother Love Conquers

(International News Service)

PARIS, Dec. 3—Queen Marie was expressly forbidden by he Roumanian government to see Prince Carol during her stay in Paris, it was learned today. However it appears that mother love conquered the queen's desire to obey governmental orders and that the queen and her son met secretly.

General Angeslecu, representative of the Roumania government who met he queen at Cherbourg, is understood to have advised her that he Roumanian government forbade her to see the prince.

This fact would seem to explain Queen Marie's evasive reply to all queries as to whether she had seen Prince Carol while in Paris.

The late dance era has produced a market for a stenographer who will dream that she is awake and writing letters.

Heroic Statue To Do Honor To Pioneer Woman

"Sun Bonnet Heroine" Of Old Days Out West Will Have Memorial

Millionaire Oil Man Is Donor Of State Museum In Oklahoma

(International News Service)

PONCA CITY, Okla., Dec. 3.—A heroic sized statue of the pioneer or "Sun Bonnet Woman" as he prefers to designate her is to be erected in his home town here by Ernest W. Marland millionaire oil producer and refiner in connection with a state museum which Marland will build also. It is to stand as a monument to the pioneer woman who came in the covered wagon westward and helped in the homesteading and building of the west. The museum is to house pioneer relics principally.

Ten of the most famous sculptors in the world have been at work since last January on 30 inch models of the work to be submitted in Marland's novel contest which has turned the art world upside down.

The oil millionaire has given ten commissions, at $10,000, to a group of sculptors selected as the best in America and Europe. Each of the chosen is to submit a model in bronze, in February, 1927, to Marland in New York. Marland will select the winner of the competition and enter into a contract immediately for launching work on the statue, near Ponca City. Marland anticipates that he will devote $300,000 to the monument.

Statues To Heroes

"I have seen statues to "Buffalo Bill" Cody, Jim Bridger, Daniel Boone, Kit Carson, famous Indian chiefs, shafts to the pioneers who settled New England, but I have never seen any recognition of the pioneer woman, who made this country possible," Marland said.

"The idea gripped me a few years ago. In my travels through Europe I made contact on several occasions with art connoisseurs and sculptors whom I sounded. Everywhere, there was enthusiasm shown for the idea. The more I thought of the subject the more it gripped me.

"Nowhere in Oklahoma is there a real public monument. Nowhere in Oklahoma is there a heroic worthy of association with the art treasures of the world. I decided to put it near Ponca City, in the old Cherokee Strip, which was th last big opening where men and women in covered wagons turned virgin soil and made homes and cities on the raw prairie.

"If the big sculptors can catch the vision I have of the pioneer woman under the sunbonnet, cheerful, plain living, hard working, mother of a big family, the genuis of the pioneer home, the maker of civilization, the mothers of the men of the west, we soon will have in Oklahoma something that the world will come to see."

Davidson Interested

Marland has received a cablegram from Jo Davidson, famous American sculptor, announcing that he will arrive in Ponca City early in November, to spend several weeks in the community in order to get the "feel" of the country. He will try to find the pioneer type, typical of the subject he must work with, and to study the topography of Kay county with the location of the monument in view.

Davidson designed the heroic group for the French government to commemorate the first victory of the Marne, and was selected to make bronze busts of all the allied leaders in the great war. His bronzes of President Wilson are world-famous.

Marconi Takes Action For Former Wife

One of the reasons for the plea of William Marconi, wireless inventor, for the annulment of his marriage to Beatrice O'Brien is to please his former wife, who desires to solemnize in the Catholic church her marriage to Marquis Marignoli. Marconi and his wife obtained a civil divorce at Fiume, theirs being the last under an old law, before Fiume was annexed to Italy. Photo shows Marchese Marignoli, the former Mrs. Marconi.

WILL GET $750,000 PAY FOR CHRISTMAS

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 3—Approximately $750,000 will be paid to workmen in Greensburg and vicinity this month by the larger industries.

The coal industry payrolls will amount to $550,000 it is estimated. The semi-monthly payroll of the Keystone Coal and Coke company to be distributed Christmas eve will amount to $200,000 while the Grensburg Coal company will pay about $25,000 at the same time. The Irwin Gas Coal company will pay $50,000 while the payrolls of other companies will be smaller. It looks like a bright Christmas for the children in Greensburg.

Auto Thief Has A Double Dose Of Punishment

CONNEAUT, O., Dec. 3.—William Haytcher, 60 Oak street, Ashtabula, will have received a double dose of punishment for having stolen a car from Raymond Meinke, this city, the first punishment dealt out by fate, which landed young Haytcher in Brown Memorial hospital here, and the second to be administered by the law.

When police investigated a report that a new car had been completely wrecked on a curve a few miles west of the city, they found the car belonged to Meinke and that Haytcher had been taken to the hospital suffering from severe cuts and bruises which he received when the machine tipped over, Haytcher going through the top.

As soon as he has recovered from his injuries, which will be a matter of two or more weeks, Haytcher will be called before Mayor D. S. Brace here to face charges of auto theft, preferred by Meinke.

CALLS MOTHERS BEST TEACHERS

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 3.—Mothers who give their children proper instruction during the preschool period are greater teachers than college professors, Dr. Patty S. Hill of New York told more than 1,200 delegates and guests at the national conference of the child study association of America here.

Dr. Hill, who is professor of education in Teachers college, Columbia university, explained that although in the United States the recognized school age is six years, the greater formative period of the child's life is before that time.

Dr. Florence E. Bamberger, professor of education at Johns Hopkins university, continuing discussion of the subject, introduced by Dr. Hill, said that the greatest teacher could not undo the effects of the loyalties and disrespects, likes and dislikes, thoughts and prejudices, learned in the classroom or the home.

FOOD SHORTAGE FEARED IN CHINA

SHANGHAI Dec. 3.—Today the long threatened general strike at Hankow commenced. The Chinese customs employes and the servants and Chinese police in the foreign concessions ceased to work.

The labor guild has instigated the strike in order to force foreign employers to pay higher wages to their Chinese employes than were paid before the Cantonese army captured Hankow.

Gen. Kai Shock commander of the Cantonese is unoficially supporting the movement which threatens to impose a serious shortage of food supplies on the foreign communities at Hankow.

CLEAN BRITISH PALACE BUT NOT WITH VACUUMS

LONDON, Dec. 3.—When Buckingham Palace gets a cleaning such as has just been finished, the old-fashioned processes get the call. Not a vacuum cleaner is used.

As a result, officials, housekeepers and the small army of maids heaved several sighs of relief when the last touches had been made to the "winter clean" of 500 rooms.

The queen's rooms have so many valuable china specimens and priceless souvenirs of glass which must be replaced in exactly the same position, that photos were taken before the clean started so there could be no mistake about replacement.

Bullet In Vet's Lung Eight Years Finally Removed

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 3.—A German machine gun bullet that Private James Baguely of the Fifth Manchesters, British expeditionary forces, carried in his left lung for eight years, has been removed at the bronchoscopic clinic of the Jefferson hospital here.

Baguely was shot in Picardy in March, 1918, while the British were resisting the last German push on Paris. The machine gun bullet struck him in the jaw and surgeons decided it had glanced off the bone, and gone out through his cheek.

Following the war Baguely developed a hacking cough that was diagnosed as everything from poison gas to tuberculosis. He emigrated to Canada in search of health and his condition finally becoming acute, he came here for treatment.

X-ray photographs of the lung disclosed the bullet imbedded in the upper lobe, close to his heart.

AUTO VICTIMS QUIT HOSPITAL

CORRY, Dec. 3.—Miss Katherine Burns of Union City and John Courneen of this city, both injured in the automobile accident west of the city on Sunday, October 31, in which Donald J. Craker, popular young man of this city, lost his life, were able to leave Corry hospital on Tuesday.

Miss Burns suffered serious internal injuries in the accident, while she later suffered an attack of scarlet fever. It was feared for some time that the girl would not recover from her injuries, Miss Burns lying between life and death at the local institution for several days.

Courneen, suffered a fractured skull in the accident and hopes for his recovery were also despaired of for a time but he rallied and got along unusually satisfactory.

DOG AND FOX IN RACE OVER HILLS

KANE, Pa., Dec. 3.—When "Buzz", the rabbit dog of Ira Covell, who lives near here, went out to hunt with Mr. Covell, the dog picked up a playmate in a big red fox. Mr. Covell and "Buzz" were scouting the hills when the dog bayed on striking a fresh track. Then the hunter heard no more for a time. He listened, and after a time he heard the dog coming toward him. "Buzz" and a fox were racing. A bullet from Covell's gun brought down the fox.

WANTS TO CROSS OCEAN 150 TIMES

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Hoping to live long enough to establish a record of having crossed the Atlantic 150 times, Philip G. Peabody, a retired lawyer of Boston, arrived here today on the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VIII—the end of his 104th crossing. He will visit his son here, then leave to spend his 70th birthday, February 22, with some friends in Rome.

Mad Hog Kills Farmer In Yard

SOMERSET, Pa., Dec. 3—Attacked by a hog that turned on him when he went to chase a number of the animals from the yard at his home, William R. Miller, 52, prominent farmer at Bakersville, near here, was killed.

The hog rushed him, knocked him down and inflicted severe wounds. Miller's wife, who witnessed the attack from the house, ran into the yard but was unable to drive off the enraged hog. Miller lost much blood and was dead when his wife reached his side.

PROPOSE BIG STADIUM IN HONOR OF ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Erection in Washington of a stadium as a memorial to Theodore Roosevelt is proposed in a bill being drafted by Representative Fish, Republican, New York.

Other memorials have been suggested, but in the opinion of Mr. Fish none would be more appropriate to the character and sportsmanship of the former President than an athletic stadium.

Mr. Fish believes the stadium, which would accommodate 100,000 persons, would be a logical site for conventions, athletic meets and outstanding football games.

HACKED BODY IS NOT HER MATE'S

FREMONT, O., Dec. 3.—Failing to identify the dismembered body of an unidentified man, found murdered near Toledo, as that of her husband, who has been missing since Nov. 9, when he left for a duck hunting trip to Sandusky bay, Mrs. Wilbur of Fremont returned home today and prepared to renew a search of marsh lands and waters of the bay.

There was no resemblance between the body found by Toledo police several days ago and Voss, Mrs. Voss and other members of the family said.

Fishermen and residents along the shores of the bay have resumed a search for Voss, who may have drowned when his boat capsized during a squall. His boat was found.

VALENTINO DARING IN "THE EAGLE" FILM

Now Playing To Capacity Houses At The Dome Theatre

Rudolph Valentino had to do many daring stunts while filming "The Eagle," which presents him in the role of an action hero. This magnificent picture of Russia before the revolution is now playing to capacity crowds at The Dome Theatre.

The star is in great physical condition and never looked better than he does in this picture. He threw himself into the production with a real zest. He rides, fights, makes love and encounters dangers with a debonair smile.

The Russian characterization gives the star an opportunity to wear a Cossack uniform that is certainly as picturesque as anything he has ever donned. Later in the story he becomes a bandit and presents a dashing appearance in less polite garb.

Perhaps the most startling departure is in the running away from the approach of a woman—the Czarina, played by Louise Dresser, who has at last "found herself" in the pictures. The young officer brings a lot of trouble down on his head when he refuses her attention.

So there is something new under the cinematic sun.

This photoplay will be shown at the Dome today and tomorrow only. Please come early for good seats.

P. H. C. SELECTS NEW OFFICERS

Annual Election Of Circle Takes Place On Thursday—Plan Christmas Event

The annual election of officers, one of the most important sessions held during the year by New Castle circle No. 5, P. H. C., was observed on Thursday night with an excellent representation of the membership in attendance.

Many items of interest to the local circle were cared for before the election and among them the Christmas entertainment for children of the members was discussed.

The annual treat with a porgram by the "kiddies" will be held on Thursday evening, December 30, with Guardian Emma J. Goss and a committee in charge.

The closing year for the retiring officers in No. 5 has been one of the most successful in the history of the circle. The officers who vacate their stations have been faithful in their service and the membership has been largely increased during the year.

Miss Ruth Walker, the retiring president, has been an excellent presiding officer throughout her term and with her impartiality shown at all times has gained the highest esteem of the members.

Catharine Jones, who owing to her advanced years, retires from the office of watchman. To the members of the circle she is affectionately regarded as "Mother Jones". Elected as watchman of the circle in 1908 "Mother" has faithfully filled her office during her many terms.

On December 16 the circle will have a big meeting with a class initiation and visiting circles as guests. An excellent program is in progress and supreme officers are expected to be present.

With the election of officers in order the chairman appointed as tellers Past Presidents Esther Jeffries, Frank Kennedy and A. L. Conn. The election follows:

President—Roy Irwin.
Vice president—Leota Langsdale.
Guardian—Emma J. Goss.
Secretary—Lillie B. Jones.
Treasurer—George W. Wyman.
Chaplain—Ed Donnelly.
Guide—Gladys Gray.
Companion—Louise Edmunds.
Sentinel—Mattie Hilliard.
Watchman—Etta Welch.
Pianist—Catherine Badger.
Trustee, 3 years—Jack Langsdale.

The accountant is appointed by the supreme directors and is Geo. W. Muse.

An interesting program and lunch as a feature closed the busy session.

LILLIE B. JONES,
Secretary.

Chaplin And Wife Are Still At Odds

No Sign Of Rift In Family Affairs Closing Is Seen Today

BOTH DECLARE THEY WILL NOT RETURN

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 3. — The rift in the affairs of the Chaplin family showed no signs of closing today.

Following a party given by Mrs. Chaplin to a group of friends in her home early Tuesday morning, which included the Baron and Baroness Mlle De Precourt, Mrs. Chaplin left her home and took her two children to the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Curry, a disagreement between the film comedian and his wife precipitated this move.

Will Never Return

Mrs. Chaplin reiterated today, "I will never return to my husband's home."

Chaplin countered with a terse legal notice to newspapers that he would no longer be responsible for his wife's debts.

Although neither Chaplin nor his wife manifested any desires to discuss the incident which led to their separation, it has been known that the motion picture star objected to the noise made by his wife's guests on the morning of the dispute between them.

"I couldn't sleep," said Chaplin, "There was too much noise being made. I asked my wife to get those people out of the house."

The guests left. Later Mrs. Chaplin, her mother Mrs. Lillian Spicer, and the two Chaplin children also left, going to the home of Mrs. Chaplin's grandparents.

Mrs. Chaplin Mistreated

Mrs. Chaplin has been mistreated by her husband," was the subsequent statement forthcoming from her grandfather.

This has been emphatically denied by Chaplin.

"I have never ill-treated my wife," he said, "I have done everything I could to make my home a happy one but it seems impossible."

Neither Chaplin nor his wife have decided on a definite course of action yet. Mrs. Chaplin has already had a lengthy conference with her attorney George Beebe.

In a guarded statement, Beebe intimated that Mrs. Chaplin would ask for a divorce and would ask for the custody of their children Charles Spencer, Jr., and Sidney Earle, as well as a property settlement.

Charles Chaplin is still undecided just what steps to take. His attorney Lloyd Wright, he said was out of the city and was not expected to return until today.

London Tobacco Merchant Buys Palestine Stock

JERUSALEM, Dec. 3.—A block of shares worth $500,000 has been taken by Bernard Baron, of London, seventy-year old Jewish philanthropist known as England's "Tobacco Baron," in the Palestine Electrical Corporation. The company was formed to carry out the agreement concluded in 1921 between the British Crown Agents for the Colonies and Pinhas Rutenberg, for a concession for the utilization of the waters of the Rivers Jordan and Yarmuk and their affluents for generating and supplying electrical energy.

Mr. Baron has contributed $250,000 to the Keren Hayesode (Palestine Foundation Fund) and $50,000 to the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. He is now the largest individual shareholder of the Palestine Electric Corporation.

Under the agreement at least $1,000,000 of the company's nominal share capital had to be paid in cash to make the concession valid. This condition was carried out some time back, and the authorized capital is now fixed at $5,000,000.

The Jaffa Electric Campany, Inc. a subsidiary company of the Palestine Electric Corporation, made a net profit for 1925 of $30,515, according to the report to the League of Nations submitted by the British Government. A dividend of 6 per cent was paid on ordinary shares of the company for that period.

Steamer Conquers Blaze And Reaches Port; No One Hurt

(International News Service)

VIGO, Dec. 3.—Elaborate preparations taken by the port authorities to check the fire reported on board the Holland-American freight and passenger liner Maasdam were found unnecessary, for the vessel arrived here with the fire extinguished.

The fire, which broke out Tuesday, was put under control while the vessel was still at sea. Considerable damage was done but no injuries to the ship's personnel were reported.

TIME TO FACE THE FACTS

"So much has been said against the use of patent medicines that I have had a strong prejudice against them. But after four years doctoring with six different doctors, without results, for acute indigestion, gastritis, constipation, appendicitis and other ailments, I was said to possess, I was encouraged to try MAYR'S, seeing what it had done for a friend similarly afflicted. I also was entirely relieved of my trouble, and am sure this medicine will do all and more than is claimed for it". It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. McKee's Kut Rate Store and druggists everywhere.

Why Should You Buy From a Grocery Operated By the Owner

Government researches have proven conclusively that the cost of operation among successful independent grocers is much less, when compared with the volume of business, than it is in the "chain store" system. Therefore, quality for quality, your money will buy more in the independent stores than it will in the "chain stores".

It is an absolute necessity to maintain competition in business in order to prevent the taking of undue profits by whoever may gain monopoly. With a thousand or more independent stores, each owned by different merchants, contending with each other to gain a larger share of the business, you are always sure of the lowest price that they can give. Let this business be obtained by one "chain store" system, and the public will pay a pretty price for the cost of living.

Yale Seeks To Endow Library

(International News Service)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 3.—Yale University is seeking $3,500,000 to endow what is to be the largest and most complete library in the world. Yale University has plenty of money to build the structure, work on which is now under way here and there is a fund on hand to maintain the library. The $3,500,000 now being gathered is to endow the purchase of books and to maintain a trained staff.

Yale's library costing a sum now named to a certainty is to be ready in September 1928 if building plans do not go awry. The structure will house 1,600,000 volumes at the outset besides 10,000 periodicals coming in from every quarter of the civilized globe.

Two thousand persons will be able to seat themselves to use Yale's library books in comfort when the new place is done and the various reading rooms will open on a stret level. But the books themselves wil repose chiefly in a towering structure 192 feet high and 82 feet square an affair to be named the Book Tower.

Youth To Take Witness Stand

(International News Service)

KINGWOOD, W. Va., Dec. 3.—Prosecuting Attorneys today hoped to place Sonny Nash, 6-year-old son of Mrs. Bertha Nash, on the stand to reiterate his testimony that James J. Dailey, his mother's employer, shot the woman at Dailey's home near Rowlesburg on Oct. 15. Dailey is on trial for murder in connection with Mrs. Nash's death while employed as his housekeeper.

The boy previously said, according to police, that Dailey "shoot mama with a shotgun."

Dailey denied the shooting, alleging that the boy fired the shot while playing with a rifle.

Marshall Plans Rigid Cross-Examination Of New York City Actress

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 3.—Another sharp tilt between [illegible] New York actress, and defense attorney, Rody P. M[illegible] prospect today as the defense planned to resume its cross-examination of the comely plaintiff at the hearing in federal court on her $500,000 breach of promise suit against John W. Hubbard, wealthy Pittsburgher.

Marshall, one of the state's outstanding criminal lawyers was in the midst of a gruelling barrage of questioning intended to discredit Miss Caldwell's story, when court adjourned yesterday.

Cross-examination of the plaintiff began when she recovered sufficiently to resume her place on the stand after being carried out of the court room in a state of near collapse. Miss Caldwell resented Marshall's line of questioning from the outset and protested to Federal Judge W. H. S. Thomson, who is hearing the suit.

Marshall lost no time in impressing upon the jury that Miss Caldwell was a student of dramatics, after she had been revived in the judge's chambers. She replied that it was at Hubbard's insitence that she began a stage career.

The defense made much of an alleged mis-statement of the plaintiff's age in a supplementary bill of claims in which Miss Caldwell swore she was 21 at the time she alleged Hubbard seduced her. The actress is 32 now and the defense showed that she was 27 when the aneged act occurred.

Miss Caldwell explained she stated she was 21 believing the information required was merely whether she was a minor or not.

PLAN FOR ROUNDUP

Troop 13 met last night with Peter Grittie, scoutmaster, and Assistant Scoutmaster Jack Grittie presiding over an attendance of boys numbering 24.

Plans were made for the roundup to be held December 10 and the following boys were appointed:

First event, Knot Tying—A. Reneker, tenderfoot; Lynn White, second class; Louis Hannon, first class; Thomas Grittie, merit.

Second event, First Aid—Graham and Dewberry, tenderfoot; Robert Wallace, Bill Davis and Jim Hannon, second class; Hoffmaster, Henley and Louis Hannon, first class; Tom Grittie, Richard Wallace and Eckles, merit.

Third event, Fuzz Stick—Morrison, Kenneth Clark, Edward Sontum, tenderfoot; Wallace and White, second class. Signaling—Eckles and Richard Wallace, first class; Henry Grittie and Tom Grittie, merit.

Seventh event—John Henley.

G. L. Smith has announced that he will present each scout of this troop taking any points in the roundup with a beautiful first aid pin.

Troop No. 21 met Wednesday evening at the Lutheran church under the assistant scoutmaster, Norville Bothwell, taking the place of Scoutmaster John Dunfee. Ten scouts were present, the business of the evening being to admit three scouts, who passed the tenderfoot class tests at the meeting, into the troop.

Present Program At Beth Shalom Center

A program in which the children will participate will be presented this evening at 7:30 in the Beth Shalom Center. There will be children's chorus and an attractive entertainment. A number of boys and girls will take part.

Doesn't Cut Stars

Marion Davies.

Whether the movie stars like it or not, a liberal education and film acting go hand in hand. An actress cast as a stenographer must be familiar with the duties of such an employee, an actor playing a blacksmith must know how to shoe a horse. Because she was cast in "The Red Mill," Marion Davies now is an accomplished ice skater since the part called for her to be a skilled skater.

Century Old Village Likely To Pass Out

SALMON FALLS, N. H., Dec. 3.—This village of 1,000 population on the Salmon Falls river, dividing Maine and New Hampshire apparently was doomed to be wiped out of existence recently when the directors of the Salmon Falls Manufacturing company, manufacturers of woolen products virtually the only industry in the town, met here and voted to sell or lease their plant immediately. Prospects of doing either were considered dim by a majority of the board of directors and stockholders present.

The company organized 104 years ago and almost the only reason for the town's existence employs 300 hands, most of them the heads of a great majority of the town's family with some recruited from South Berwick, Me., just across the river.

Unless an economic miracle happens it was said the big factory and the tenements and one hotel—all owned by the Salmon Falls company—will be closed within six weeks or as soon as present orders are filled.

Evangelist At Mission Tonight

Evangelist Mark Smith will continue his series of services at the City Mission this evening. He will take for his subject this evening, "What do the People of the Church Today Expect of Jesus Christ?"

Rev. Smith's messages are very instructive and helpful and every one is invited to attend. Special music will also be a feature of this evening's service.

Mrs. E. J. Berquist's Girls Bible class will meet as usual at 6:30. Much interest is being shown in this Bible class. Any girl in the city 11 years of age or over is invited to attend this class and be present at the Mission at 6:30 on Friday evening.

FIELD FOREMAN KILLS SELF.

KANE, Pa., Dec. 3.—Algot E. Paulson, 33, foreman of the Campbelltown lease of the St. Mary's Gas company, 11 miles east of Kane, was found dead in a toolhouse by a passing motorist who stopped for water. Paulson committed suicide according to Coroner H. Clay Meffer of Bradford who investigated.

"When a man is observed with the marks of a lipstick on his check," observes an exchange, "he is never able to convince the neighbor women his wife put it there." And the chances are he is never able to convince his wife either.

Unique Problem For Zoning Board

Protest Received Against Rebuilding Of Store Wrecked By Bombing

BOARD TO MEET ON NEXT TUESDAY

Board of zoning appeals will have an interesting session Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 7, in the city council chambers, when it has for consideration one of the most unique cases that has yet been brought before it.

The case involved is that concerning the permit issued to James and Charles Ross, 306 East Lutton street, to rebuild the building destroyed a number of weeks ago by the bomb explosion and which almost resulted fatally to Mr. and Mrs. James Ross and family and Charles Ross.

One of the provisions of the zoning ordinance of the city, also of the fire limit regulations, is that in case of destruction of a building by fire or from other causes, that it may be reconstructed on the same site and of the same materials as previous to the destruction, providing that not more than 50 per cent of the building is to be reconstructed.

This property is in the fire limits, which prohibits the construction of other than brick or fireproof buildings. The permit to reconstruct in this case was granted on the assumption that the reconstruction work would not be more than 50 per cent of the building.

Since the granting of the permit John DeSimone has appealed against the granting of the permit, on the ground that in this case more than 50 per cent of the building will have to be rebuilt. The permit was for the reconstruction of the combined store and private dwelling.

The other case to be heard on next Tuesday is that of L. A. Pearsall of 314 Norwood avenue, who has appealed from the decision of the city engineer, who declined to issue him a permit to enclose the porch of his home in glass.

The meeting will be held at 3:30 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon.

Radio Regulation Must Be Permanent

Radio Enthusiasts Not To Be Satisfied With Temporary Action

MANY SUGGESTIONS BEFORE CONGRESS

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Radio enthusiasts in Congress today served notice that unless an agreement is reached for permanent radio regulation at this session of Congress they will oppose temporary legislation and precipitate further chaos in the air.

Proposals for "stop-gap" legislation immediately after Congress convenes next week were denounced by many senators and congressmen. Such action, they assert, would further delay a final solution of the problem.

Radio Discussion Rife

Discussion of the pending radio bills overshadowed all other topics as senators and congressmen returning for the session brought word that there is a country-wide demand for action. Responding to this demand, Republican leaders were a unit in declaring that radio legislation will be given full play if conference committees agree upon a bill.

With House conferees standing firmly for the White bill, lodging czar-like powers in Secretary Hoover and the Senate conferees demanding the Dill commission-control bill, an enforced compromise appeared to be the only possible solution.

The first formal meeting of the conferees has been tentatively set for Wednesday of next week.

War to Finish

War to the finish between the National Association of Broadcasters and the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers over the alleged "music monopoly" was indicated today at the meeting of the radio co-ordination conference.

Copyrights on most of the song hits of the day, demanded by radio listeners, are owned by the American Society, which sells licenses for their use to the broadcasters.

Broadcasters contend that the American Society offers only a "block license", that is, they are forced to purchase the right to use all copyright music held by the organization or take none.

The society won the first round when the supreme court held that broadcasting of music constitutes a public performance for profit, upholding the contention that a license must be obtained to prevent violation of the copyright.

Amendments to the federal copyright law to permit bargaining between individual composers and radio broadcasters for the use of copyright music, may be proposed at the short session of Congress. This was a compromise measure by which officials hope the "war" may be ended.

While there is no fool like an old fool, one doesn't hear so much about it if he has less than a million.

Airplanes Fight Rum Runners On Pacific Coast

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 3.—A fleet of airplanes to discourage rum smuggling into Los Angeles for the holiday season is the hopeful expectation of Col. Robert Frith, head of the prohibition enforcement service in Southern California.

Frith also announced he will call proprietors of hotels and cabarets here into conference to determine whether in their opinion, consumption of liquor among their patrons has diminished or increased during the last year.

Bootleggers Fail To Become Rich

(International News Service)

NEWPORT, Ky., Dec. 3.—Despite the fact that bootleggers thruout the nation are generally supposed to be at least "well-to-do", this city does not boast of any extraordinarily rich liquor vendors, according to federal court records.

The government recently lost $6,000 in liquor law fines when 17 convicted bootleggers, after serving 30 days pending payment of their fines, took the pauper's path before the United States commissioner and were turned free.

"They must have been terribly poor—living from hip to mouth, perhaps", remarked a court attache as the group filed from the room.

"Whispering Gallery" Hoax, "Author" Seized

He Is Hesketh Pearson, A Literary Agent—Book Dealt With Court Secrets

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The culmination of the strangest literary hoax in recent years came with the arrest of the supposed author of "The Whispering Gallery," a book which dealt with court secrets and noted personages. He is Hesketh Pearson, a literary agent, and is charged with obtaining 225 pounds on false representation from the John Lane company, which published the book.

"The Whispering Gallery" made what has been characterized as "scandalous" reference to many dead and living members of royal families and eminent men. It created an enormous stir, but was of short life, for, chiefly owing to its denunciation by the Daily Mail, the book was withdrawn from circulation.

PARTNERS IN CRIME MAKE GOOD IN JAIL

SALT LAKE CITU, Utah Dec. 3.—Starting out as partners in crime and later terminating this tie when they fell into the hands of the law Archie Wilcox and R. H. McCoy have become inevitable partners in the state prison here.

Both mechanically inclined, they turned their skill when reunited in the prison machine shop to improving equipment. One of their achievements is an improved type of bearing said to eliminate knocks from motors. Patent has been applied for and McCoy has been notified that it would be issued.

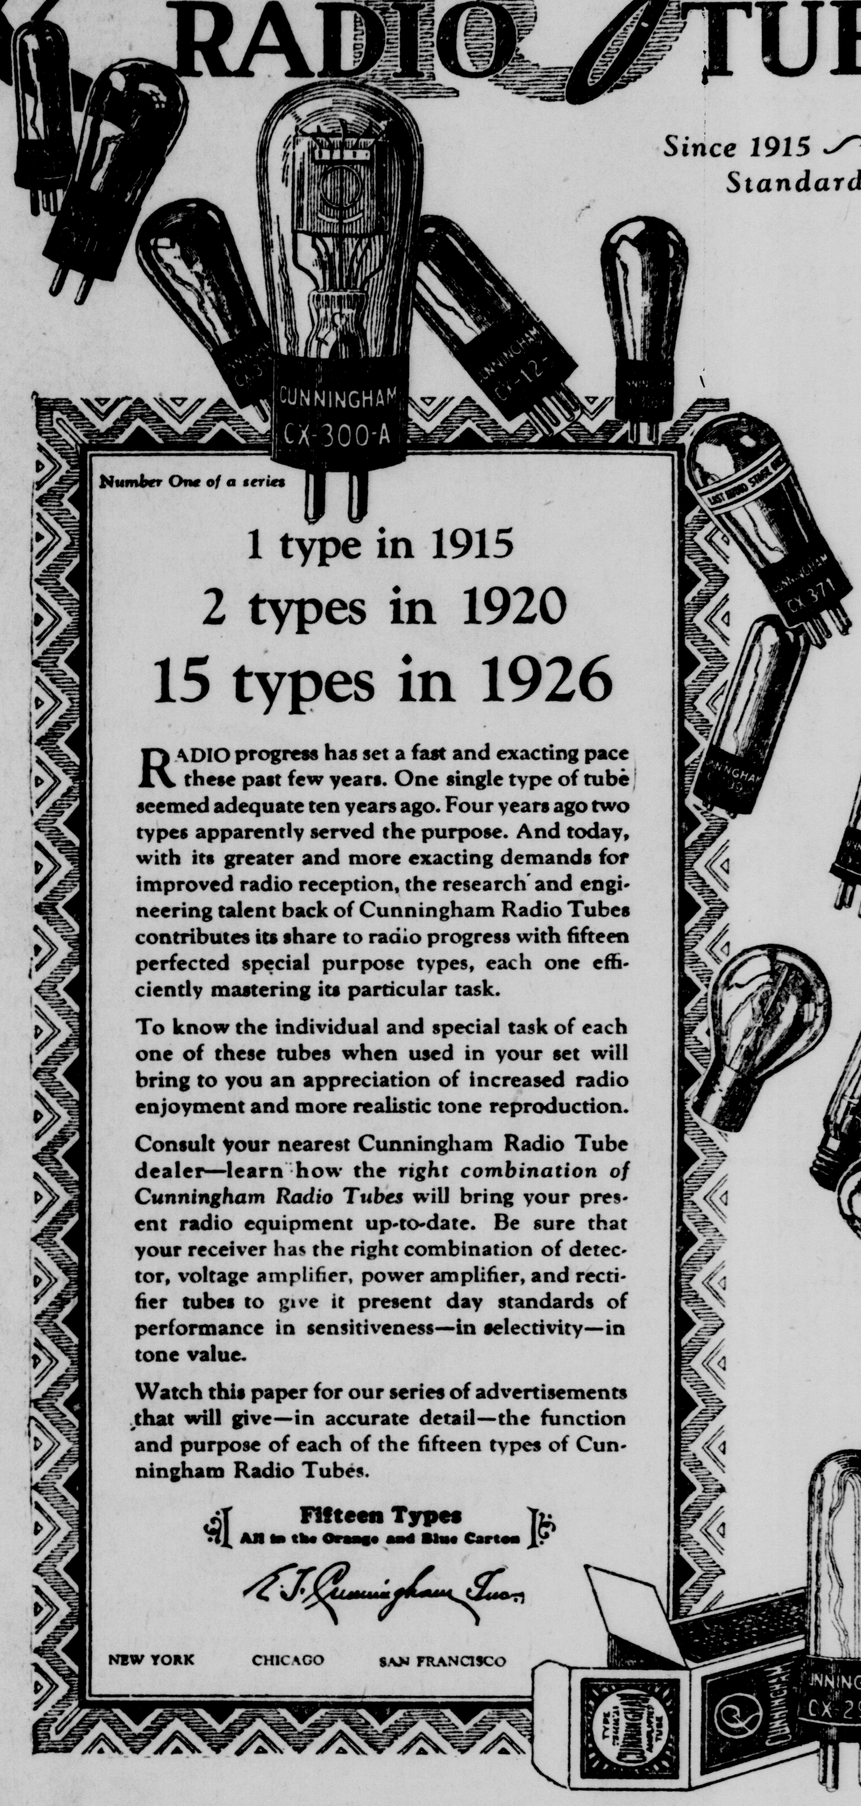
Cunningham RADIO TUBES

Since 1915 — Standard for all sets



Number One of a series

1 type in 1915
2 types in 1920
15 types in 1926

RADIO progress has set a fast and exacting pace these past few years. One single type of tube seemed adequate ten years ago. Four years ago two types apparently served the purpose. And today, with its greater and more exacting demands for improved radio reception, the research and engineering talent back of Cunningham Radio Tubes contributes its share to radio progress with fifteen perfected special purpose types, each one efficiently mastering its particular task.

To know the individual and special task of each one of these tubes when used in your set will bring to you an appreciation of increased radio enjoyment and more realistic tone reproduction.

Consult your nearest Cunningham Radio Tube dealer—learn how the right combination of Cunningham Radio Tubes will bring your present radio equipment up-to-date. Be sure that your receiver has the right combination of detector, voltage amplifier, power amplifier, and rectifier tubes to give it present day standards of performance in sensitiveness—in selectivity—in tone value.

Watch this paper for our series of advertisements that will give—in accurate detail—the function and purpose of each of the fifteen types of Cunningham Radio Tubes.

Here And There Over The State

GETTYSBURG—The volunteer fire company of Gettysburg has planned to hold its annual Christmas party for the "kiddies" of the town. The affair will be held on Christmas night. Twelve hundred pounds of candy and 1,200 oranges have been purchased for distribution.

EASTON—Authorities have started an investigation of the death of Charles Supenis who died here a year ago. At that time it was reported death was due to a fall down a flight of stairs at the home of Mrs. Anna Yourgitis. The investigation is being conducted along the theory that he was pushed down the stairs during a drunken fight.

LEWISTOWN—Mrs. P. G. Hunter, 91, of Lewistown was presented with a gold medal in recognition of her 50 years of service as teacher in the Baptist Sunday school here. For three quarters of a century she has been an active Sunday school worker. The medal was presented by the Pennsylvania State Sunday School association.

WEST HAZLETON—On December 10 a new $100,000 school building will be dedicated here. Officials of the State Department of Education have been invited to attend the dedication exercises and deliver addresses.

LEWISBURG — The Bucknell University debating team will meet the three Oxford University debaters who are touring this country, here December 14. The English forensic team will uphold the proposition that prohibition should be abolished in the United States while the local trio will defend the Volstead act.

GETTYSBURG—Because of the continued bad weather, pouring concrete on two road jobs in Adams county have been halted by the local office of the State Department of Highways. Both roads must be kept passable through the winter months, the highway department announced and the construction companies will be notified when they can resume work in the spring. The bad weather has caused a delay in the work and the loss of thousands of dollars to the contractors it was said.

WILLIAMSPORT — The Williamsport Motor club and the Lycoming Automobile club will be united into one organization if plans now underway develope it was announced. The merger, it was explained would be a means of better guarding the interests of the automobile owners. The enlarged organization would be affiliated with the Pennsylvania Motor Federation and the American Automobile association.

BRADFORD—Henry Stevens one of the defendants in the famous Hall-Mills murder trial at Somerville, N. J., is well known in this district, having taken part in many shoots in this city, it was said. From 1905 to 1910 he represented an arms manufacturing company in this section and participated in many of the weekly shoots at the local gun club.

STUFFED GRATE IS CAUSE OF FIRE LOSS

New Chairman For G. O. P. Now Being Sought

Indications Are That Senator W. M. Butler Will Be Supplanted

MANY LEADERS ARE MENTIONED

By GEORGE H. MANNING
(Washington Correspondent of the News.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 3.—A "still hunt" is on among the Republican leaders to find a successor to Senator William M. Butler as chairman of the Republican National committee.

Despite the denials from the White House spokesman that there is any pressing need for a change in this imoprtant political post as a result of the defeat for election to the senate of the present chairman, the wiseacres in the party are testing out sentiment in the ranks of the faithful, believing that Mr. Butler's usefulness as a party leader is at an end.

Under ordinary circumstances, there would be no serious talk about the selection of a chairman until the meeting of the Republican National committee in Washington a year hence to select the time and place for holding the next Republican national convention. But it cannot be denied that there is at present a very general feeling existing among prominent Republicans looking to the downfall of Senator Butler.

Indication of Desire.

The most recent indication of this desire for a change in the chairmanship has come from the Empire state. Announcement has been made by the friends of Charles Dewey Hilles that they are grooming him for head of the Republican National committee. It must be confessed, however, that the name of Mr. Hilles does not appeal to the rank and file of prominent Republicans. Attention is directed to the fact that it was Mr. Hilles who managed the campaign of President Taft in 1912 when the latter ran against Mr. Roosevelt in the celebrated Bull Moose contest. It is further recalled that with Mr. Hilles directing the affairs of President Taft, the latter carried only the states of Vermont and Utah in that never-to-be-forgotten campaign which resulted in the election to the presidency of Woodrow Wilson.

Those who cannot see Mr. Hilles as national chairman again point out that he has not proven himself an astute and far-seeing politician in any of the recent campaigns in the state of New York, where Democratic candidates for governor and other state offices have been victorious. Mr. Hilles, they say, was most active as one of the directing heads in the recent campaign in the Empire state which resulted in the re-election of Governor Al Smith and the defeat of Senator Wadsworth for re-election to the senate. With this record behind him, it is not believed that the real leaders in the Republican party would care to entrust a national campaign to him.

From Middle West?

The real students of politics in the party argue that the next chairman should come from the west or middle west section of the country. In this connection the states of Ohio and Indiana figure most prominently. There has been some talk in Washington since the November election of the availability of Representative William R. Wood of Indiana as national chairman. His friends point to the fact that as chairman of the Republican National congressional committee, Mr. Wood has been successful in the election of a Republican majority in the house in an off year. This feat, they claim, entitles him to recognition from party leaders now engaged in the task of shaping policies for future action.

So far as Ohio is concerned, there is very little gossip heard about the selection of a national chairman and admirers of Senator Frank Willis, recently re-elected, would like to see him lead the party in the presidential race in 1928. But objection has been raised to him because of his radical views in favor of the "dry" cause. It is argued against him that he would not be willing to compromise with the "wet" element in the party and would, therefore, alienate this following in some of the doubtful states.

Lowden Mentioned.

The name of former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois has been brought forward as a potential candidate for a national chairman. It is in his favor that he has the backing of a large majority of the farmers of the west and middle west. But these same farmers are backing Mr. Lowden for the presidential contest and if this sentiment became sufficiently strong throughout the rural districts, his name would be presented before the next Republican national convention. This situation would seem to eliminate the former governor from serious consideration in connection with the chairmanship of the Republican National committee.

There is a good deal of serious talk heard about the availability of Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas, Republican leader in the senate, as the successor to Chairman Butler. Senator Curtis is regarded as one of the most astute politicians in the Republican party. During his service in the senate he has displayed a very happy faculty of smoothing out difficult and ticklish situations in the ranks of his own colleagues which threatened for a time to disrupt them. He has had long and wide experience in the handling of men and public questions and his ability as an organizer is generally recognized.

There has also been some discussion of the advisability of drafting C. Bascom Slemp of Virginia for national chairman. Mr. Slemp, former congressman, former secretary to President Coolidge and national committeeman for a number of years is regarded generally as one of the shrewdest politicians in the party, a wonderful organizer, a man without enemies among the leaders and with a knowledge of men in the party and their capabilities unexcelled by anyone. The only objection that can be lodged against Slemp is that he comes from the south and that his appointment might be resented by the leaders and voters of the north and west. And this objection, some of the leaders predict, is sufficient to prevent him getting the job for which he is so ably fitted.

While it is not anticipated that Chairman Butler will retire in the immediate future, there seems to be little doubt in the minds of Republicans who have visited Washington within the past week or so that the time when he will relinquish his duties as head of the national committee is not far off.

GUARD STORES IN NEW CASTLE

Especial Arrangements Made To Watch For Crooks During Holidays

With Christmas slightly more than three weeks distant, and the holiday trade growing like an oil boom town, local store proprietors have completed plans to prevent thefts this holiday season.

The plans have resulted in co-operation from the city police, detectives, acting under Chief Dysart and a corps of plain clothesmen and women, privately employed by the store proprietors.

The plans have been made to prevent loss to store and shopper, as shoplifters, who travel under the name of kleptomaniacs, in some instances, cause a big annual loss.

In some stores the detectives men and women, wander, it would appear, rather aimlessly about the stores, their furtive eyes watching everybody and everything.

Other stores have women detectives employed as sales ladies and private detectives as clerks or floor walkers. They are all employed for the same purpose: to catch or prevent shoplifting.

Local storekeepers, however, expect to prevent what they term is a big annual loss this year, so kleptomaniacs, or, in plain words, shoplifters, should banish the "taking for nothing" habit this season, or arrest will follow.

The new Balkite

Trickle and High-Rate Charger

The new Balkite Charger with both low and high charging rates is easily the greatest charger value in radio. It combines a trickle and rapid charger in one. As a trickle charger, it can be permanently connected to your battery and in effect converts it into an automatic light socket "A" power supply. Its high rate supplies a ready reserve of power for the largest sets.

The new Balkite Charger is a permanent piece of equipment. It has no tubes and nothing to replace. Entirely noiseless, in most cases it can be used during reception. Can be used with 4 or 6-volt batteries. Price $19.50. FOR THOSE WHO REQUIRE A CHARGER OF ONLY LIMITED CAPACITY—THE BALKITE TRICKLE CHARGER—$10. Ask your dealer.

Nicaraguan Situation Becoming Tense, Diaz Is Elected President

Severe Fighting Breaks Out Within 30 Miles Of American Forces

Senator Wheeler Favors Withdrawing Of United States Protectorate

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—American troubles in Nicaragua, instead of being ended by the elevation of Adolfo Diaz to the presidency, appeared today to be just beginning.

Despite the presence of American Marines along the coast, despite American warships patrolling Nicaraguan waters, and despite the warnings of the State Department, Dr. Juan Sacasa has revived the Liberal revolution and there has been severe fighting within thirty miles of the American forces.

An ugly situation may easily develop. The sympathy of the Mexican government is with the Sacasa revolutionists, and they apparently have been fairly well equipped with arms and ammunition of Mexican origin, for there is an embargo in effect from American ports.

Diaz Supported

The State Department is supporting President Diaz. He was, in fact, inducted into office under the protecting guns of the American warships, and under the auspices of the State Department's representatives at Managua. He has formally asked the State Department to maintain him by "whatever means" it considers necessary. To date those "means" have been the continuance of American armed forces in Nicaragua for an indefinite period.

Whether the American forces will actually engage the Sacasa revolutionists, if they appear to be getting the upper hand, remains to be seen. It was said at the State Department that the traditional American policy in such cases was to refrain from taking sides in actual hostilities—but officials there would not say today that the occupational forces would not go to Diaz' aid if it was necessary.

Meanwhile, the State Department's policy in the situation is being carefully watched on Capitol Hill. If the marines actually are sent into action to quell the Liberal rebels, there will be an explosion in the senate when that body meets next week.

Senator Wheeler, (D) of Montana, already has announced his intention of introducing a resolution calling for the immediate withdrawal of American armed forces from Nicaraguan territory in order that "these people may have a government of their own choosing."

The Nicaraguan situation is serious enough of itself. Taken in conjunction with the controversy with Mexico it becomes increasingly more so.

Discuss Timely Topic At Croton Church

Rev. T. W. English will preach this evening in Croton avenue M. E. church at the special services conducted by the Epworth League of the church on the theme, "The Waiting World".

The devotional period will be led by Charlotte Rodgers. Special music will be a feature of the evening. A vocal duet will be given by Anna Marian Critchlow and Lois Rodgers and a piano solo by Camella Smith.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS
BY MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT.

Many people like and indeed need a hearty breakfast especially in cold weather. Sausages must be well cooked to be digestible. Cook them slowly until they are brown all over. This applies to the sausage meat as well as the links. The corn cakes should also be cooked rather slowly and thoroughly. They take a little longer than ordinary griddle cakes although they are cooked on a griddle.

Orange Juice Sausages
Corn Cakes with Syrup
Coffee.

Corn Cakes—Two eggs, one cup milk, one can corn, one and one half cups flour, one teaspoon sugar one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon baking powder. You may need to add a little more flour but try this first. Bake on a hot griddle.

Christmas Hint.

How about a sweater for a Christmas gift if you are puzzling over your problems? Mother could use a prety one, be sure as she often feels chilly in cold stormy weather especially when she sits down to sew or read after a particularly strenuous piece of housework and father would have a hundred uses for one. Brother always needs a new one and so does sister. The skating season will be on then you know. And outside the family I can't think of anyone who would not be pleased to get a soft warm sweater.

Don't Forget That

It is not safe to eat pork unless it is absolutely fresh. Always buy pork from a reliable butcher who has his meats tested.

A spoonful of whipped cheam added to stewed fruit makes it seem like an elaborate dessert. A pretty glass to serve it in adds to the illusion.

Cleaning and scrubbing brushes get sour if not aired in the sun. Put a hook in a sunny place and hang them up until dry.

Hard rubbing will injure woolens and silk fabrics. A kneading motion is better for them..

MENU HINT

Pumpkin pie is a favorite dessert at this time of year, and every housewife is sure she has the best recipe. For the beginner in cooking it is best to experiment with different reliable recipes until the one that best suits the taste of your family is found. In baking pumpkin pie I have found it is best to put the pie into a quite hot oven, then lower the heat somewhat until done. A pumpkin pie should bake at least forty minutes.

Cream of Celery Soup
Croutons
City Chicken Squash
Mashed Potatoes Gravy
Baking Powder Biscuit
Cranberry Sauce
Pumpkin Pie Coffee

TODAY'S RECIPES

City Chicken—Take one pound veal steak, one pound pork tenderloin. Cut in pieces about one and one-half inches square. Put alternately a piece of veal, then a piece of pork on wooden skewers that are used for rolled roast, until six pieces are used. Roll each "chicken" in cracker crumbs and beaten egg. Brown well on all sides, season well. Put in roaster, add two cups of water, cover and bake two hours. When done add a cup of rich milk to make the gravy.

Pumpkin Pie — One-half can pumpkin, one-half cup sugar, two eggs, one tablespoon cornstarch, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon each of allspice, cloves, one-half cup milk.

New England Pumpkin Pie—Thicken one cup of hot milk with one tablespoon flour and cook until smooth. Then add the following mixture. Yolks of two eggs beaten, one cup brown sugar, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon ginger, one cup pumpkin (stewed and mashed), one teaspoon cinnamon (cloves, allspice, nutmeg), if liked; add last of all, the beaten whites, put in crust and bake until it puffs and is brown, serve with whipped cream and bits of currant jelly.

Eggless Pumpkin Pie—Take one quart of stewed or canned pumpkin one quart of sweet milk, about nine soda crackers (rolled fine), one cup sugar, one tablespoon flour, one teaspoon ginger, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, one-half teaspoon salt and one tablespoon melted butter. Stir well and pour into three open crusts. These pies are as light and rich as though eggs were used. Canned milk and water may be used with good results.

Pumpkin or Squash Pie — One and one-half cups strained squash or pumpkin, one-half cup sugar, one cup boiling milk, poured over the pumpkin before adding the sugar, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon cinnamon, one egg slightly beaten.

SUGGESTIONS.
New Rugs From Old.

Do not discard old carpets until you see if you cannot have a new rug made from them. Six or seven pounds of old carpet make a square yard of the rewoven rug. If you have a heavy old carpet or rug turn it up-side-down and varnish the back. It will make a comfortable covering for the kitchen floor or for the bedroom where small rugs are used.

When Windows Rattle.

When winter winds make the windows rattle screw a hook to the bottom of the window and a screw-eye to match the window sash. Put them far enough apart so that they will be a pretty close fit. This will lock the window tightly and prevent the rattling.

To Organize Bible Class In Y. W. C. A.

It is being planned to organize a Bible class in the Y. W. C. A. for the purpose of Bibl study. Mrs. Walter McClure has been secured to teach this class and those in charge feel very fortunate in securing her. This class will be open to the public, for all who desire to attend.

The exact time for this class to be held is not known but classes will begin the first part of January. The date will be announced at a later time.

Your Old Dictionary is Out of Date

Said the Publishers: "When our editorial staff first realized that the rapid advance of science was bringing to us an avalanche of new words, orders were at once given to compile an entirely new dictionary. When this task was completed, our former printing plates were abandoned. And so all other out of date printing plates should be thrown into the discard. But unfortunately for the public, many of them are merely revised and placed on the market as new dictionaries.

How to Talk

By FARQUSON JOHNSON
Consulting Editor New Universities Dictionary

Article No. 5

One of the most common errors in our language is the mispronunciation of the word "height." Listen in on almost any conversation where that word is used—that is, where any degree of education, high or low, is represented—and about nine times out of ten you hear "height" mispronounced.

How does it happen? I don't know. I've been watching it for years, and I've given up.

The one and only correct way to pronounce the word "height" is "hite"; but invariably it is mispronounced with a "th" at the end, the same as "width."

The word in itself is simple enough, and there is no excuse for trying to make another word of it. Nobody ever mispronounces such words as "light," "flight," "right," and "might." All of these words end in "ht," as do many similar words. I never have heard anybody say "lighth," "flighth," or "righth," but most of them do say "heighth."

It is well to watch the "th" in such words as "length," "breadth," and others ending in "th." Many are likely to slight the full pronunciation of the "th," some saying "lengt," "dept," etc., and yet those same people will give stress to "th" at the end of "height," where it doesn't belong.

Don't be shy in correcting such mistakes when you hear your friends make them. Of course you'll be careful not to offend. Make it a practice to watch yourself, as well as your friends, for errors in speaking and writing.

Leading up to such a practice, the New Universities Dictionary will be found invaluable. It contains an enlarged vocabulary; it is complete, concise; it is easily handled—the ideal dictionary for everyday use.

Lewis Announces Fine Balance In State Treasury

More Than Four Million Dollar Increase In Receipts For November

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 3.—State Treasurer Samuel S. Lewis has reported a balance of $41,309,990.24 in all funds of the state at the beginning of December business. The balance increased more than four million dollars during the month of November, the report showed, the November 1 balance being $37,291,810.19.

November receipts were $12,779,127.58 and expenditures $8,760,947.53.

The balance this month has been augmented by receipts for 1927 automobile license tags. The motor fund has a balance of $12,100,456.21.

An outstanding feature of the treasury report was the balance shown of $14,791,513.34, in the general fund from which current expenses are paid.

Soldier's Food 36 Cents A Day, Report Shows

Secretary Of War Gets Report Of Army Costs From Quartermaster

Operate 40 Laundries And Has School To Teach Cooks And Bakers

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. — It costs 36 cents a day to feed a soldier and $1.75 a month to do his washing.

These facts are disclosed in the annual report to the Secretary of War of Major General B. F. Cheatham, quartermaster general of the army, made public.

The food cost is based on the standard garrison ration, which for the fiscal year 1926 averaged to be exactly 36.12 cents per day per soldier. The army maintains 12 schools for cooks and bakers.

The army operates 40 laundries which furnish service to enlisted men. Net savings to the government, after deducting all expenses for operation, supplies and depreciation totalled $260,913.34 for the year.

Salvage of waste material, sales of surplus property and transfer of surplus property to other government departments, netted the war department approximately $2,000,000. Sales of waste amounted to $1,045,378.70 and surplus property disposals $954,598.83.

Food For Livestock.

The army produced $231,509.40 of the forage required by its livestock. The three remount depots produced $86,135.40, the Philippine department $40,370.08 and pasturage at the depots was valued at $105,003.92.

Considerable "hoss trading" was carried on during the year, the army having purchased 3,092 riding, draft and pack animals. Nearly 100 additional stallions were placed at the service of breeders in the army's effort to improve the standard of horses in this country.

While horses were being bought the number of motor vehicles was being reduced, the reduction totalling 2,284. This reduction was brought about by transfers of trucks and cars to other departments and to the national guard and by sales and dismantling.

But there were enough motor cars left in service to burn up a whole lot of gas. The report shows 14,019,000 gallons of gasoline and oil were transported between refineries and army stations in government-owned tank cars. By handling its own gas transportation the army saved $168,055 in car rentals and $251,753 demurrage.

Eleven ocean-going vessels were operated by the transport service for the movement of troops, animals and supplies. During the year these vessels carried 50,696 passengers, 472 animals, 162,819 tons of freight and 796,276 pounds of mail at a cost of $3,194,316. Rates of commercial vessels for the same service would have totalled $6,275,860, a saving to the government of $3,081,544 being shown by the transport operations.

Real Estate Operations.

Real estate and building operations of the army ran into the millions. Land purchases amounted to $2,320,282.33, representing 74 parcels. Sales of 11,136.85 acres of land not needed for military operations brought in $1,671,501.90. Buildings to the number of 967 were salvaged, the material being used for repair work at posts and stations.

Principal new construction projects included replacement of temporary buildings at Walter Reed General hospital, Washington; construction of a new air post at Wright field, Dayton, O., and enlargement of Madison barracks, N. Y.

Expenditures of $79,085 for the care of American cemeteries in Europe and $320,083 for the 82 national cemeteries in America were reported. Forty-four bodies were brought back from abroad bringing the total returned to 46,344. Identifications of 132 unknown were established. Contracts were let for 2,300 world war and 2,810 civil war headstones.

Altogether the quartermaster corps handled 69 appropriations aggregating $81,266,342.20. Authorized expenditures totalled $76,731,597.75, leaving an unexpended balance of $4,494,744.45. Of this $4,067,527.50 was carried over to the fiscal year 1927, the balance of $427,216.95 reverting to the treasury.

Board Of Directors Meet On Thursday

Chamber Of Commerce Men Dine With County Officials And Road Supervisors

A meeting of the board of directors of the New Castle Chamber of Commerce was held as a luncheon meeting at the First M. E. church, at noon, Thursday, December 2, at which time President F. L. Rentz entertained as his guests the officials of Lawrence County and the road supervisors. In addition to the supervisors there were present on this occasion T. W. Dickey, J. A. Appleton, L. B. Round, J. K. Love, J. M. Smith, F. L. Rentz, I. M. Ramsey, and Robert J. Tully, directors of the New Castle Chamber and Hon. R. L. Hildebrand, Judge of Lawrence County, County Commissioners Matthews, McCullough and Davis, Prothonotary Ralph Campbell, County Treasurer David Nessle, members of the State Assembly, Richards and Bickett, Hon. W. H. Dunlap, Mayor of New Castle, Jacob F. Rentz, and Mr. Berkman, Mr. Havinghurst, Mr. Waite and Mr. Davidson of Beaver Falls, and Dr. H. C. Weaver of the First M. E. church.

Luncheon was preceded by grace being offered by Dr. H. E. Weaver. Following luncheon President Rentz introduced the new director Robert H. Tully and all of the guests and immediately following these introductions a short address was delivered by Judge Hildebrand.

Following the address of Judge Hildebrand, President Schmidt of the Lawrence County Road Supervisors Association called for a rising vote of thanks from those present to Mr. Rentz for the entertainment of their association.

Chairman Rex Patch of the Christmas Pageant to be held in New Castle on December 10, announced the plans being made for this celebration and asked for the co-operation of those present and the community.

President F. L. Rentz was nominated for membership on the Board of Directors of the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce.

The reported attempt to remove Troop "A" 104 Pennsylvania Cavalry was taken up for discussion and the President appointed as a committee to make a study of this and to attempt to prevent the loss of Troop A. Messrs. R. J. Tully, chairman; J. A. Appleton and L. B. Round.

Appropriate decoration of the streets of New Castle for Christmas holiday season was taken up and discussed and endorsed by the Chamber.

Texas Girls Prepare For Rifle Contest

(International News Service)

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 3.—Holding their first shoot of the year, the Girls' Rifle club of the University of Texas met recently at the indoor range on the Little Campus. Marvin Kreusz, of the Austin Rifle club, who is in charge of the girls this year, was more than pleased with the "markswomanship" shown by the co-eds.

Equipment for the girls of the club includes the latest type of Winchester target rifle, .22 caliber. The rifles are made especially for indoor target ranges.

There are 40 members in the club now and a long waiting list of students who wish to join the organization is in the hands of Miss Bertha Black, of Navasota, president of the club.

An interesting program has been outlined for the girls this year. They shoot against the Austin Rifle club, the Boys' club of the university, and a match by telegraph with the girls' team of the University of Maryland will be the high light of the season.

Wife Slays Young Girl In Battle For Husband

Mrs. Blanche Richmond, 32, Kansas City, Mo., says she killed 17-year-old Carrie Sparks because the girl said she would rather die than give up Mrs. Richmond's husband, Harry, 33. Photo of Mrs. Richmond and sketches of Carrie Sparks and Harry Richmond.

By J. C. JOHNSEN
Central Press Staff Correspondent
Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 3.—Carrie Sparks, typical 17-year-old flapper is dead.

Death is the price she paid for playing with the heart of another woman's husband, Harry Richmond, 33 years old.

Mrs. Blanche Richmond, 32, is in jail here, charged with first degree murder. She shot and killed the red-haired flapper.

"But," said Mrs. Richmond. "I gave her plenty of warning. I told her she either would have to give up my husband or give up her life.

"She told me she would rather die—so I killed her.

"But I'm sorry. Sorry for the kiddies—Martha Marie and Beulah May—and for Harry, too."

Mrs. Richmond then related how she had pleaded with her husband to give up Carrie.

"He promised me often that he wouldn't ever pay any attention to her, but, before I could realize it she had cast her spell over him again, and then he would go and live with her, leaving me and the kiddies to starve.

"I left the kiddies with Harry's father in St. Joseph and came on down here. I found Harry and the red-haired girl living together and I went to see them.

"I told the girl that the affair had been going on long enough. She only sneered at me and laughed in my face, snapping her finger.

"When I arose I told her I was going to take Harry with me or take her life.

"She told me Harry belonged to her and that she would rather die than give him up. She threw herself on him. Then I drew out my revolver and fired three times. Harry ran. The girl fell dead at my feet.

"Harry didn't have to run, though, I wouldn't harm a hair in his head. I'll take all the blame. I love him. That's why I killed her."

Moose Seek Fund For Home Upkeep

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 3.—An appropriation of $2,066,400 for the care and education of the Loyal Order of Moose Home for Children at Mooseheart, Ill., occupied the attention of executive officers of the order, who met here today.

Norman G. Heyd of Toronto, supreme dictator, was to preside at the meeting, which James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor and director general of the Moose, was to attend.

The appropriation for the care of the children will be made from a fund contributed to by members of the order, who paid four cents each a week toward the maintenance of the home.

Haid Promotes Cemetery Project

High School Lad Has Unique Role In Coming Play—Other Characters Well Taken

ALLEN HAID.

We can successfully visualize Allen Haid as cheer-leader, singing comedian or in any other of half a dozen roles which he has capably assumed, but it really never occurred to us to think of him a promoter of a cemetery allotment, yet there he is in "A Lucky Break" as convincing an old skinflint as you may ever hope to see.

Allen is doing a neat bit of acting in the new school play as students of Senior High discovered when the cast presented the introductory scenes of "A Lucky Break" before the student assembly Thursday morning. It was an appreciative audience which missed nothing of the cleverness of the lines in the play.

Virginia Reeher and George Ruggy who with Allen Haid carry the leading comedy parts, are giving a performance which surpasses some professional work we have seen in its effectiveness.

The cast is large and several of the members are making their initial appearance, yet Miss Hartsuff has her players so well in hand that an exceptionally smooth performance is assured to the public.

Norman Cotton has a magnetic stage presence which carries the conviction that John Bruce is master of any situation in which he may find himself.

Harriet Martin has a vivid personality which "gets across" without any apparent effort on her part.

Then there are Eleanore Hutchison, Dorothy Jean Wallace, Barbara Bratschie and Lucile Emery favorites of former years who alone would insure a sucessful production.

In addition to these there are some 25 players who carry parts of minor importance which nevertheless contribute to the spectacular effectiveness of the comedy and present an interesting pageant of human nature.

"A Lucky Break" will be presented at Senior High school December 8 and 9. Positively no additional performance will be given therefore those who wish to enjoy an evening of clean and sparkling fun should secure their tickets at once.

Texas Woman To Run For Vice President

(International News Service)

DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 3.—Mrs. Edith Wilmans of Dallas may be a candidate for the vice presidency of the United States in 1928.

Mrs. Wilmans has been approached by officials of the National Woman's party, she says, with a view to having her cast her lot with them.

Defeated for the Texas Democratic gubernatorial nomination, Mrs. Wilmans is one of the pioneer women officeholders of the Lone Star state. She has the distinction of being the first woman legislator to sit in the lower house, as representative from Dallas county in the 38th legislature.

"From my experience and observation from many years in the Democratic party," Mrs. Wilmans said, "I have about come to the conviction that so long as women are in either the Republican or Democratic party, those parties will continue to be dominated, at least to a considerable extent, by the masculine element."

Mrs. Wilmans charged that the two big parties are more concerned with the election of officeholders who could be controlled than with the principles upon which the parties are founded.

Regarding her attitude toward joining forces with the National Woman's party, Mrs. Wilmans said she had not made up her mind yet. Direct political activity of a woman's party, however, appeals to her, she says, and if she does decide to cast her lot with such a group it would mean that she probably would be a candidate of that party for a national office in 1928.

FIRST WOMAN TO KILL DEER.

FRANKLIN, Pa., Dec. 3.—Mrs. Cecil S. Johnson achieved the distinction of being the first Venango county woman to kill a deer. She brought down a four point buck near Rusell's Corners. It weighed 140 pounds. Fewer than a dozen deer were killed in Venango county today.

The preacher with a small following has one consolation. His kind seldom star in spectacular trials.

Men may speed up for a five-day week, but can they keep the pace throughout two whole "rest" days?

Export Values Less For Half Year; But Quantity Shipped Increased

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—In spite of a loss in the value of domestic exports for the year ending June 30, recent department of commerce calculations have discovered that in actual quantity of goods sold abroad there was a gain of nearly two per cent.

The value decrease was 2.6 per cent, breaking the record of uninterrupted gains since 1921. This loss was due entirely to a lower price level. Officials consider the gain in quantity of exports as important and disclosing the continuing rise in the importance of United States in international trade.

"This decline in the average prices of exported commodities set in with the last quarter of the 1925 calendar year", E. D. Durand, statistical expert of the department, said.

"For approximately two years preceding that time there had been very little variation in the export price index. Taking the average prices of the three years, 1923 to 1925, as a base, 100, the index for the third quarter of 1925 was 100.8. In the last quarter it fell to 97.3, in the first quarter of 1926 to 94.9 and in the April-June quarter to 93.7.

"The decrease in the price index is largely attributable to lower prices of cotton, although a number of important commodities showed some decline.

The only major commodity to show a large decrease in quantity exported in the fiscal year was wheat, the crop of which in 1925 was exceptionally poor, according to Durand.

In contrast with the fall in average export prices, the average prices of our imports were higher in the year than in that preceding. The advance was in the neighborhood of five per cent. The increase in money value of imports was nearly 17 per cent. With prices the same as the year before, the money value would have increased 10 per cent as the result of heavier imports of many commodities.

"As is well known," Durand said, "the great rise in the price of rubber was a major factor in swelling the value of our imports. Starting with the beginning of 1925, the index of prices of imported commodities, with 1923-1925 as a base at 100 has varied as follows:

"January-March, 1925, 104.4; April-June, 103.4; July-September, 105.1; October-December, 111.1; January-March, 1926, 113.2; and April-June, 1926, 108.1.

"The maximum was thus reached in the first quarter of 1926 at which time the average import values of rubber per pound were at an unparalelled level.

Robert Shaw Is Buried At Grove City—Other News Of Grove City

(Special To The News)

GROVE CITY, Dec. 3.—The funeral services of Robert Shaw, aged 55 years, was held at the home of his sister, Mrs. W. Milsop, at 2 o'clock Thursday. Mr. Shaw has been in ill health the past year and a half and recently underwent an operation at the Grove City hospital. He was brought to the home of Mrs. Milsop about three weeks ago and was confined there until his death on Tuesday at 3:45 p. m. He was a lifelong resident of Grove City. He was born within two miles north of Grove City and received his early education in the local schools. He was a member of the Harmony Presbyterian church of Harrisville. He is survived by six sisters, several children and grandchildren.

Work is being completed on the new Blair and Holstein and John Albin buildings. Mr. Albin expects to move his equipment tomorrow. The room left vacant by Mr. Albin will be used by the Black and Son furniture store. The rooms will be remodeled and made ready for their occupancy by the first of the year.

Mrs. A. J. Calderwood entertained the Literary Club at her home Tuesday afternoon. The following program was given: "The Ice Patrol," by Mrs. I. C. Ketler; discussion of the third act of the "Merchant of Venice" by Mrs. E. T. Firth, "Treasures of Art in Unexpected Places," by Mrs. F. M. Bleakney.

The Unique Club will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Frank McKee, Superior street, this evening. Fancy work and social chat will be the diversions of the evening. A dainty lunch will be served by the hostess.

Wisconsin Potato Men Plan To Plant Spuds In Florida

(International News Service)

RHINELANDER, Wis., Dec. 3.—Several Oneida county potato men have leased lands in Florida on which they will grow potatoes this winter. A carload of certified seed of the Triumph variety has been shipped to that state by a Rhinelander firm.

Planting will begin the latter part of December and continue until about the middle of January. The crop will be ready for harvest early in April.

It is expected the experiment will prove profitable as the potatoes command a big price on the eastern and northern markets. The yield will run approximately 150 bushels to the acre at an average production cost of $125 per acre.

This is the first time that potato growers from this locality have ventured into Florida and if the experiment is a sucess another year may witness a large influx of northern Wisconsin growers there.

DRIVERS IN CRASH THAT KILLED WOMAN OF ASPINWALL FREED

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Dec. 3.—William J. A. Whitehead of Pittsburgh and Norman Peake of Valley Camp, drivers of automobiles which crashed here last Sunday night, causing the death of Mrs. Marion McSwaney 24 years old of Aspinwall were both exonerated of blame in connection with the death of the woman by a coroner's jury Wednesday. The inquest was conducted by Deputy Coroner Charles Brush. The jury returned a verdict of unavoidable accident.

OHIO SQUIRE ADMITS DIVIDING RUM FINES WITH HIS CONSTABLES

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 3.—A warrant charging James Gibson, 34 years old, justice of peace of Struthers, Mahoning county, with embezzling state and township funds was sworn out yesterday. It is charged Gibson pocketed liquor fines, dividing the money with constables, among them J. N. Carrothers, formerly a sensational dry raider. Gibson has confessed. He was arrested and released on bond.

County authorities say that Gibson's arrest will be followed by others after an exhaustive probe, revealing graft, violence, drunkenness and bootlegging on the part of justices of the peace and constables.

In one case, county officials discovered that a still seized by a justice's court was resold to another bootlegger for $80.

Detroit Enters Complaint Over Steel Prices

(International News Service)

DETROIT, Dec. 3.—The City of Detroit today complained to the federal trade commission that four steel companies which bid for contracts to supply the Detroit street railway with wheels have quoted identical prices for four years.

In a letter to the commission, Joseph E. Mills, commissioner of purchases and supplies for the city, suggests that the companies may be operating in violation of the rules of the commission regarding price fixing. Mills asks a ruling from the commission.

The firms mentioned in the letter are the Standard Forging Company, East Chicago, Ind.; Edgewater Steel Company, Oakmont, Pa.; Bethlehem Steel Company, Bethlehem, Pa.; and the Standard Steel Works, Burnham, Pa.

Identical prices have been quoted despite a variance in freight rates, Mills' letter says.

Burns Fatal To Young Girl In Indiana Home

(International News Service)

INDIANA, Pa., Dec. 3.—Burned over her entire body when an open gas stove ignited her clothing, Mary Kostic, 17, a domestic, died in a local hospital.

The accident occurred in a Blairsville hotel, where the girl was employed. With her clothing in flames Miss Kostic rushed into the hotel lobby, where James Coleman, negro porter, smothered the flames with his overcoat.

Chicago Husband Hacks Wife And Commits Suicide

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Literally hacking his wife, mother of six children, to pieces with a butcher's cleaver during a quarrel today, Henry Turlo, 40, slashed his throat and died across her body.

The woman, life fast ebbing, was rushed to a hospital where physicians said she would die within an hour.

Young Edison is in the Delaware hospital here, where he was operated upon Thanksgiving day for appendicitis. He had shown steady improvement until yesterday.

Recommends Pay For Contractors

Engineer Miller today recommended to council that Elder & Ferry be paid the first amount due them, $722.87, for the Barbour Place sanitary sewer and that John B. Thorson Company be paid a final amount of $4,255.82, for paving Home street.

Council concurred in the recommendations after which Councilman Burns reported he had approved a contract between the city and Elder & Ferry for construction of a sanitary sewer in Gibson street.

Crazy Quilt Blinds Utilized By Hunters

In Central Asia there is a species of partridge, in the hunting of which the natives take advantage of its weakness. If you happened to be touring through that section during the season of this particular partridge you would notice peculiar objects of many brilliant colors bobbing along in the fields or from behind the rocks.

In a country so plentifully stocked with strange looking birds you might think these objects were nothing more than some new species that you had not seen before, but on closer examination you would discover each of them to be a native hunter.

In their left hands they are carrying screens of cloth that look something like crazy quilts of the most glaring colors. This patchwork of colored cloth is stretched over a frame resembling that of a kite, and some of the cloth is tied on the edge in the form of streamers that wave back and forth in the breeze.

The species of partridge for which the natives are hunting is called the chukar or rock partridge. Chukars are plentiful, but they are so wild that the hunters find it difficult to get within shooting distance. Almost all native Asiatic hunters carry old-fashioned guns, and if they cannot get close to their game they waste a great many shots. However, one of them discovered that the rock partridge was brimful of curiosity and quick to approach and investigate any gay-colored thing.

So he rigged up the kitelike contrivance, with its various colored cloths and found that it worked with great effect, and he brought in many of these usually shy birds. Soon every hunter was making use of the contrivance, with the result that the hunting grounds are now dotted each day with numbers of odd looking crazy quilts waving in the air.

Council Does Not Plan Farm Disposal

Council today set itself on record as not being in favor of selling the municipal farm.

They hinted that in years to come the city would be larger in territory and the farm might be converted into a park.

One of them also hinted that future county commissioners may desire the farm as part of the county home plot.

Car Hits Auto; Woman Is Hurt

Thomas L. Vallely of 1215 East Washington street, reported to the police last night that he was driving on East Washington street at Butler avenue, when a Harmony car approached the crossing at that point.

Mr. Vallely did not notice any conductor or other person flag the car across the crossing and the result was that his machine was struck by the street car on the crossing.

Mrs. Vallely who was with him was injured and the automobile badly damaged. Mrs. Vallely was removed to the nearby office of a physician, where it was determined that her injuries were not of a serious character.

Whaley And Bigley To Visit Bennett

Former Members Of Old Neshannocks To See Afflicted Team Mate

Robert Whaley and Ed E. Bigley former members of the Neshannocks of many years ago, will leave Saturday evening for Detroit, Michigan for the purpose of visiting their former companion on the team and old friend, Charles Bennett, former baseball star, who has been very seriously ill as a result of an abcess back of the right eye.

It was published recently that Mr. Bennett was in the hospital at Detroit in a very critical condition.

Mr. Bigley has just received a letter from Miss May Bennett, sister of the famous ball player, in which it states that her brother is now at home but is still not really out of danger, although the doctor is more hopeful. He is in a very weak condition and is considered to have a fighting chance for his life. His physicians fear that he will lose the sight of his eye. He was operated on three weeks ago and a drainage tube placed to drain out the abcessed region in the back of the eye.

Truck Runs Wild Down Street But Misses Other Cars

Unusual Incident Witnessed On East Washington Street At Noon Hour Today

Persons who chanced to be in the vicinity of East Washington street from the Thaddeus Stevens school down to Ray street intersection at noon today, witnessed an unusual sight.

A small truck loaded with apples, got loose near the school house, and driverless started down the hill. It gained momentum and careened from one side of the street to the other, but still it remained in the street.

Marvelously escaping striking an auto or vehicle in the street, the truck made the trip all the way to the Ray street intersection where the run-a-way came to a stop when it collided head on with a pole on the north-west corner of the streets.

Few of the apples were even spilled from the truck.

Did Not Know That Car Had Been Stolen

Motion to strike off a declaration was made before Judge Hildebrand this morning in the case of a New York Insurance Company against the Gunton Motors Company.

This was a case in which the insurance comapny had paid a claim for a stolen car. The car was later found in the Gunton garage. It develops that the Gunton Company had bought the car from a dealer in Beaver Falls, and did not know that it had been stolen. It is said the Beaver Falls company did not know it had been stolen when they purchased it.

Police Are Called To Croton Avenue

Get Reports Women Are Being Frightened At Hutchison Street

Police have had calls into the East Side and Croton districts recently by reason of unusual occurences, which appear to be the work of some person seeking a very strange form of diversion.

Last night, the mode of diversion by this person took the form of frightening women in the Hutchison street district, which is also known as the dugout, by reason of the fact that it goes up over the hill from Croton avenue to Milton and Walnut streets.

Two such calls were received at different times and officers sent out on the call, were unable to locate the person responsible for the frightening of the women.

Its only a few nights ago since stones were thrown through the windows of a number of homes, causing excitement and nervousness. The police are making every possible effort to determine who the person is that is responsible for this condition of affairs.

Christmas Tree For South Side

Supplementary Celebration Being Planned For South Side

Co-operating with the Christmas Celebration plans which are being furthered at the present time, the South Side merchants on Thursday night completed plans for a supplementary celebration in that section of the city.

A Christmas tree will be placed in the yard of the Lincoln-Garfield school on Long avenue and on Christmas morning, December 25, candy and gifts will be distributed from the tree.

The project of the South Side merchants is to be a part of the city-wide celebration and the action of the South Siders demonstrates again their willingness to co-operate at any time.

Why Five Children Were Out Of School

Some queer cases are being brought to the attention of the county commissioners, since they took charge of the county poor district.

In one case recently a father was charged with failure to send his children to school, which is made compulsory under the school law.

Upon investigation it was found that five children were barefooted and that they did not have suitable clothing for school. The commissioners supplied the necessary shoes and clothing and the children are now in school.

SHORT ROMANCES OF EVERYDAY LIFE

A Night In Fairyland

By Clyde Weldon

IT was a scene of wondrous beauty the "setting" Josiah Haldene had provided for his idolized daughter's debut. The financier had poured forth a magic stream from his golden coffers that the occasion might dazzle even the most jaded eyes.

"It is like Fairyland and you the Fairy Princess," Ellis Vernon whispered, as he led the fair debutante out for the opening dance. "Later, dear little girl woman, I want to tell you not a fairy tale—but a very real, very sweet story."

Her lips smiled but she did not meet his ardent glance. Instead, she stared at the kaleidoscopic maze of dancers through which they threaded their graceful way.

"Silence gives consent," laughed Ellis.

"A stunning couple!" echoed the length of the great ballroom.

"What say, Hal?" chuckled Ellis Vernon, Sr., more than schoolday friendship there—eh?"

"I must be looking through your glasses Ver," Josiah Haldene returned complacently. "It looks the same way to me."

But when, an hour later, young Vernon proudly escorted Beatrice Haldene to the conservatory, no eagerness marked her step—no wonder-light glowed in her clear brown eyes.

She listened quietly to Ellis' first faltering words of love—then she laid a gentle hand on his arm. Don't, Ellis! I want this one night to remain a happy memory—as though we had really dwelt in Fairyland," she concluded wistfully.

For a full minute Ellis did not speak. Then he said quite steadily: "I think I understand, Bee. I was simply a fool to imagine myself your Prince Charming—even in Fairyland."

"There is no Prince Charming—yet," she parried. "I thought there was once—until the day he proved unworthy to rank with my girlhood's dream hero—the valiant knight whose shield bore the motto: 'Courage Sans Peur,' yet who was gentle and gracious even to the crippled beggar before the palace gates."

At last she looked sharply at Ellis. Her grasp tightened on her superb ostrich feather fan, as she saw the puzzled hurt in his eyes give way to the Vernon pride.

From the ballroom came the strains of the reigning foxtrot.

"Time to return to Fairyland"—Ellis proffered his arm.

When they re-entered the ballroom both were smiling—the debonair, thoroughbred smile the occasion demanded.

Like some huge white bird the Videlia came in anchor in the Bay of Naples.

The "street" would scarcely have recognized "Big Deal" Haldene in the genial yachtman who swung himself with boyish agility into the tender.

When he returned an hour later, he appeared relieved that only Mrs. Haldene was on deck.

He gravely handed her a paper from the sheaf he carried. "Fate was kinder than we thought, Lucia. I mean, the budding romance that never blossomed between our little girl and Ellis—"

A startled cry interrupted him. Beatrice stood before them, her immaculate yachting dress scarcely whiter than her young face.

"What—of—Ellis?"

Mrs. Haldene silently passed her the paper.

"Ellis Vernon, Jr., seriously injured in auto wreck." The grim details blurred slightly, but the cause of the accident stood forth in clear type—"To avoid striking a confused child, young Vernon drove his powerful car directly into a stone wall."

The anxious watchers saw Beatrice's tense lips trembling slightly—that was all. She handed the paper back to her mother without a word.

Mrs. Vernon forced a smile to her lips as she entered her son's room. As she approachhed his couch Ellis crumpled a sheet of notepaper and tossed it toward the fireplace. A petulant exclamation escaped him as, falling short, it lay conspicuously on the tiled hearth.

"What is it, dear?" Mrs. Vernon asked gently.

Ellis averted his gaze. "Only a letter I was foolish enough to write but not mad enough to send."

Mrs. Vernon sat down on the couch and placed one hand on her son's head. The touch told Ellis the mother-heart understood.

"Are you quite sure you are doing right, son—quite sure someone may not be looking for just such a letter?"

The answer came with painful finality: "Quite sure, mother. A year ago I did not measure up to her standard of Prince Charming—when I was the envied Ellis Vernon, star athlete and sportsman. What colossal presumption to imagine she would look more favorably on the Ellis Vernon of today—whom even his paid attendants pity because of his helplessness."

Mrs. Vernon reached over and kissed him. "She will never meet a nobler Prince Charming than Ellis Vernon."

Ellis caught both her hands and pressed them to his pale cheeks. "That's because you are Ellis Vernon's mother. Thank you for the compliment, but I love Beatrice too truly to expect such a sacrifice. Now, burn the letter, please." When Mrs. Vernon returned to the couch, Ellis smiled bravely. "Good night, mother, pleasant dreams."

Proceeding to her own room, Mrs. Vernon dismissed the maid. Then, from the silken folds of her negligee, she drew the crumpled letter. Smoothing it carefully, a marked paragraph caught her eye. . . . "It has come to me since the crash—the scene of which must have been in your mind that night in the conservatory. A miniature Marathon, part of a golden boy's birthday celebration. I was the spoiled host—my only thought to shine in the eyes of one fair guest. At the crucial moment I bawled out poor uninvited Limpy Cotter for getting in the way. I won the race but lost what even at that tender age I prized most—your trust and respect—" Mrs. Vernon read no more. With sudden resolution she slipped the letter into an envelope. As she sealed and addressed it, the glory of re-awakened hope shone through the mist in her eyes.

Ellis moved restlessly, as the hall clock chimed the half hour. The same night! Memory was exquisitely cruel—even the air seemed laden with exotic perfume—in the distance, gay dance music. "Time to return to Fairyland!"

Ellis suddenly opened his eyes.

"Beatrice!"

She knelt beside the couch—his Fairy Princess of that other night. Every detail of her white and crystal dance frock was the same—but in her eyes was a new light, brighter than any jewel.

A light that was reflected in Mrs. Vernon's happy eyes, as she stole softly from the room.

"In this part," said the movie director, "you have to do a number of funny falls. How are you on falls?"

"I rank next to Niagara," the applicant replied confidently.

Boots' Idol

By Claire Wesson

UNDOUBTEDLY it was indiscreet for Miss Minifer, subprincipal of the Gray Towers School for Girls, to admit to Miss Lord, teacher of languages, that she looked under her bed every night to see if a man was there. It would have been indiscreet to say in any other place anything which might have been overheard and misconstrued by a half-grown girl with ears like a rabbit's for keenness and a tongue apparently hung in the middle. Even if the persons to whom one speaks could see the twinkle in one's eye which revealed that one thus joking, the eavesdropper could not. Hence the adventures which befell "Boots" Brewer, who hurried, panting, from her alcove to pour this news into the ears of the Sporty Six.

The Sporty Six were the malcontents of Graytowers—the ringleaders—and "Boots" was their captain. She had entered the school late in the year, having been requested to withdraw from Longacres Manor by the principal of that school, and she didn't care a bit if she was expelled from Graytowers. Perhaps if she were expelled she could wear Dad into consenting to let her go on the stage and become as wonderful as Katherine Melrose, the actress, whom she had adored for years. It might be worth trying.

To the Sporty Six she outlined her plan, ending, "And I don't care if she does catch me—but she won't!" The Six had objections to severing their own connection with the school in that way, so "Boots" planned to play a lone hand.

At five minutes of nine, just before "early retiring" bell rang and the teachers sought their rooms, a meagre-looking man in slouch hat and a fierce black mustache, sneaked into Miss Minifer's room and hastily dived under the bed. Instantly a big hand clutched him, and a horrible voice growled. "Not a yip, or you're a dead one!"

The whoop of utter surprise and horror that had actually started from the intruder's interior uttered itself as a sort of quack, which couldn't have been heard on the landing. A bulky ruffian, smelling fearfully of tobacoo, and with a black handkerchief mask over the lower part of his face, was clutching him, and he felt the coldness of steel pressed against his forehead.

"Dis is my show—see?" the ruffian growled. "I've had my eye on dis dump fer some time. De missis has jew'lry, an' so does lots of de goils. Den you come buttin' in, to queer my game! Who're you, anyhow? Make one sound, and I'll put you outer de game, see?"

Do people really die of fright? the quaking "Boots" wondered, as she trembled on the floor under the bed.

Miss Minifer would look under the bed—she said she always did! He would have to kill her, in order to escape! And of course he would have to kill "Boots," too. A step, and the light flashed up in the room. Miss Minifer's unmistakable shoes and the hem of her purple foulard became visible. She laid hold of the edge of the spread and bent to look under the bed. The ruffian's hand dug into "Boots" quivering flesh. She felt the menace of the revolver. Then, with a scream of warning like the cry of a lost soul, she fainted completely away!

"You are a very foolish little girl," said Miss Minifer, somewhat later, to a revived and chastened "Boots." "Your father has no objection to your going on the stage when the right time comes, but he wants you to lay the foundation of some education and an understanding of what obedience and discipline mean, first.

"The Sporty Six are not so very sporty. One of them is a chatterbox, and betrayed the whole plan. They are not worth your while. My sister, who arrived tonight to visit me, agreed to help me give you a little surprise. She's interested in you, Emily, and says a girl who will risk certain death to warn another has something big in her nature. She'll be a valuable friend if you will do your own part to deserve her friendship. She is Katherine Melrose."

"Katherine Melrose?" said "Boots" in a small voice.

The Prodigal Son Returns

By Parke Whitney

DIANTHA MOORE, coming in from the hen-house, paused for a moment and lifted sad eyes toward the sunset pink, and in pale twilight sky she saw the beauty of the first silver star. Danny had loved such things. People called Diantha "sort of odd"—that is, since her youngest boy had left so suddenly. Henry, the older son, had been steady. Still, he had left the old folks when he married and settled in town. Dan Moore was different. He loved the old farm, but he liked music and happy laughter—and dancing with pretty Miriam Williams. She was full of high spirits, too, as if there were never a care or trouble in the whole world. She had found out different this last year with Dan gone and never a word after he left. Diantha shivered and held the old gray sweater tighter across her chest. The silver star blurred suddenly and seemed to bob up and down. She started again toward the house. Down the snowy road a slight figure was running toward her.

"Oh, Mrs. Moore"—it was Miriam—"I've just had a letter from Helen—" She was breathing very fast and held her hand on her chest as if to ease the pain there.

"No bad news, child? Come in the house, you look white as a sheet." Diantha took Miriam's arm and led her into the warm kitchen.

Miriam drew a deep breath. "It's about—oh, she—Helen saw Danny."

"Danny, my Danny?" Diantha gasped, then clutching Miriam's hand, "Saw him? Oh, where, where?"

"I have the letter with me—I'll tell you—only I ran so I can hardly talk." She dropped into the old rocker, Diantha in front of her, waiting, trembling.

Miriam opened a crumpled letter. "She says—'You'll never guess who I saw today.' I went over to the East Side with a friend—a social worker——and, coming down the steps of one of those Salvation Army hotels, was Dan Moore. He knew me and was going to speak only—" Miriam's voice faltered.

"Go on," commanded Diantha, in a voice the girl had never heard before, "Read every word, Miriam, only be quick."

"Well," she says—oh where was I? She says, 'he was going to speak to me, only I looked away quick.' He looked terrible, so shabby, and I guess he's been sick, he's grown so thin and white. You're a lucky girl, Miriam, that he left you like he did. You'd be ashamed to meet him now." Miriam finished her letter in an almost inaudible voice, but she knew by Diantha's set features that she had heard every word.

"He's been sick, my Danny. He was too proud to write for help—he said he never would after that fuss when Henry told him he couldn't earn his salt. She said his clothes were poor. Oh, maybe he's cold, too!" Diantha was gazing at Miriam's white face. "I'm going to New York tonight."

"Tonight!" Miriam drew a long breath. "Oh, Mrs. Moore, you'd get lost in that great city—you've never been away from the village."

"Don't make no difference. I'm going out to the barn and tell Pa. He'll get me to the station in time for the eight o'clock train. I'll find him before midnight."

"But Mr. Moore isn't able to go, and it—why, you couldn't go alone like that." Suddenly she jumped to her feet. "I'm going with you."

"Miriam!" for the moment they were clasped in each others arms.

As the two women stepped off the train they looked around in bewilderment. Diantha grasped her big bag tightly and glared at an obsequious redcap.

"He tried to take my bag away from me," she whispered to Miriam.

"He just wants to carry it for you and then you can pay him," Miriam was trying to steer the frail little countrywoman through the crowds.

"Nobody's going to touch it," answered Diantha determinedly. "I've got Danny's warm flannels in it, and some of these thick soft cookies he likes."

In a telephone booth Miriam heard the astonished voice of her cousin in answer to her ring.

"Hello. Yes, it is Miriam. Mrs. Moore and I have just come in. We want you to tell us how to find the place where you saw Dan Moore. What?—No, I'm not crazy. Oh, Helen, hurry. I don't care if it is an awful street. I'm not afraid. Wait 'til I write it down. Thanks, Helen, goodby."

Somehow, through a kindly Providence and the aid of helpful policemen, the two reached their destination without mishap. An elderly night clerk gazed in astonishment as the two women entered.

"Daniel Moore? Sure, he's here. Asleep by now, though."

Diantha trembled from head to foot, but kept a firm clutch on her bag. "I'm his mother. Has he—is he sick?"

"His mother?" He hurried for a chair, but Diantha waved it aside. "We've come a long way on the train. We just heard he was here."

The man turned to a boy drowsing in a nearby chair. "Go call Daniel Moore, Room 21. Tell him to come down to the office right away."

"You didn't tell me if he'd been sick," insisted Diantha, as the boy disappeared down the long hall.

"Yes, he has," answered the clerk. "He's doing janitor work here now to pay for his board, but he isn't able. He was in the hospital for months with typhoid—nobody could find out anything about his folks. Then he came here. I'm glad he's got folks, though. He needs them bad enough. He's a good lad."

Miriam bit her under lip to keep back the tears. Dan is such a plight and she had been blaming him for so long. The clerk had returned to his desk when a tall, white-faced fellow appeared in the doorway. There were smothered exclamations and the next moment he was holding the two women tight in his arms.

"Mother! Miriam!"

"Danny, you're to go right back with us in the morning. Pa'n me are all alone and we're too old to run the farm. Pa sent the money, and I've brought your warm flannels, Danny." He kissed the wrinkled care-worn cheek tenderly, and then looked into the beautiful eyes of the younger face.

"And what do you say, dear heart?"

"Oh, Dan," Miriam pressed a rosy cheek close against the warm gray coat. "You know what I say."

The elderly clerk hastily dabbed his faded blue eyes with an old handkerchief. "Ain't women-folks the limit?" he murmured to his book.

"I am surprised to hear that you boys play stud."

"Isn't Madame Du Fay generous?"

"I'll say she is—she just gave me the last dirty look she had."

A Tale of Two Cities

By Monte Darrell

LITTLE Miss Marshall had run across from her own piazza to that of her new neighbor, "just to get acquainted," and in the process of getting acquainted had happened to mention that she was the venerable parent of a high school boy and a normal school girl.

The new neighbor opened her eyes wide. She surveyed Mrs. Marshall's "bob," her short skirt, her slim, lithe figure, and spoke incredulously. "I'll have to believe it if you say so, but, honestly, I thought you were the sister of those children. In fact, I thought that perhaps you were a normal school girl yourself.'

Mrs. Marshall laughed. "I wish I were," she said. "There's nothing I'd like better than attending that splendid normal school of ours. We call it ours, though really it is about 20 miles from our town." She smiled reminiscently. "You don't know, of course—you're a newcomer and don't know our ancient history—how this county was almost rent asunder, as they say in books, over that same school."

"Tell me about it," begged the new neighbor.

Mrs. Marshall settled herself comfortably in the rocking chair. "I really believe," she began, "it wouldn't have happened if there hadn't been such a dearth of news. You know how it is sometimes—no murders, no fires, no headlines of any kind. I can imagine it must have been dull in the Hanford Gazette office—the paper had the same name then as it has now. And probably that was why the editorial writer had an inspiration. When you say editorial writer it sounds big, but the truth was that the man who collected 'ads' and the reporter who gathered them about somebody or other's painting his barn, were considered of a great deal more importance. Well, anyway, the editorial writer got desperate. That evening there appeared an editorial in the paper, gently suggesting that Hanford should have a normal school. That was funny when you think of it. For one hundred years or thereabouts our young ladies had been going to schools anywhere from 50 or 100 miles away, and nobody had ever murmured."

"And of course the Griswold Star could not let that editorial pass unnoticed. Griswold and Hanford were always racing each other neck to neck. They competed on everything. So when the Hanford Gazette said that we needed a new normal school the Griswold Star immediately piped up that they should be the ones to have it. There was a reply in the Gazette the next evening, followed by another in the Star, and the battle was on.

As I said, Hanford and Griswold had always been rivals—for the most part friendly rivals—but this time—wow!—you could see the fur fly! Such stirring editorials in both papers—such arguments why the school should be in Hanford and not in Griswold, and vice versa; such delving deep into the history and traditions of each place, such playing up of the scenery and transportation connections of one town, and running down those of the other—all this could not help having its effect.

"Where, before men from the two places had met in a train, gone genially to the smoking car together, and joined in a game of cards, now each would sit glumly behind his newspaper. Where, before, the girls of the town had been delighted when the young fellows of the town had called on them, now they gave them the cold shoulder. It got more bitter all the time. After a while the papers from other sections began to take notice of the rumpus. And finally it reached the ears of the state commission of education. And what did they do but send a delegation to investigate matters?"

Mrs. Marshall laughed softly. "The delegation came to Hanford and the people welcomed them royally. The leading citizens gave them a big dinner, and took them for an automobile ride around the place, showing up all the sites they thought might be suitable for a normal school. Then the delegation went to Griswold and received a royal welcome. The leading citizens gave them a banquet and took them automobiling, showing them all the sites that might be desirable for a normal school. And then the delegation went home, and the commission considered. A few days later we heard that the normal school was to be at Danborough, which was between Hanford and Griswold, about 20 miles from each.

"Well, it took quite a while for the folks in our town to get their breath, after that knockout blow. But the Hanford Gazette put the best face it could on it. That evening there appeared an editorial, congratulating the county that at last it was to have a normal school, and declaring that since it was largely due to the efforts of Hanford and Griswold that the school was to be built, that it would be well for Hanford and Grisworld to shake hands, forget past differences, and vow eternal friendship.

"The editorial writer of the Star was so affected by this article that he came to Hanford that very evening to personally call on the writer. The Gazette office was closed by that time, but he located the editor at her home."

"Her home?" demanded the new neighbor. "Why, I thought—was the editor a she?"

"Yes, of course—maybe I forgot to say so," returned Mrs. Marshall placidly. "He found her making fudge—and he came several times after that to talk about various matters. Each time he found himself liking Hanford better and better, and finally he decided to settle there."

"Did he go to work on the Gazette?" asked the new neighbor.

"Oh, no," said Mrs. Marshall. "He retired from the newspaper business just about the same time the Gazette editorial writer did. You see, her father had a dry goods store, and he wanted somebody to go in with him as a partner—and—"

"And what?" asked the new neighbor.

"And now," finished Mrs. Marshall, "the daughter of the two ex-editors is attending Dansborough Normal School."

"You villain!" said the new neighbor.

"You're accused of stealing swords and fencing foils from a pawnship—and you'll probably tell me you did it because you were hungry."

Accused—"Yes, your honor. I'm the sword swallower at the circus."

"My wife saved $10 at a bargain sale today."

"Did she give you back the $10?"

"Not much! She demanded $25 more to buy a new hat. Her old one was trampled on in the rush."

The Two Graces

By Phil Moore

THEIR names properly designated them—Anna and Mary Brown; good, honest, adequate and colorful names, if one will see color in plainly colorful things. Two cheerful, contented spinsters, respectively 39 and 41 years, their faces plain but beautiful, their eyes alert and shining for the least unwonted event in their quiet neighborhood, their mouths sweetened by curves of patience and goodness. They were good sisters in trouble, vicarious mothers to the children neglected through sickness or otherwise, cultivators of flowers, protectoresses of animals, and all and otherwise for the good of their particular community.

Love of the worthiest minting bound the sisters together, so the day Anna remarked that her hair was markedly streaked with gray, Mary, noticing a sudden little twitching of the older sister's mouth, dutifully remarked she supposed her hair would be turning soon, too. Then, to relieve the moment's strain, she asked.

"Did you know neighbors are moving in next door, Anna? My, the house has been empty long enough; I'll be glad to have some life over there."

"Why, yes," Anna acknowledged, "and over a week now."

"Must have moved in while I was away," returned Mary, who had been attending to a sick neighbor some distance away. "How many over there, and do you know who they are?" she asked inquisitively.

"Why—er—why, just one, that's all," replied the older sister, while the mystified younger woman noted with inward astonishment a rosily becoming flush rising in her smooth cheek.

"Well, I hope she's a good neighbor," then volunteered Mary, but with a question in her eyes.

"It's just a man—I—I—he's been over here asking about things—lights, the fire, food. . . ."

"Just a man—but——" Mary followed up.

Anna broke in upon her sister's exclamation somewhat testily.

"Oh, he told me he was a widower." She disappeared through the door of the kitchen, and Mary thought it wise not to prolong the conversation. Her eyes, roving through the window, encountered a strange pile of dishes on the back steps and she set to work solving a mental conundrum, in which figured the disappearance of sundry items of eggs and certain preserved delicacies which had been strangely missing that morning upon her inspection. Things certainly had happened during her absence. Well, tonight, when Mary went to keep watch over the sick neighbor, things would be different.

That night Anna showed marked hesitation upon leaving for a week's sojourn.

"There isn't the least thing to worry about, Anna dear," said Mary kindly but forcibly, and the sister reluctantly set forth.

"There'll be no nonsensical happenings now," Mary almost said aloud, as she settled down beside the evening lamp with her paper.

A soft knocking at the back door interrupted her before she had turned a page. Somewhat tremblingly she hastened through the kitchen. A small, stupidly, yet delicately built man stood in the doorway.

"It's Miss Mary, I know," he said winningly, as he looked up somewhat pleadingly into Miss Mary's soft blue eyes.

"Why, yes, it is," she replied with unwonted welcoming. . . . . .

Miss Anna returned in half of the promised week.

"Looks as if the hens hadn't laid much while I was away," she remarked sniffily, on the first night of her return.

Miss Mary, who could not tell a lie, bent guiltily over the strawberry shortcake she was preparing, and did not volunteer a reply.

The first even latent antagonism of their lives threatened the sisters as they sat down to supper. There was so much to say that neither could say. Finally Miss Mary stood up, a bright spot on each cheek.

"It's a shame, with so much to eat here, that poor Mr. Barton has to eat alone," she exclaimed recklessly.

"Let's . . ." Anna started to suggest, when a slight knock sounded on the back door. Mr. Barton accepted with gratitude the sisters' invitation. Soon all three were chatting, the little man possessing the fatal gift of drawing out undreamed-of qualities in his two admiring auditors. However, there were certain little differences expressed between the sisters, which he was not slow to appreciate.

"You ladies have certainly been kind to me," he remarked, as he prepared to make a graceful exit. "I only hope Mrs. Barton-to-be can cook half as well as either of you," he added naively.

The two ladies, who had been dreading the after-hour of his departure, for certain personal reasons, vaguely heard the details of his proposed marriage. It appeared the future Mrs. Barton would arrive in two weeks. . . . .

"You are tired, Anna, dear," said Mary, as they started upstairs for bed.

"And you too, dear," said Anna comfortingly, as she slipped her arm around the younger sister.

By common consent they blew out the light quickly. . . . .

Two weeks later Anna, who was preparing supper was surprised at the precipitous entrance of Mary from the garden.

"They've arrived, and she's the sweetest little helpless thing," she exclaimed glowingly.

"Little, really?" inquired Anna, with spoon suspended.

"Yes, and she'll make such a nice neighbor—and I wonder if they have supper enough. It does seem as if we ought . . . ." she doubtfully queried of the older sister.

"Let's . . . ." replied Anna, and the two sisters fell to work with glowing eyes, charity and sweetness illuminating each plain and beautiful face.

World Temple Of Medicine Is Chicago's Plan

To Spend $25,000,000 On Big Memorial To Open With 1933 Centennial

Largest Institution Of Its Kind Sponsored By Big Medical Men

By FRED J. WALKER.
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Dec. 3. — Chicago laid plans recently for an international temple of medicine, the largest in the world to be constructed at a cost of $25,000,000 as a permanent humanitarian memorial in connection with the 1933 centennial.

The main building would be located according to plans now under consideration on an island in the lake with convalescent homes placed in forest preserves to the north, south and west of the city.

Statistics showing that Chicago was short from 5,000 to 6,000 hospital beds were cited by Edward N. Hurley chairman of the centennial committee in presenting an outline of the project to the committee.

The hospital would be supervised by a joint board representing Chicago, Northwestern and Loyola universities with the governor of Illinois, the mayor of Chicago and the president of the county board as ex-officio member.

"I believe it is the hope of the citizens of Chicago" said Hurley "to make the coming centennial celebration the greatest of its kind in history. Emphasizing service and permancy we should have an exhibit showing the progress of the world in arts and sciences, industry, commerce, agriculture and every other branch of human endeavor.

"Furthermore we must capture and present in memorial form a vision of the future and what it holds for the world and I should like to see the centennial promote international friendship. Our coming celebration will lack the vital spark however, if in addition to the material things it fails to develop something of concrete, enduring value to humanity.'

"For this reason I should like to propose that we start our 1933 centennial by presenting as one of the suggested units a great public health, medical and hospitalization plan and by erecting on the lake front an international temple of medicine the largest in the world."

Hurley said it should be the most modern institution of its kind in the world in plan, construction, scientific equipment, organization, administration and service, serving as an international clearing house for the scientists and medical men of the world.

"The toll of premature deaths from preventable diseases throughout the world" he said "is millions of lives every year. The annual cost of drugs, doctors and hospitals in the United States alone is $1,000,000,000. The object of our proposed plan is to establish an international clearing house of health against human disease in co-operation with our government and the governments of the world."

Hurley proposed that leading physicians, surgeons, dentists and medical scientists of each nation of the world be invited to Chicago for the centennial to hold clinics and give lectures during a specific week to be assigned to each country.

"Chicago today" Hurley said, "is the headquarters of the American Medical association, the American College of Surgeons, the National Dental association and the American Hospital association.

"It now has the largest hospital in the world—Cook County hospital. It has four high grade medical schools each under the supervision of a well known university—Chicago, Northwestern, Illinois and Loyola.

"Many of the medical men have established national reputations and have wielded great power in the development of modern medicine and surgery. In what better way can we commemorate our hundredth anniversary than by presenting as one of the special features this great medical and hospitalization plan in the interest of the public health of the world."

Is Cleopatra Buried In Paris?

Queen's Mummy Story Revived

(International News Service)

PARIS, Dec. 3—Is Cleopatra buried in Paris? Several Parisian archaeologists and Egyptologists are inclined to believe so and would be much disappointed if the mummy of the famous Nile Queen should be found elsewhere.

Every ten or fifteen years the report spreads that one of three decayed mummies buried in the little garden of the National Library in 1871, during the Commune, is that of Cleopatra.

Three persons assisted at the burial services of the three mummies, only one of whom, M. Mortreuil, retired general secretary of the library is now alive.

"There were many Egyptian antiquities in the Library when I began to work there in 1869, at the age of nineteen," says M. Mortreuil. "Among them were three mummies, without bindings, one of which passed for that of Cleopatra.

"Why Cleopatra? I don't know. Perhaps only because the mummy was very beautiful. At any rate we were all very much in love with our Cleopatra.

"I heard it reported that Napoleon had brought the three mummies —the other two were males—from Egypt. It was even reported that Napoleon spent a whole night alone with the mummy in his tent at the foot of the pyramids. Perhaps it was he who baptized her Cleopatra, or perhaps he identified the mummy definitely as that of Cleopatra. We do not know when, why or by whom the bindings were taken from the mummies.

"Then came the war and the seige of Paris. To protect the Egyptian collection from German shells we transported it to the cellar, the mummies included. The humidity decomposed them and when the Commune took possession of the library the mummies were giving forth such an odor that it was decided to bury them.

"We did it secretly, one spring night by lantern light. The others swapped yarns and poked fun at Cleopatra but I shed a few real tears at the thought of never seeing her again."

M. Boreux, conservator of the Louvre Museum was inclined to scoff at the idea that one of the buried mummies was that of Cleopatra.

"Nevertheless as long as the real mummy is not discovered and identified all hypotheses are permissible," he said.

"Let us believe the story, since there is no scientific reason for not believing it," said M. Roland Marcel, administrator of the Library. "And I would regret very much if the authentic mummy of Cleopatra were found in Alexandria. The idea that Cleopatra may be buried in our garden lends a certain enchantment to the library."

Ordinances Are Given Attention

Councilmen Act On Measures At Meeting Of Committee Of The Whole

Council today explored the committee of the whole, long believed to be the official burial ground for undesired legislative items, but after 90 minutes' study, plus a volume of discussion, several ordinances were reported back to council with a favorable report, which means that solons propose many improvements next spring.

The city "dads" first dealt with the request for a sanitary sewer in Logan street. They decided to await Engineer Miller's report concerning the depth it must be laid before giving favorable action to the bill.

Favorable Action

Locating, establishing and ordaining Park avenue, between Mercer street and Wilmington avenue, fixing the width and grade of the extension.

The court will be asked to name viewers to assess damages. If the city considers the damages too high the ordinance will be repealed and damages for the delay only will be paid.

Providing for the grading and paving of Phillips street between South Mercer and South Mill street.

The foregoing three odrinances will be passed to provide good routes to the New Castle hospital.

Negative Reports

Providing for the grading of Junior High street. Junior High street has been graded in a different manner than the ordinance sent to committee and negatively reported, called for.

An ordinance giving the shade tree commission authority to make recommendations was not discussed at length and will be given further attention soon.

An ordinance prescribing how ashes shall be collected and disposed of was not considered. It will receive consideration at some future date.

Five Divorces Are Handed Down Today By Judge Hildebrand

Four On Grounds Of Desertion And One On Grounds Of Cruel Treatment

Five divorces were handed own by Judge Hildebrand this morning.

John L. Smith was granted a divorce from his wife, Margaret Ann Smith on the grounds of desertion. They were married in June, 1917 and lived together until March, 1924.

Barbara Kucharska was divorced from Martin Kucharska for cruel and barbarous treatment. Mrs. Kucharska claimed that her husband beat her until she was black and blue and he brought men to the house to drink and carouse. They were married in September, 1921, and lived together until March, 1926. They have one child.

Mary S. Kersey was granted a divorce from Thomas C. Kersey on the grounds of desertion. They were married in February, 1924 and lived together until October, 1924. Mrs. Kersey testified that when he asked Kersey for money to pay bills he swore at her and left.

Nellie M. Crothers was granted a separation from her husband on the grounds of desertion. They were married in June, 1905, and lived together until October, 1923. They have five children. Mrs. Crothers claimed that her husband left her while they resided in Ellwood City and that he had no reason to leave.

Pearl Peddicord was divorced from Rudolph F. Peddicord whom she claimed had deserted her. After their marriage they lived in Pittsburgh. Mrs. Peddicord worked at a restaurant, saved up money and bought an automobile. When Peddicord left she says that she took the machine and she has not heard from him since. They were married in January 1921 and lived together until July 1924.

Many Problems For Educators

Dr. C. A. Dawson Reports Some Of Subjects Before Conference

WESTMINSTER IS IN ORGANIZATION

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Dec. 3.—"There will be plenty of problems for the next generation to decide in the field of education". This is the opinion of Dr. C. A. Dawson, head of the department of English at Westminster College, who has just returned from Buffalo, N. Y., where he represented the college at the 40th annual convention of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Middle States and Maryland, in session last Friday and Saturday. The association met under the auspices of the University of Buffalo, Nichols Schools and Buffalo Seminary.

According to Dr. Dawson, the educational field is like one that has been recently plowed. Only time with its varying experiments will settle the many questions which are now troubling the country's leading educators.

Among the questions discussed at the sessions was that which dealt with the wisdom of adding to the present high school and preparatory school curriculum, sufficient work to make it possible for a student to complete work up to either the end of the freshman or sophomore years of college. It is thought by many that this would distribute the costs of college work and make it possible for a larger percentage of the youth of the world to obtain higher learning.

Many educators are advocating doing away with a close adherence to the preparatory school certificate obtained by the student which carries the number of hours work completed in each subject and have each student take entrance exams successfully before being admitted to college classrooms.

Dr. Dawson also states that the steps taken in larger public school districts in dividing the system into three divisions, namely, grade school, junior high and senior high, whereas only grade school and high school were formerly distinguished, has added many problems to the general scope of school study.

The Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Middle States and Maryland had its beginning about 35 years ago. It was composed first of only secondary schools and was organized for the purpose of standardizing the English requirements. Later it became their purpose to uniform college entrance requirements.

"Some phases of religious and ethical training in schools and colleges" was the leading topic for discussion. Rabbi Stephen A. Wise of New York City was the principal speaker at the convention.

Dr. Dawson attended the special English session which had as its subject, "The Freshman's Preparation in Composition".

The fact that Westminster is a member of the association is one of great interest, since, in order to become a member, a school must have a high scholastic standing.

Few Spectators At Police Court

Mayor's Private Hearing Plan Eliminates Lure For Spectators

OLD LOAFER GANG HAS NEW HAUNTS

There was a time, not so many years ago, that the city fathers were greatly concerned in providing seating facilities in the court room of the police station, for the audience that could always be counted on at police court.

This group of interested citizens, for the most part, had no other interest in being present, than the entertainment afforded them at the sessions of police court.

But those days are past, at least they have been during the greater part of the term of Mayor William H. Dunlap. The seats are needed at times, but generally for the waiting list to be heard by the mayor in the office of the chief of police.

Considerable of the unfortunate as well as those, who never see the inside of the police court, unless on some business matter, usually of a private nature, the mayor long since decided that too often persons were made ridiculous in the open hearings, when there was no need of such a thing occuring.

The result has been, that the practice of hearing a great majority of the cases coming before him in the private office of the chief has become effective. The guilty culprit gets his just dues just the same as if the hearing was held in open court, principally for the reason, that the mayor and police officials are better able to get to the facts without so many concerned in the statements of the persons being questioned.

The person, who has unfortunately become involved in police court proceedings, can talk freely and without the fear that their misfortunes will be made public property.

There are the occasional habitual offenders that get a public hearing as of yore, but this is rare. Usually such cases are handled by the lesser officials of the department, with the consent and knowledge of the mayor.

It has the result, it is believd by many, of setting many unfortunates on the road to better things and has proven its worth in that way, if in no other manner.

Women Who Were In War Zone To Lead Conference On War

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The News.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Dec. 3.—A certain famous admiral once stated that "of all existing matters the one least understood by women is war."

This accusation is denied by women leaders of the conference on the cause and cure of war which is to be held here Dec. 5-10. Committees named by the nine organizations to be represented at the conference are composed largely of women who were overseas during the last war.

Miss Ruth Morgan of New York, vice president of the National League of Women Voters, who is in charge of a portion of the program of the conference, was the only woman commissioner of the American Red Cross in Paris and was on the scene almost from the beginning to the end of the war.

Mrs. George B. Ford, also of New York, chairman of publicity for the national board of the Y. W. C. A., and chairman of publicity for the conference, was a director of personnel for the Red Cross in Paris. In this capacity she sent into service more than 700 American Red Cross women. Later Mrs. Ford was with the Smith college unit in its reconstruction campaign.

Among Those Present.

Miss Florence Angell of the American Association of University Women, Miss Gladys Harrison and Miss Florence Harrison, secretaries of the National League of Women Voters, were in the center of Red Cross activity. Miss Louise Griffiths of the treasurer's office of the National League of Women Voters was with the women's overseas hospital unit, and Miss Gertrude Ely, a district membership secretary of the same organization, was a Y. M. C. A. representative with the first division A. E. F. in France and Germany. Miss Henrietta Roeloffs, who was sent out by the Y. W. C. A. as an advance agent, organized the work for which the Blue Triangle was later distinguished. All of these women are to be actively identified with the conference on the cause and cure of war in Washington.

One the whole the women feel that they have a war record which passes muster. They declare that they can hardly be accused of knowing nothing about the subject at hand.

Bain To Undergo Rigid Questioning By Owen Roberts

Today's Session Of Fall-Doheny Trial Promises Sensations

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service Financial Editor

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The "camera mind" of H. Foster Bain, former director of the Bureau of Mines, which functioned so valiantly as the defense opened in the conspiracy trial of former Secretary of Interior Fall and E. L. Doheny, the oil magnate, was due for several hours of additional dissection today at the hands of Owen Roberts, government counsel, to determine whether the sudden lapse under cross-examination was temporary or permanent.

The metamorphosis of Bain as a witness was little short of startling. Under the gentle guidance of Frank Hogan, astute chief of defense counsel, the former official had spent four hours on the stand laying the foundation of the defense. He had remembered dates, facts and figures with deadly accuracy as checked from the records.

And then, in the 15 minutes left of the session under the piercing cross-examination of Roberts, he could not remember what he had testified to in the civil case at Los Angeles, out of which the present trial is a growth. For the most part it was previous testimony which had linked Fall and Doheny in the making of the naval oil contracts and leases which had slipped his memory.

Today's session promised interest. Roberts has dropped his gentlemanly, schoolmaster manner and gone after Bain with the most scathing kind of cross-examination.

Rev. Maitland Is Stirring Up Ward

Evangelist Speaking To Large Crowds In Seventh Ward M. E. Church

"If any Man be in Christ Jesus, He is a new Creature" was the subject of the sermon Rev. Harry Maitland preached on at the revival service in the Mahoning Methodist church Thursday evening.

Under this subject he discussed "what does it mean to be converted?" It is not church membership, it is not baptism or church attendance, nor contributing to the church. It is not reformation or becoming better. The difference between reformation and regeneration is that it is the principle plus, putting great emphasis on the plus.

A vocal solo by Mrs. W. B. Porter of Ellwood City, Pa., entitled "Some Day You Will Understand", was a feature of the service.

The members of the Bible class taught by Mrs. I. E. McCoy, attended the service in a body Thursday evening. This evening will conclude the services for this week. Rev. Maitland will speak on the theme, "Smoked Up Christmas or Counterfeits and How to Detect Them".

Fathers And Sons Dine—Lads Speak As Well As Older Men

Fathers and sons of the Second United Prersbyterian church got together Thursday evening, Dec. 2, when the annual fathers and sons banquet was held in the dining room of the church. Like most affairs are in the Second U. P., this one was an enjoyable one and the chances are pretty good that everyone of the crowd of 200 or more present were glad they came.

Rev. A. J. Randles, pastor of the church, invoked the divine blessing and the banquet was on. During the service of it William E. Harris, chorister of the church, directed some pep singing. As a special feature the Sunday school orchestra, directed by David E. Rees, played during the meal.

Toastmaster, Clyde Gibson

The toastmaster, Attorney Clyde Gibson, was introduced by Homer Houk and following the introduction Mr. Gibson introduced each speaker by giving a short history of his life. The fact that he knew little of some of the speakers' lives hampered him none at all.

Russell Weir, one of the sons, was the first speaker of the evening and set the pace for those who followed him. This was his first public address, his maiden appearance, if you please, but despite this he put over his toast, "Our Fathers", in a splendid way. After his work Thursday night it seems certain that his first address was the opening of a long list of such things.

Attorney Wylie McCaslin spoke for the fathers and said a lot of good things in the short time he used. He stressed the public schools of this country and reminded them that the schools of America were the thing that stood out most in Queen Marie's impressions. Bart Richards followed with an original poem on "Those Good Old Days".

Rev. Walter E. McClure, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, was the last speaker on the program. While it isn't fair to the other speakers to say that the best was left to the last, it is fair to say that Rev. McClure delivered a powerful address. There was enough wit in it to make it enjoyable and enough serious matter in it to give the men and boys there something to think over.

Special music was provided during the program by the "Applesauce quartet", and a duo composed of David E. Rees and Joseph Strittmater.

It was a successful fathers and sons night. But as has been suggested before, all the Second U. P. events are good.

Banner Potato Crop Is Raised At Slippery Rock

SLIPPERY ROCK, Pa., Dec. 3.—Despite unfavorable weather conditions, Thomas Denniston and Sons of Slippery Rock report a banner potato crop that exceeded all previous records.

They grew 2,300 bushels of tubers from five and one-half acres.

One acre yielded approximately 482 bushels, which were weighed and measured by the county farm agent, W. F. Mandeville.

Mr. Denniston Sr. says that he finished digging the last of his potatoes Friday. He found very few had rotted and practically none were affected by blight which was prevalent in many sections because of the rainy season. He attributes his success in this regard to the fact that at regular intervals the potato crop was sprayed ten times during the season. He planted Michigan disease-free seed.

Mr. Denniston's yield last year was about 1,800 bushels from the same acreage, and this year's increase is regarded as astonishing for the reason that the potato crop in the county and state is far below average, due to the heavy and incessant rains.

Hot Water Well On Dakota Farm

(International News Service)

PIERRE, S. D., Dec. 3.—Dan Bierwagen of Haakon county will heat his house with hot water the coming winter, getting a supply from a deep well which he recently had sunk on his claim. The water comes from the ground at a temperature of about 110, and Bierwagen has piped it into his house and other buildings.

The well was sunk down as a test for oil and stopped at two thousand feet where the hot water supply was discovered. This is the only well with water of that temperatures other than a deep well at Capa, which has been flowing water of about that same temperature for a number of years.

At Capa residents near the well use the hot water for various household purposes, and a bath tank which has been erected, needs several hours to cool down the temperature before a bath is safe or comfortable.

PETERS ADVENTURES IN ANIMAL LAND

By Florence Smith Vincent

"THE FAT'S IN THE FIRE!"

"Envy is the high wall that stands between many a friendship. Fate, though, was good to the horse and the dog, and there was no reason in the world why they should not live on the best of terms. At any rate, 'twas a fair beginning they made as side by side they stood and watched their masters.

"'Great hoofs and long tails! What is happening to poor piggie?' demanded Beauty. 'Truly the two-legs do strange things!'"

"'Ho!' barked Wander, 'you haven't seen anything yet! Just wait!'

"Indeed, my dears, I've no doubt but had you been there you'd have been as amazed as was Beauty himself. For you're used to seeing meat roasted in the oven, but a far different way of cooking piggie had those men of long ago. On a long pointed rod they hung him. One man on one side of the fire took one end of the pointed rod and a second man on the other side of the fire took the other end of the pointed rod, and 'round and 'round and 'round they whirled it. And by and by piggie began to turn brown. Little drops of fat ran down piggie's sides and dropped into the fire.

"'The fat's in the fire!' cried the men, and laughed, but the drops sputtered.

"'Sizzle! Sss! Sizzle! It was hot over the flames, but it is worse down here. Piggie will be eaten but this is the end of us!'

"And who felt sorry for the poor drops of fat? Nobody at all, for that was just what those drops of fat were expected to do. After a time piggie was roasted to a turn, and, oh, my, oh, my, didn't he smell good! So good that Beauty, who had never tasted roast piggie and never expected to half wished that pork had always been a favorite dish with wild horses.

"AFTER A TIME PIGGIE BEGAN TO TURN A MOST DELICIOUS BROWN."

"'I shall be given my share of that if I mind my p's and q's, as a good dog should!' said he to Beauty. 'Yum, yum, how delicious is the aroma that comes from that pot of broth! I should like to step closer, but I know better than to. Sniffing 'round pots and jars has led me under my mistress' feet, and whenever she has been cross to me it has been for that very thing. It is hard to be good, though, at a time like this, when I so much want to do what I know I shouldn't.'

"'Be patient, friend dog. Your share will come to you all in good time! Feast your eyes and ears and nose 'till comes the hour when your stomach shall be fed!' So said wild horse, but it was easy for him to talk, since could he have sampled them he wouldn't have touched the goodies that so sorely tempted Wander."

DINNER STORIES

A certain Hebrew gentleman once went to Africa on a hunting trip. When he came back the home folks gave him a testimonial dinner down at the delicatessen, and somebody asked him to tell about his most terrifying experience.

"Vell," he said, "vun night I vas valking out from the kemp, through the jungles, and I heppened to think I had forgotten my gun. But I don't care; I am a brave men; I valk on. Purty soon I hear a noise, and I look to my right, and there is a lion! And I look to my left, and there is a tigair. I look behind me, and it is a rhinoceross. I look in front of me, and it is a hippopotamus. I say vell, I must climb a tree. I look up in the tree, and there is a leopard!"

He paused. His audience was breathless. One quavered, "My! Vot heppened to you!" The hunter swelled his chest and glared:

"Vot heppened to me?" he demanded. "Vot could heppen to me? I vas killed!"

THEY'LL LET HER WEAR NOTHING

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 3.—Wool fat or axle grease, hip-boots or nothing at all—it is all the same to the rules committee of the Catalina channel swimming contest, scheduled for January 15, next.

Mrs. Lottie Schoemmel, mother of two children, declared that she would withdraw from the contest if she was forced to wear any clothing whatever.

WESTMINSTER MAN SELECTS ALL-STAR GRID TEAMS

Names Best Players In Class B College Teams In District

Geneva Is Given Majority Of Places On Mythical Team—Grove City Also Shares Largely In Filling Of Positions On All-Star Team

By WILLIAM THOMAS

Selecting all-star grid teams at the end of each campaign is like a bad habit—once acquired it is hard to cast aside. However, no matter how many times it is done, it is a haphazard undertaking. After much thought and weighing the respective abilities of the various players of the district, our choice was clicked off with the ever handy typewriter to give the greedy dope digester something to read and then tear apart.

Tri-State Conference Team.

As only natural, the majority of those chosen for this eleven are Geneva men. The Covenanters had one of the greatest teams in the school's history as the contests against Cornell and Harvard attest.

Starting with the ends, "Cal" Hubbard and Whitemore of Geneva are honored. Hubbard's ability as an all-around gridder need not be played up. Whitemore, a former star at Bellefonte academy, played real football in each Covenanter fracas. His ability to snare passes is uncanny and he can be used in the backfield as a ball carrier when needed.

Woods of Waynesburg and Magliseeau of Geneva were posted at the tackles. Both are big husky chaps with the ability to smear plays on their respective sides of the line. Two Geneva guards were named to play the same positions on the mythical eleven. They are Heinzer and Davis. The way these lads stood off the rushes of the heavy Harvard and Cornell backs asounded eastern critics.

Woodward, Waynesburg veteran, was given the call for center over Meyers of Geneva and Burwell of Bethany.

The backfield was comparatively easy. Douds of Thiel would fit well into the signal calling job. He is an excellent forward passer and with Hubbard and Whitemore at the ends, there would be a constant aerial threat. Flenniken and Schachern of Geneva have earned the right to the halfback berths. Both are heady grid artists. They carry the pigskin well and can back the line in faultless fashion. Frank of Waynesburg, a bruising type of fullback, was named at his favorite position. He was given the call ahead of his teammate McCleary for the simple reason he participated in more games and has occasioned more real damage during the season.

Duquesne's nearest approach to all-star material lies in Velar, negro backfield man. However, he not quite reaches the calibre of those named. Westminster has Bowen, end, and McQuiston, halfback, and Montgomery, guard, of the top rank. However, Bowen was out of action in the Pitt and Waynesburg games while McQuiston concentrated his activities to punting and passing without carrying the ball during most of the season, due to a leg injury.

Bethany has two men eligible in Neel, halfback, and Griffith, guard and tackle. Neel is only a youngster, however, and is incapable of supplanting either Schachern or Flenniken at the halves.

Tri-State District Team.

In naming a district team, Grove City and Allegheny, and especially the former, must be given deep consideration. In assigning the ends, it is very doubtful if any of the schools have ends to compete with the Geneva duo. Hubbard and Whitemore. It was this opinion that led the writer to again select the Covenanters. Pflug of Grove City and Kinnuen of Allegheny would make a sweet pair of tackles. Pflug's toe was responsible for Grove City's unexpected toppling over of Geneva.

Gibson of Grove City, a guard, is without doubt the outstanding lineman in the district. His work featured practically every Crimson victory. Behrhorst of Allegheny has played center during the year but one would not be amiss in shifting him over a notch. At center, McConnell of Grove City was given the edge over his rivals. He is more clever than Woodward of Waynesburg and charges faster.

"Ed" Anderson of Grove City is named quarterback without hesitation. His work in the Geneva game stamped him as a player of more than ordinary ability. He is small but he casts these handicaps aside with his unusual speed and headwork. Again Schachern and Flenniken of Geneva are named halfbacks. They are without a par in this vicinity. Bill Cribbs is named fullback. Ask no reasons but recall some of his deeds during the campaign. It is our opinion that if the Crimson leader had matriculated at a larger school, his name would be on the lips today of those eastern critics busy selecting all-America outfits. No prettier exhibition of individual play has ever been witnessed by the writer than that displayed by Cribbs when he and his teammates contrived to bump Geneva off its lofty perch.

Flowers-Walker Battle Tonight In Chicago Coliseum

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Chicago is the capital of pugilism today and a wild, fight-mad capital it is. At 9 o'clock tonight Deacon Tiger Flowers of Atlanta, Ga., king of all the middleweights, will step into a ring at the ancient Coliseum here to defend his world title against Mickey Walker of Elizabeth, N. J.

It will be the most important fight staged here since the rebirth of legalized boxing in Illinois. Twelve thousand wild-eyed fans will cluster around.

Flowers and Walker will box ten rounds to a referee's decision. They will scale 160 pounds at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Walker may be a few pounds under. At the gymnasium today he tipped the beam at 157.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

By ED. FRITZ

JOHNNY Bowen, U. S. navy, stationed in Lake Michigan, has entered the boxing game. He is the fourth member of the South Side family to daily with the horsehair pads. He is a youngster in experience and next week will make his second professional entry against a fighter from Canton in a Youngstown ring. Willie, Henry and Eddie preceded him. Eddie and Henry are still in the game. Henry is boxing around the national capital, while Eddie is located in Cleveland.

BILLY Wallace of Cleveland, a lightweight, stopped Louis Kid Kaplan, former featherweight champion of the world, in the fifth round at Cleveland last night. Kaplan was floored three times before the fatal ten was tolled. Another surprise occurred in the same ring when Johnny Farr defeated Eddie Shea of Chicago in 12 rounds. Relative to the Wallace victory, it does not bring the Cleveland lad the featherweight title, as they did not fight at the poundage stipulated, but the victory will bring him a fortune.

ALL of the attaches at the Jack Dempsey camp, Atlantic City, have placed the stamp of "bunk" on the allegation of Captain Mabbutt that the former titleholder was poisoned by gamblers while in training for his bout with Gene Tunney. "I probably had a little touch of ptomaine a week or so before the fight, but it had nothing to do with the result", says Dempsey. "I was perfectly all right when I went into the ring and knew what was going on all the time."

TOMMY Holleran, former Pitt grid star and head coach at Thiel, has rallied successfully following an operation for appendicitis performed yesterday at a Greenville hospital. He was handicapped during the grid season by an attack of appendicitis and this kept him from directing practice for two weeks. He recovered from the attack, but at that time it was disclosed that an operation would be necessary and it was decided to operate following the end of Thiel's season.

ALBERT Betzell, who played baseball for the Louisville club last season, has been signed to succeed Donie Bush as manager of Indianapolis in the American Association.

PRESIDENT Dreyfuss of the Pirates, in commenting upon a fight that may be made to curtail Judge Landis' power, refused to issue a statement, saying he would want to know more about the proposed curtailments before he spoke.

STEVE Stepanian, former Crimson star, is the latest possibility considered as coach of Grove City College. He has been coaching Charleroi High with remarkable success for several years. He is said to have admitted confidentially to friends that he has received a proposition from his alma mater and is giving it serious consideration. He coached Charleroi the year that Phil Bridenbaugh's New Castle team mowed Charleroi down in a semi-final for the W. P. I. A. League title.

Franklin High To Open Grid Season Here

Venango County School To Pry Off Football Season Lid Here In 1927

According to word received today the Franklin high football team will open the 1927 grid season in this city by meeting the New Castle high team at the Franklin stadium. The date is September 24.

The Venango county team this year won five games and lost four. The following teams were defeated by Franklin: Youngsville, Titusville, Greenville, Union City, and Sandy Lake. Franklin lost four games as follows: Oil City, twice, Meadville and Sharpsville.

Coach Eddie Treadwell expects to have a winning combination next fall and a team that will give New Castle a hard tussle.

Church Basketball Managers To Meet For Organization

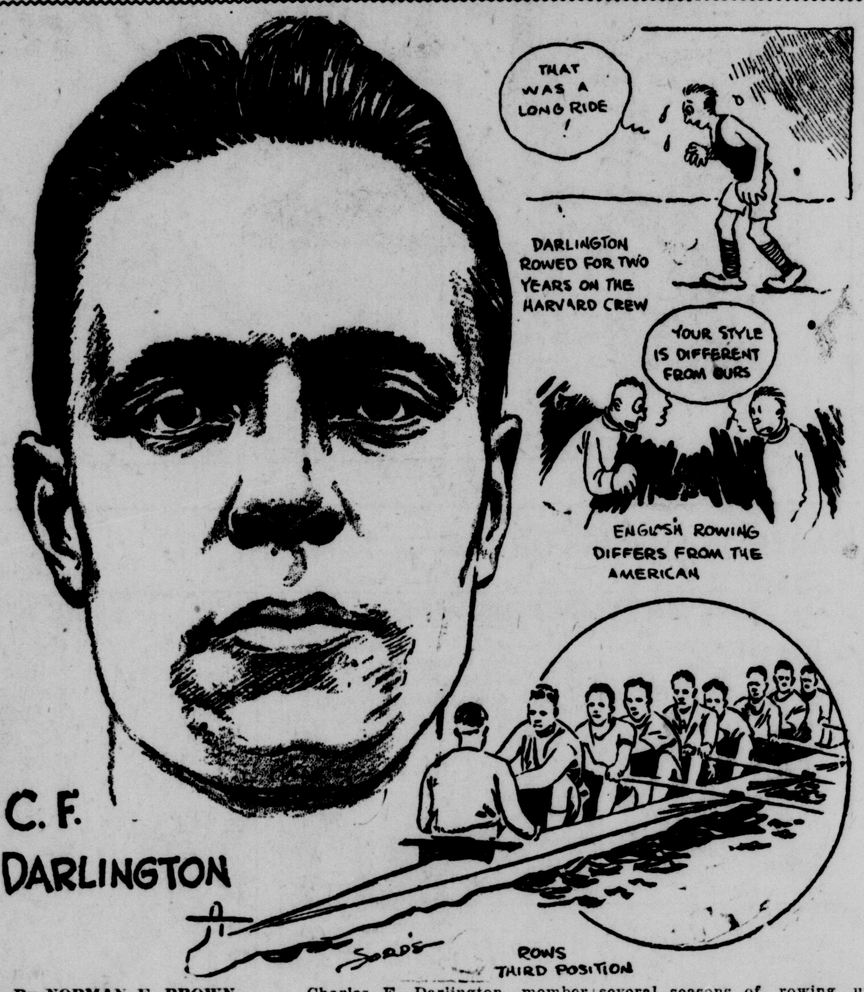
Walter E. Kirker, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., announced today that a meeting of all Church League managers would be held in the Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock tonight for the purpose of organizing a floor loop.

The following churches are asked to have a representative at the meeting tonight: St. Pauls Lutheran, Jewish Church, Central Presbyterian, First Methodist, Croton M. E., Park Christian, Central Christian, Sacred Hearts and First Baptists.

It is planned to organize a six team league. There are a number of churches desiring to join the league, but the "first come first served plan will be followed," said Kirker.

NIBLICK MAY BE MIGHTIER THAN OAR

But These U. S. Rowers Are Winning Fame Abroad



By NORMAN E. BROWN

America has drawn the golfing spotlight from Great Britain thru the achievements of Jones, Sweetser, Hagen, Barnes et al, during the last few years. France and America combined have relegated the British boxers to the back yard.

And now it may be that eventually King George's subjects will not be able to call their sculls their own.

According to recent word from that historic institution of learning—Oxford university—two of Uncle Sam's oarsmen are demanding, by their skill in trials, places on the Oxford eight—one of the most coveted honors in that branch of sport.

Charles F. Darlington, member of the Harvard eight for two years, and H. T. Kingsbury, a Yale varsity oarsmen a couple of years ago, are the two. Both are members of varsity crews, referred to as "A" and "B". From These squads the eight will be chosen.

And while these two huskies are upholding the honor of Uncle Sam at Oxford, Kent Leavitt, another former Harvard shell man, is rowing on the "A" squad at Cambridge. It is within the range of possibilities that the annual race between the two institutions will find American pitted against American in the contest for supremacy between these two English universities.

That these three men can—after several seasons of rowing under the American system—alter their style to suit English rowing conditions and then compete with their British brothers for the honored posts is a credit to the versatility of the men.

Not only is the stroke of the oar and the length of the slide in the shell of different lengths, but the positions of the men in the boat are different. The seats are "off center".

On the other hand, the Americans carried with them to Oxford and Cambridge the superb, rugged build much sought for crew material and lacking among the British and continental students, who are usually of a smaller type.

Checker Players To Meet On Saturday

• There will be a meeting of the checker players of New Castle on Saturday night at the Y. M. C. A. at 8:30 o'clock, was the announcement today from Walter E. Kirker.

All checker players of the city interested in a checker tourney are asked to report at this meeting. Plans will be outlined for the coming winter activities.

Many Grid Coaches To Be Guillotined, 1926 Records Unfavorable

California, Georgia Tech, Iowa Seek New Leaders For Grid Teams

Bob Waddell May Succeed Wally Steffen As Coach At Carnegie Tech

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
Sports Editor International News Service

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Officially starting the open season on football coaches who neglected to fool some of the people all of the time, including the opposing defense, came the expected intimation today of post-season changes in coaching staffs and imposing names were bandied with considerable freedom. Among those mentioned for decapitation were Price of California, Alexander of Georgia Tech and Ingwerson of Iowa.

The latter, indeed, was under fire during the regular season, which happened to be one of Iowa's worst through no convincing fault of Ingwerson's. The Hawkeyes simply haven't had the men since the Devines and Slater graduated.

However, of far greater moment is a report to the effect that a middle western coach whose team attained national prominence this year, is dissatisfied and will jump anywhere that conditions seem more favorable. The writer feels that he is not at liberty to divulge this man's identity until the situation develops further.

Frank Cavanaugh already has declined to return to Boston College and has been mentioned for the California berth, it seemingly having been taken for granted that Price will not return to Berkeley next fall. Rumors of Lou Young's passing at Pennsylvania have been in the air and, according to a prominent Pacific coast coach, Young also has been under consideration by the Bears.

He was a pupil of the late Andy Smith, who made football what it was at California. However, Andy was quite an offensive coach, while Young might be called somewhat inoffensive, considering his record at Pennsylvania. His teams have been sound defensively, but they lacked punch.

At that, Pennsylvania might not be so anxious to part with Young as it was said to be before the Cornell game. He got a fourth period tie there and this effort may have saved him from the guillotine.

Waddell At Tech

Only a day or so after Carnegie Tech's notable victory over Notre Dame it was said that Walter Steffen would not return in his advisory capacity next season, owing to his judicial duties and other demands on his time. If this is the case Tech will be in a position to carry right on, for Bob Waddell, who was Steffen's middleman, probably will be available.

As for Alexander, his supposed withdrawal at Georgia Tech has been freely discussed throughout southern football. His Tech teams haven't been what they were and the glory of the past often is forgotten in the disappointment of the present. If Alexander goes, his passing will be regretted by football men throughout the South.

They say that Hugo Bezdek has outlasted his welcome at Penn State and, before the Big Three series, Tad Jones was under a hot fire at Yale and not by "yellow bellies and shyster lawyers", as Tad himself suggested. However, it is considered unlikely that anything will come of the Jones matter, while it is entirely possible that Bezdek will hold on, at least for another year.

College football may or may not be over-emphasized, but there is slight doubt that the value of winning is, seemingly, they can't abide a loser for more than a single season.

Tiger Flowers Bible Student

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—With a well-thumbed Bible in his hands, the same he used when he was steward in the Butler Colored Methodist church in Atlanta, Tiger Flowers whiled away the hours before his scheduled start at the Coliseum tonight in defense of his middleweight title against Mickey Walker.

The little book of scriptures is Flowers' constant companion. He has it with him always. The fighting deacon said his favorite verse was part of the 144th Psalm, which reads:

"Blessed be the Lord, my strength, which teacheth my hands to war and my fingers to fight."

Holleran Operated On In Greenville For Appendicitis

(International News Service)

GREENVILLE, Pa., Dec. 3.—On the road to recovery, Dr. Thomas V. Holleran, football coach at Thiel college, is resting comfortably at a local hospital today following an operation for appendicitis, according to his physicians.

Holleran, who is a former Pitt star, had to absent himself from the practice field for several weeks this season due to an attack of appendicitis and finally an operation was necessary.

Football Banquet On December 9

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Dec. 3.—Thursday evening, December 9, is the time that has been set for the annual football banquet at Westminster College. It will be held in the dining room of the Hillside dormitory at New Wilmington.

Invitations for the banquet have been mailed by Dr. W. Charles Wallace, president of the college, the host of the evening.

Members of the Athletic Council of the college, many grads and several newspaper men will be present in addition to the members of the squad and coaches.

Duquesne Floor Stars Under Fire

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 2.—With the loss of one star basketball player through scholastic difficulties, and possibility that another may be barred from competition for taking part in a non-collegiate game, hopes for the Duquesne University quintet to repeat its feat in winning the Tri-State championship were slim today.

"Sticks" Monahan, center, was ruled ineligible by the athletic board, and the case of Johnny Serbin, who played in an outside game was referred to the Tri-State athletic conference for a decision.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

Had several interesting chats with grid officials and leaders at Chicago, while taking in the Army-Navy game and the meeting of football celebrities preceding it. This while listening to some of the boys commiserating with Coach Stagg on the resemblance of his Chicago eleven to a doormat and coach taking good naturedly the suggestion that Michigan was lucky in its game with Minnesota.

One of the visitors was E. C. Lytton, business manager of athletics at Drake University, Des Moines, Ia., the school which raised an ordinary week-end track meet into an internationally known track and field carnival known as the Drake relays.

Lytton was just losing the sadness which had come upon him when Grinnell, most ancient and honored rival of the Des Moines institution, triumphed over Lytton's boys 13 to 0—the first victory scored in many years.

Lytton, however, was not weeping over the season's results. He was cheered considerably by the tribute Knute Rockne paid the Drake team. Notre Dame played Drake at South Bend and Rockne was frank in his statement that the Des Moines boys had presented the best team met on Notre Dame's home grounds the past season. The other visitors to South Bend had included Penn State, Georgia Tech, Indiana and Beloit.

That Drake went after the big boys is indicated by the fact that they played, in addition to Rockne's men, both the Navy and the powerful Nebraska teams.

They scored a touchdown against the Navy, which was more than Michigan achieved.

The Drake team was handicapped considerably by the illness of Coach Solem, who refused to heed the warning of physicians that what started out as a bad cold was assuming serious proportions.

Dr. Cook Plans Air Routes To Polar Regions

Believes Aviation Is Key To Untold Hidden Wealth In Both Arctics

Half Of World Is Still A Mystery, Says Famous Explorer In Article

By JERRY QUISENBERRY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Dec. 3.—Convinced that the great uncompassed expanses of ice and snow around the north and south poles hold untold riches which, for the first time in history, are now accessible through aviation, Dr. Frederick A. Cook, Arctic explorer, has envisioned a network of air routes through the polar regions as a means of access to this hidden wealth.

From behind the bars of the federal prison here, where he is serving a sentence, the explorer has looked into the future to predict that in the space of a few years a system of airways spread over the ends of the earth will make the distant wastes of today the world's backyard tomorrow. In an article given to International News Service through courtesy of Warden W. I. Biddle, and also appearing in the Leavenworth New Era, a publication for prisoners, Dr. Cook explains these ideas.

Half of World a Mystery.

Half of the world, the explorer states, is still unexplored. Virtually all regions beyond 45 degrees north and south best would be represented on maps in terms of dotted lines. Yet into this unknown half of the world is poured the wealth drained by rivers from areas of several million square miles. Moreover, in this unknown half are thousands of fresh water lakes offering unlimited economic possibilities for fisheries and fur farming.

"There are two important chain routes," states the explorer, "which at once suggest themselves. First, a north-south line from Duluth, Winnipeg or the end of the Hudson Bay railroad to, or near, the north pole. Second, an east-west route connecting the possible centers of economic development along the shores of the Arctic sea.

Routes Suggested.

"Along the polar route I would suggest the following chain of stations: (1) Port Nelson, Hudson Bay; (2) Chesterfield Inlet; (3) Magnetic Pole; (4) North Devon; (5) Heigberg Island; (6) North Pole.

The advantages of putting the stations mentioned above the proposed polar aerial route readily present themselves, Dr. Cook asserts.

"At Port Nelson there should be a base camp to aid, direct and cooperate with the more northern camps by radio and airplane. The Chesterfield Inlet camp should be a similar base camp for both Port Nelson and Chesterfield, both of which, being on the Hudson bay, can be reached by water. From where the long reaches of the Backs river are accessible—a river which the Eskimos say has enough salmon and trout to feed the world.

"At the Magnetic Pole there are great electro-magnetic problems to be solved, and the interior of large islands, like Baffinland and North Devon, could be studied. At North Devon observations and studies similar to those at the Magnetic Pole could be undertaken.

"At the North Pole many important lines of investigation call for solution. No dash by sled or brief aero-stunt offers sufficient time for real scientific or practical work. To do that, man must camp at the pole for weeks or months, and this can be done only by a chain route such as had been mentioned."

Develop Industries.

While these scientific observations are in progress, the explorer points out, the industries of mining, prospecting for oil, fur farming and ivory collecting could be started, later to be developed by successive chain routes of industry.

"If the missionaries who forced their way far out into the polar seas a hundred years ago," Dr. Cook states, "had planted the seeds of industries such as fur farming and mining then the rich lands about the polar seas today would be inhabited by prosperous communities, instead of the present isolated tribes of starving and diseased human remnants of a once intelligent nomadic race.

"In the development of these regions there will be many difficulties and untold hardships, but difficulties and hardships do not stop the adventurous spirit of man when financial conquest is in sight. If gold had been reported at the North Pole, 10,000 persons would have found their way there in a short time.

"There is gold, there is oil, there is coal, copper and other wealth untold in these regions, awaiting the unwavering ingenuity of man; and the airplane is the new line of travel which will create new wealth and new pleasures to man's speeding ambitions."

Canadian Real Estate Jumps

Premier Ferguson Hopes For Speedy Legislature On Liquor Issue

(International News Service)

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—Real estate values on the Canadian side of the Ontario-United States border have jumped 20 per cent in value overnight as a result of the vote in favor of government controlled sale of liquor in Ontario at Wednesday's general election, it was announced today. The increase in values was attributed to the large influx of Americans and American capital which is now exepected during the coming year.

Premier Ferguson today announced that he will speed up the necessary machinery in the legislature to give the people of Ontario a supply of beverage liquors at the earliest possible moment. The government party, having a majority of 38 seats over all other parties in the house, is expected speedily to arrange necessary details for liquor sales from government stores throughout the province.

Four New Radio Stations Granted Right To Broadcast

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Radio confusion continues to grow more acute.

Four new stations were authorized to take the air today by the department of commerce, adding to the interference on the wave channels.

WWPR, Detroit police department, wave length 300 meters.

KGDO, C. H. Garrett, Dallas, Texas, wave length 285 meters.

WLCI, Lutheran Association, Ithaca, N. Y., wave length 266 meters.

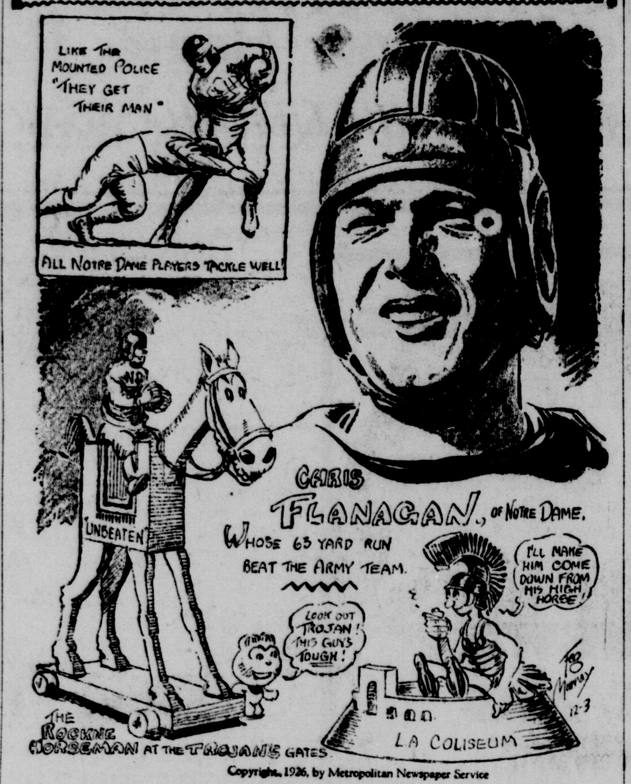
Off Again, Flanagan! By Feg Murray



Copyright, 1926, by Metropolitan Newspaper Service

Will tomorrow be the Day of Days for the University of Southern California or the Day of "Daze"? Will the "Thundering Herd" of U. S. C. trample underfoot Knute Rockne's Rollicking Ramblers, or will they in turn be drawn and quartered and made the "piece de resistance" of an Irish barbecue? This is, of course, a vitally important game for both teams. For the unbeaten Notre Dame eleven a victory means a clear claim to the national championship; while for the Trojans it will mean national recognition as one of the country's greatest teams and prestige lost in the Stanford defeat more than regained.

Watta battle, boys, watta battle! Rockne vs. Jones; O'Boyle, Flanagan, etc., versus Kaer, Drury and Co. There are four All-American backfield men right there. The Notre Dame team that I saw beat the Army should win, but think these facts over before you bet any money: In 1925 Iowa journeyed to Southern California and was beaten 18 to 0 by Howard Jones's team. Syracuse and Missouri went out to Los Angeles the year before and were trimmed 16 to 0 and 20 to 7. On New Year's Day, 1923, Penn State played U. S. C. in the Pasadena Rose Bowl and fell before the Westerners 14 to 3. Let those figures sink in.

The long train trip, change of climate and water, and the fact that U. S. C. was playing before a home crowd and usually on their own grounds, all helped to defeat the invading teams from the East and Middle West. But Notre Dame, the team that plays U. S. C. in the Los Anngeles Coliseum tomorrow, made the trip in 1924 and beat Stanford 27 to 10. Don't overlook that little item, either!

Mr. Christy Flanagan, shown above, went in fresh in the third period of the Notre Dame-Army game last month and, on a nice little cut-back in toward tackle from a shift play, ran 63 yards to the only touchdown. But it was to the other 10 Notre Dame men on the field that the glory belonged just as much as to Flanagan. That is what U. S. C. will be up against: perfect team play—perfect co-ordination, perfect interference, perfect tackling. I fear tomorrow night won't be the end of a Perfect Day for the Trojans!

Feg Murray Says—

The football group modeled in clay by Jack Lambert, Baltimore sculptor, surely must have included the mud-guard.

ALL-AMERICAN GRID CANDIDATES

The little college of Muhlenberg probably goes out of its class oftener to grid games than any other institution in the country. And in trouncing Lehigh, Gettysburg, Dickinson and other formidable elevens this season the Allentown, Pa., school has exhibited at least one man who will receive considerations for All-eastern and perhaps All-American honors—Nick Borrelli.

Borrelli plays fullback for the team and though not a heavy man, is a terrific line plunger and handles himself brilliantly in the open field, due to his speed.

The Big Ten conference has exhibited some brilliant tackles this season in Raskowski of Ohio State, Ira Nelson of Iowa, Johnson of Northwestern, Lovette of Michigan and several others.

Raskowski's work was one of the outstanding features of the Ohio team's play all season. He is only a sophomore, which bodes well for his future and gives O. S. U. great joy. He has proved a small wall in himself to all teams attempting gains around or through left tackle. This includes Michigan, which had to resort to the aerial game to gain against O. S. U.

Continue Flight To Washington In "Baby" Airplane

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3.—Sir Alan Cobham, noted British aviator, and Lady Cobham, left here at 8:10 o'clock this morning in a baby "moth" bi-plane on the last leg of their New-York-to-Washington flight. Sir Alan and Lady Cobham will visit the British embassy immediately after their arrival at Bolling Field and at noon they have an appointment to call on President Coolidge at the White House.

Pittsburgh Police Raid Night Clubs

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 3.—Pittsburgh's night life was subjected to daylight scrutiny of police officials today, while a padlock reposed on the door of one cabaret and four others were temporarily without operating licenses, following a series of raids by police under the supervision of Director of Public Safety James M. Clark.

Police ordered the Rendezvous Supper Club closed following an alleged suicide attempt of an unidentified girl who was a guest at the place.

Dreyfuss Favors Landis' Retention

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 3.—It was intimated here today that Barney Dreyfuss favored the re-election and non-curtailment of the powers of ex-Judge K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner.

"I am for the re-election of Judge Landis," Dreyfuss asserted. "As for curtailment of his powers I would have to know what it was all about before saying anything along those lines."

Colonel Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, recently declared that Landis should not have so much power in baseball.

Fear Of Rubber Trade War Dims

British Rubber Interests Welcome New American Combine

(International News Service)

LONDON, Dec. 3.—No danger of anything resembling a trade war in rubber was anticipated today by British rubber interests as a result of the purchasing pool organized by American rubber interests.

British rubber interests welcome the new American combine, the head of one of the largest rubber syndicates in Great Britain told the International News Service today.

"Such a combine will help to stabilize prices and prevent seasonal fluctuations," this spokesman said. "The British rubber capital is so large that there is no possible danger of anything resembling a trade war as the result of the Americans pooling their resources."

Raw rubber advanced on the market today, upon news of the new combine.

Pittston Family Has Narrow Escape As Store Is Bombed

(International News Service)

PITTSTON, Pa., Dec. 3.—Hurled from their beds when a heavy charge of dynamite wrecked a store beneath their sleeping quarters, members of the family of Charles Cumbo in the Browntown section of Pittston had a narrow escape from death early today.

With the proprietors unable to supply a motive for the dynamiting and with no suspicious characters reported, Pittston police made no arrests.

English Antique Dealers Ousted By American Business

(International News Service)

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Fear that the antique dealers of England will be forced out of business in the next 25 years because all the antiques will be in the homes of American millionaires is expressed by Thomas Rohan, one of England's best known art and antique dealers, in his third book on antiques entitled "Old Beautiful".

"No English dealer can compete with the dollar," writes Rohan in describing how Americans cable to dealers to get a certain article, "price no object".

"In 25 years' time there will be but few dealers in antiques left in England," he says. "Even today the establishments which thrived upon reproductions during the past 15 years are closing their doors because it is becoming common knowledge that works of the craftsmen of the 18th century are exceedingly scarce in England."

Henry pays them more for a five-day week. Pedestrians might be willing to pay them even more for a one-day week.

In Day's News

It is generally believed, says a despatch from Paris, that M. Louis Loucheur, former Minister of Reconstruction, will be named to succeed M. Berenger as French ambassador at Washington. M. Loucheur has long been reckoned among the "big" men of France. In addition to his success in the public service he has a wide reputation for his business capacity and is reputed to be one of the wealthiest men in the republic. Engineering is his profession and it was as a builder of railroads and other public works in various parts of Europe that he attained his wealth and reputation. Since the war he has been engaged in the reconstruction of the devgastated areas and is an industrial organizer of the Stinnes type. Besides his work in rebuilding war ravaged France he has played an influential part in the direction of the government policies, foreign and financial especially.

Grilling tests prove the new

IF YOU could find a way to prevent all road dirt, metallic grit, carbon and gasoline from getting into your motor's crankcase, this new Atlantic Motor Oil virtually would "never wear out." It would retain its lubricating effectiveness until the last drop was consumed in the cylinders.

For here, at last, is an oil having none of the quick-melting, oil-thinning, waxy substances which ordinary refining methods fail to remove. An added Atlantic process "whirls" them out by centrifugal force. A further "curing" process tempers this oil to withstand still greater heat.

So pure, smooth, tough and stable is this new Atlantic Motor Oil that the most intense motor heat cannot change its character or cause serious evaporation.

THE EVAPORATION TEST

Evaporation reduces the volume and changes the character of ordinary oil faster than anything else. Study these remarkable tests:

At 480° nine representative "medium" motor oils, under test, showed evaporation losses of 19% or greater

At 480° the new Atlantic Motor Oil (Medium), under identically the same test, showed an evaporation loss of only 3%

Think what that means! . . . the saving in oil consumption . . . less frequent need of draining the crankcase . . . and the complete assurance that your oil is always efficient. Try it. Costs no more than ordinary oil. You can get it most everywhere. Dealer's chart assures you the right type Atlantic for your motor.

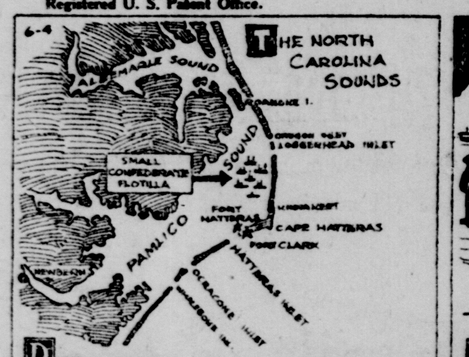
Capture of Hatteras Inlet.



DURING THE SUMMER OF 1861, THE CONFEDERATES CONTINUALLY RECEIVED SUPPLIES BY WAY OF HATTERAS INLET, N. C. WITH THE OBJECT OF CLOSING THIS ENTRANCE, FLAG-OFFICER SILAS STRINGHAM SAILED FROM HAMPTON ROADS, VIRGINIA, ON AUG. 26 WITH A SQUADRON CARRYING ABOUT 900 FEDERAL TROOPS UNDER GENERAL BUTLER.

ARRIVING OFF HATTERAS INLET ON THE AFTERNOON OF THE FOLLOWING DAY, STRINGHAM AND BUTLER MADE PREPARATIONS TO ATTACK THE CONFEDERATE FORTS, HATTERAS AND CLARK, WHICH GUARDED THE INLET. AT DAYBREAK ON THE 28TH, SOLDIERS WERE LANDED ON THE BEACH THREE MILES NORTH OF THE FORTS.

MEANWHILE, THE WARSHIPS ADVANCED TOWARD THE INLET AND BEGAN A TERRIFIC BOMBARDMENT. FORT CLARK, WHICH WAS ONLY A 5-GUN BATTERY, WAS ABANDONED BY THE CONFEDERATES AT 9 A. M. BUT FORT HATTERAS HELD OUT BRAVELY UNTIL THE NEXT DAY.

THE BOMBARDMENT OF THE HATTERAS FORTS.

THE FIRE OF THE SQUADRON PREVENTED RE-ENFORCEMENTS REACHING HATTERAS AND ON AUG. 29TH THE CONFEDERATE COMMANDER, FLAG-OFFICER BARRON, SURRENDERED TO STRINGHAM, THE FEDERALS TAKING 715 PRISONERS AND THREE VESSELS LOADED WITH COTTON.

Notice

To the Shareholders of The National Bank of Lawrence County at New Castle, Pennsylvania:

The National Bank of Lawrence County at New Castle, Pennsylvania, and The First National Bank of New Castle, Pennsylvania, acting pursuant to resolutions of their respective Boards of Directors, have entered into an agreement to consolidate said associations under the name of "First National Bank of Lawrence County at New Castle", subject to the ratification and confirmation thereof by the shareholders of each association owning at least two-thirds of the outstanding capital stock thereof, and subject to the approval of the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States. The Board of Directors of The National Bank of Lawrence County at New Castle, Pennsylvania, has called, and does hereby call, a special meeting of the shareholders of the said Bank to be held at its banking house at No. 101 East Washington Street, New Castle, Pennsylvania, on the 15th day of December, 1926, at 3 o'clock P. M., for the following purposes:

1. To vote for or against the ratification and confirmation of the said agreement of consolidation.

2. To vote for or against the ratification and confirmation of the action of the Board of Directors providing for the transfer to a Pennsylvania corporation to be incorporated of such assets of The National Bank of Lawrence County at New Castle, Pennsylvania, as are not considered desirable to carry into the consolidation or as shall not be necessary to make up the contribution of the said Bank to the capital, surplus, and undivided profits of the consolidated bank, in exchange for all of the capital stock of the proposed Pennsylvania corporation which will be distributed pro rata to the shareholders of The National Bank of Lawrence County at New Castle, Pennsylvania.

3. To vote for or against the ratification and confirmation of all other actions taken and agreements made by the Board of Directors of The National Bank of Lawrence County at New Castle, Pennsylvania, in contemplation of, or in connection with, the said consolidation and transfer of assets.

4. To authorize the directors and officers of The National Bank of Lawrence County at New Castle, Pennsylvania, to do all things by them deemed necessary or advisable to carry out the said consolidation and transfer of assets.

5. To transact such other business germane to the foregoing purposes as may be brought before the meeting.

By order of the Board of Directors.

Notice.

To the Stockholders of Safe Deposit & Trust Company of Lawrence County:

The Board of Directors of the Safe Deposit & Trust Company of Lawrence County has called, and does hereby call, a special meeting of the stockholders of the said Company to convene in the general offices of the Company, at New Castle, Pennsylvania, on the 15th day of December, 1926, at 2:00 o'clock P. M., to take action on the following propositions:

1. The approval or disapproval of the proposed increase of the capital stock of said Company from $150,000, divided into 3,000 shares of the par value of $50 a share, to $1,350,000, divided into 27,000 shares of the par value of $50 a share.

2. The approval or disapproval of the issuance of 2.4 shares of said proposed increased capital stock in exchange for each and every share of the capital stock of First National Bank of Lawrence County at New Castle (a national banking association to be organized by the consolidation of The First National Bank of New Castle, Pennsylvania, and The National Bank of Lawrence County at New Castle, Pennsylvania), offered for such exchange within such time as may be nominated by the Board of Directors of the said Safe Deposit & Trust Company of Lawrence County.

3. The increase of the number of directors of the said Company.

4. The approval or disapproval of all other actions taken and agreements made by the Board of Directors of the Safe Deposit & Trust Company of Lawrence County in contemplation of, or in connection with, the said proposed increase of the capital stock and the proposed issuance thereof, as above mentioned.

5. The authorization of the directors and officers of the Safe Deposit & Trust Company of Lawrence County to do all things by them deemed necessary or advisable to carry out the propositions above set forth, if approved.

6. The transaction of such other business germane to the foregoing propositions as may be brought before the meeting.

By order of the Board of Directors.

Gordon and George L. Patterson are the owners or reputed owners.

Second Parcel. Being part of lot No. 544, section 42 of the City Survey, beginning at the north-west corner thereof on the south line of Lawrence Street; thence by the south line of Lawrence Street in an easterly direction, 50 feet, more or less, to the east line of Mercer Street projected south approximately 40 feet to the north side of an alley; thence by the north side of said alley in a south-westerly direction, approximately 53 feet to the west side of an alley; thence north by the west side of the said alley, approximately 57 feet to the south side of Lawrence Street, the place of beginning, of which land Andrew Dietterle is the owner or reputed owner.

Third Parcel. Being a part of lot No. 542 in section 42 of the City Survey, and bounded and described as follows, to-wit: Beginning on the west side of an alley, the north-east corner of the land herein described; thence south by the said alley, about 13 feet to the north side of a 12 foot alley; thence in a south-westerly direction by the north side of a 12 foot alley, about 111.2 feet, more or less, to a point; thence north about 13 feet to the north side of the street herein ordained; thence in a north-easterly direction about 110½ feet, more or less, to the place of beginning; and containing about 1430 square feet; and being a strip of land about 13 feet wide off the rear of the said lot 542, of which Andrew Dietterle is the owner or reputed owner.

For the purpose of locating, ordaining and opening a public street from Jefferson Street to the southern end of Mercer Street at the south side of Lawrence Street; locating, ordaining and opening the said street as a part of Mercer Street; establishing the grade thereon; and providing for the assessment and payment of the damages for the taking, appropriation and condemnation of the said lands, and for the opening of the said street at the established grade.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the Council of the City of New Castle, Pa., that for the purpose of locating, ordaining and opening a public street from Jefferson Street to Mercer Street, there is hereby taken, appropriated and condemned the following described parcels of land situate in the First Ward of the City of New Castle, County of Lawrence and State of Pennsylvania, to-wit:

First Parcel. Being lot No. 528, section 42, beginning at a point, the south-west corner thereof, on the east side of South Jefferson Street; thence north 1° east, 70 feet, more or less, to land of Norris; thence north 66½° east, about 263 feet to land of Dietterle; thence south 13 feet to an alley; thence north 66½° east, about 235 feet to the Neshannock Creek; thence in a south-westerly direction by the established creek line, approximately 295 feet to the intersection of the line of Hunter; thence in a north-easterly direction by Hunter, about 45 feet; thence by land of Marie Poggio, about 36.81 feet; thence in a north-westerly direction by land of said Poggio, about 42 feet; thence in a south-westerly direction by land of said Poggio, about 160 feet across Cochran Street; and thence by said Poggio, 163.06 feet, more or less, to the place of beginning; and of which land Lee R. Gordon and George L. Patterson are the owners or reputed owners.

Second Parcel. Being part of lot No. 544, section 42 of the City Survey, beginning at the north-west corner thereof on the south line of Lawrence Street; thence by the south line of Lawrence Street in an easterly direction, 50 feet, more or less, to the east line of Mercer Street; thence by the east line of Mercer Street projected south approximately 40 feet to the north side of an alley; thence by the north side of said alley in a south-westerly direction, approximately 53 feet to the west side of an alley; thence north by the west side of the said alley, approximately 57 feet to the south side of Lawrence Street, the place of beginning, of which land Andrew Dietterle is the owner or reputed owner.

Third Parcel. Being a part of lot No. 542 in section 42 of the City Survey, and bounded and described as follows, to-wit: Beginning on the west side of an alley, the north-east corner of the land herein described; thence south by the said alley, about 13 feet to the north side of a 12 foot alley; thence in a south-westerly direction by the north side of a 12 foot alley, about 111.2 feet, more or less, to a point; thence north about 13 feet to the north side of the street herein ordained; thence in a north-easterly direction about 110½ feet, more or less, to the place of beginning; and containing about 1430 square feet; and being a strip of land about 13 feet wide off the rear of the said lot 542, of which Andrew Dietterle is the owner or reputed owner.

SECTION 2. The City having agreed with the owner of the said first parcel upon a fair and reasonable price for the same, to-wit: Seventeen Thousand ($17,000) Dollars, the Treasurer of the said City is hereby authorized and directed to pay to the said Lee R. Gordon and George L. Patterson the sum of Seventeen Thousand ($17,000) Dollars for the said land when the City Solicitor shall certify to the Council of the said City that he has received from the owner of the said land a good and sufficient deed conveying to the City of New Castle a perfect title in fee simple, free from all liens and encumbrances and with covenants of general warranty.

SECTION 3. That a public street be located, ordained and opened as an extension and part of Mercer Street, the center line of which shall be as follows, to-wit: Commencing at the present center line of Mercer Street on the south side of Lawrence Street; thence south 1° 25¼' east, 82.75 feet to a point; thence south 64° 42' west, 443.36 feet to the center line of South Jefferson Street; and that the said street shall be of the full width of fifty (50) feet throughout its first, or southerly, course, and of sixty (60) feet throughout its second, or south-westerly, course; one-half (½) of the said street being on each side of the said center line.

SECTION 4. That the grade of the said extension of Mercer Street, as herein ordained and opened along its center line, shall be as follows, to-wit: Beginning at the intersection of the east line of South Jefferson Street with the center line of the proposed Street at an elevation of 802.57 feet; thence ascending at the rate of 0.444% for a distance of 465.86 feet to the south line of Lawrence Street at an elevation of 804.64 feet.

SECTION 5. That the said street between the said point, upon the passage of this Ordinance, shall be opened according to the location, width and grade as herein fixed and established, according and subject to the provisions of the General Improvement Ordinance of the said City, so far as the same can be made applicable thereto, and to the other Ordinances of the said City and Laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, pertaining to the condemnation and purchase of land and the opening of streets; the cost and expense of the said improvement for the said opening and for the condemnation and purchase of the land necessary for the said opening, shall be paid by the said City out of funds raised by the sale of the "City of New Castle Improvement Bonds, Series of 1926", reserving, however, to the City the right to assess the said costs or part thereof upon the abutting properties and the same are hereby assessed against the said properties according to benefits.

SECTION 6. After the completion of the said work, the damages which the abutting properties may have sustained, if any, and the benefits which each respective property has received by the making of the said improvement and all damages agreed upon for the taking of any land for the said improvement, shall be ascertained and assessed by viewers appointed by the Court, and in the manner provided by law, and the assessment of so much of the cost and expense as shall be imposed upon each particular property shall be collected in the same manner as other assessments are collected.

I, Cordelia Zeigler Jones, City Clerk, do hereby certify that the above and foregoing ordinance has been regularly introduced and is now pending in the Council of the City of New Castle, Pa.

In witness whereof, I hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of the City, this 1st day of December, A. D. 1926.
CORDELIA ZEIGLER JONES,
City Clerk.

N. Y. STOCKS

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Dec. 3. — All departments of the stock market participated in a moderate upward swing of prices at the beginning of trading today. The industrials were spurred on by their old leaders, Steel and General Motors, while railroad shares were apparently indifferent to the 7½ per cent increase in trainmen's wages.

A new advance of the French franc to 3.90 cents and the evidences of bearish sentiment in the cotton market were the principal features of the outside markets. Call money renewals were posted at 4½ per cent for week-end loans.

Chrysler Motor sold at 38, a new high on the move, American Smelting and Crucible Steel led a brisk market in the metal stocks, following the lead of U. S. Steel, which gained a point in the first hour.

The Nickel Plate merger stocks were strong and active, with Erie up 2 points, Chesapeake and Ohio up 3½; Erie preferred stocks up 2.

After an early advance, the oil stocks and specialties were called upon to absorb considerable profit taking. Price declines were mostly fractional, except in a few of the higher priced shares.

Urge Caution Against Fires

Fire Chief Urges That Precautions Be Taken To Prevent Fires

DECORATIONS SHOULD ALL BE FIREPROOF

Fire Chief Charles H. Lynn and all of the members of the New Castle fire department are keeping their eyes trained on the various stores, business houses, halls, churches, schools, etc., where the Christmas activities are already in full swing.

Following the recent inspection of basements of stores against fire hazards, the firemen are issuing warnings against the use of flimsy materials for decorations for the holiday season. They are giving especial warnings of the fire hazards entailed.

Likewise the firemen urge that all who are planning to help out in Santa Claus roles make sure that they are not using suits which will easily catch fire.

Caution is also being urged in the matter of preparing to decorate Christmas trees, that materials be used which are inflammable. Candles should never be used to light a Christmas tree.

The firemen are hopeful that New Castle's record of past years can be perpetuated and the holiday season be made safe and sane.

Retired Preacher Holds Record For Sabbath Attendance

(International News Service)

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 3.—A Sunday school scholar goes for 90 years and still going regularly every Sunday.

That's the proud boast today of Rev. J. F. Richmond retired Methodist Episcopal minister of this city who has just celebrated his 93rd birthday anniversary.

When he was three years old, Rev. Richmond said his parents took him to Sunday school for the first ime.

"And I've seldom missed a class since then" he said.

QUIT SIDE LINES, BISHOPS' PLEA

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—T challenge to cease "standing on the side lines" and enter the struggle against forces which threaten civilization was flung today to members of the Episcopal church at a conference of leaders here in preparation for the opening of the "bishops' crusade," a national religious campaign.

The challenge came from Bishop Thomas C. Darst, chairman of the crusade. Other messages came from the Rt. Rev. John Gardner Murray, presiding bishop of the church and other leaders. Bishop Charles P. Anderson of Chicago presided.

While the clergy and leaders were in conference members of the Episcopal parishes were praying for the success of the movement.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY JEWISH WOMEN

SHARON, Pa., Dec. 3.—Mrs. Charles Long, Wilkes-Barre, was re-elected president of the Pennsylvania Council of Jewish Women at the closing session of the annual convention. Other officers named were Mrs. William Weil, Altoona, vice president; Mrs. J. Pack, Johnstown, treasurer; Mrs. B. Osterlink, Philadelphia, secretary; Mrs. Julius Moyer of Sharon, Miss Adele Levi of Philadelphia, Mrs. H. Pollock of Scranton and Mrs. Edwin Zugsmith of Pittsburgh, district vice presidents. Mrs. Mary Arnold of Philadelphia was made honorary president and Mrs. Moses Ruslander of Pittsburgh honorary vice president.

The average man worried a lot more over being wrong if he discovers he has lost some money.

The Maytag Gyrafoam Washer has the largest hourly capacity of any home laundry unit in the world. It washes 50 lbs. (dry weight) of ordinary family wash per hour. It washes a tubful of clothes in the amazing flash of 3 to 7 minutes. Phone for free demonstration.
